TRAFFIC BOTTLENECK—When a tractor-trailer skidded through the center line fence on the Northeast Expressway and overturned Thursday afternoon, north-bound traffic lanes were blocked for more than three hours, resulting in one of Atlanta's worst traffic jams. Bumper-to-bumper lines of cars, backed up for about four miles on the Expressway, were rerouted at North avenue, Tenth, Fourteenth and Peachtree streets. The crash occurred near Peachtree street. Hamilton To Pay for State Probe

Law Requires It, Treasurer Says

By BRUCE GALPHIN

State Treasurer George Hamilton said Thursday that the law requires him to provide funds for the Senate "Watchdog" Committee after July 1.

And the chairman of the committee, Sen. Trotter of LaGrange, said Friday that the panel will go back into session within two weeks.

Previously, Hamilton had expressed doubt whether the committee could be paid in the face of Gov. Griffin's opposition.

NO DISCRETION

But he said Thursday he has examined the law and found that neither he nor the governor has any discretion in the matter.

Lt. Gov. Vandiver's signature is all that will be required for the committee to receive expenses and per diem pay, Hamilton explained.

Until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, Griffin has the power to block payments to the committee. That is because the appropriation for the Legislature is exhausted, and any additional money must come from the governor's emergency fund.

But on July 1, the legislative appropriation will automatically be renewed.

STATE LAW

Hamilton cited a state law which sets forth the duties of the treasurer:

". . . to pay out (funds) only upon the warrants of the governor . . . excepting the drafts of the president of the Senate and speaker of the House of Representatives for sums due to the members and officers of their respective bodies."

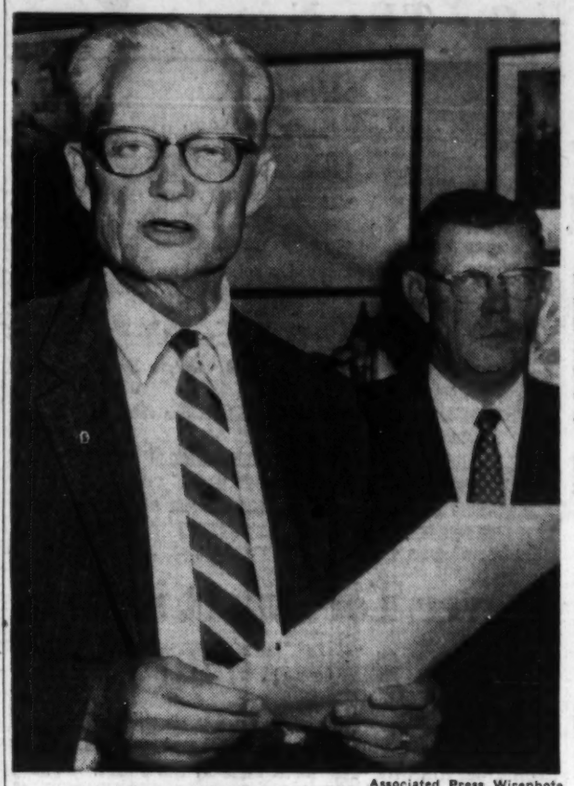

The law also allows the governor to revise budget estimates from various departments "except those for the legislative and judicial departments."

Furthermore, the current appropriations act, after setting forth the payments due legislators during a session, adds: ". . . the per diem allowance provided for in the foregoing shall also be payable to any official or attache for each extra day during his term of service who is authorized by action of one or both branches of the General Assembly . . ."

Gov. Griffin has asserted that

Presidential Assistant Reads Statement as Jim Hagerty Listens

Ike's Aide Calls Charge 'Falsehood'

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—John Fox, Boston lawyer and former newspaper publisher, swore Thursday that he had heard Bernard Goldfine boast before Sherman Adams that Adams would "take care" of Goldfine's troubles with the Federal Trade Commission.

He also related in sworn testimony that he was told by Goldfine that Goldfine had "bought some ventures" for Adams and that Adams had "some interests" in Goldfine-owned textile mills.

John Fox

Adams, the assistant to President Eisenhower, branded Fox's testimony as "deliberate and malicious."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, initially relayed Adams' sharp words to reporters.

Within an hour, Adams himself read a three-point rebuttal to newsmen in Hagerty's office. "It is difficult to separate the many falsehoods in Mr. Fox's incredible testimony," Adams said. "Virtually everything he has said about me—in one way or another—is false." He categorically denied:

1. That he ever said to "Mr. Goldfine or anyone else that I would take care—or have taken care of his affairs with any federal agency."

2. That Goldfine had "ever

House Kills Catch-All Farm Bill

By ALLEN DRURY

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—A coalition of House Republicans and big-city Democrats Thursday apparently put an end to farm legislation for the remainder of the 85th Congress.

They did so by refusing, 214-171, to take up for floor debate an omnibus catch-all bill approved by the House Agriculture Committee. In what was probably the understatement of the week, the committee chairman, Rep. Cooley (D-NC) later summed up what had happened.

"The whole thing really got into politics," he said.

Rep. Cooley said this development had been "unfortunate." He said he would confer with some of his fellow committee members, presumably Democrats, to ascertain whether they wished to make another attempt at farm legislation this session. It was generally considered at the capitol, however, that the House action had buried the issue for this year.

The bill, which was approved by the committee Friday 21-10, would have provided one of the biggest farm price support re-

Lebanese Fighting Blazes Anew As U.N. Chief's Peace Visit Ends

By WILTON WYNN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Fierce fighting blazed in Tripoli Thursday as U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was reported working fast to prevent Lebanon's rebellion from dragging the entire world into a crisis.

At least 10 persons were reported killed and 20 wounded in the fighting that broke out almost immediately after the secretary general ended his seven-day visit to the Middle East. An unofficial truce prevailed while he was here.

Government forces in the northern port city shelled rebels entrenched in the circling hills and demolished at least one fortified house. They used armored cars to attack roadblocks.

Skirmishes also were fought Wednesday night in the Bekaa Valley of central Lebanon.

Hammarskjold on his departure for New York took a plea by Premier Sami Solh for an armed U.N. force to stop the border traffic in arms and reinforcements. Solh said the U.N. observer teams were unable to stop it.

But Hammarskjold said on his arrival in New York that he hoped the observers could do the job.

Sources close to the U.N. observer corps here said Hammarskjold was fearful that Lebanese government leaders may create a situation which would invite direct Western military intervention and thereby produce a worldwide crisis.

The Soviet press and radio opened up with an attack on any plan to turn the U.N. observer corps into an armed unit, labeling it an undercover scheme for U.S. and British intervention.

NAACP Asks High Court For Integration Session

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorneys associated with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Thursday urged the Supreme Court to hold a special session for quick overturning of a 2½-year delay ordered for school integration in Little Rock, Ark.

A petition filed by the attorneys said the delay ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley of Hope, Ark., was clearly wrong.

It described the legal position taken by Lemley as amounting to "an invitation to violence and to substituting a government of mob for one of laws."

DIRECT CONFLICT

It said his ruling conflicted directly with the Supreme Court's 1954 call for ending compulsory segregation with all deliberate speed.

The Supreme Court had planned to adjourn for summer vacations after its next public session on Monday.

Action to be taken on the special session plea will be considered at the court's closed conference on Friday, but its decision probably will not be made known until Monday.

BYPASS CIRCUIT

A request for a stay of Lemley's order, and an appeal asking that his ruling be reviewed on its merits and reversed, are pending before the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis.

Thursday's petition asked the Supreme Court to permit bypassing of the circuit court, so that a prompt and final ruling may be given by the highest tribunal before schools reopen in September.

Blind Men Here on Boston Hike

Two blind hitchhikers from Miami, Fla., stopped over in Atlanta Thursday on their trip to the National Federation of the Blind convention at Boston, Mass.

Bob Lambert, 25, and Bill Scrimgeour, 50, said they had hitched 10 rides to travel the 750 miles from Miami to Atlanta. They left Miami Saturday.

The four-day convention begins July 4. Lambert and Scrimgeour expect to be there in plenty of time. They left Atlanta Thursday afternoon, hitchhiking on U.S. Highway 23.

Their rides so far have ranged from a junkman's jalopy to a businessman's Cadillac.

"We rode in a junkman's old truck for about 35 miles in Florida," Scrimgeour said. "Fortunately, he wasn't going any

DeKalb Girl, 2, Is Season's First Polio Case Here

Grady Memorial Hospital Thursday was treating its first Atlanta area case of polio for the season.

Joan Ellen Darley, 2½, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Darley, 1807 Ledo Ave., DeKalb County, was admitted to the hospital Wednesday. Doctors said Thursday she had shown no signs of paralysis and was responding well to treatment.

Joan had not received the Salk vaccine.

Little Leaguer Jim Wanted the Nurse to Hurry

ROCK SWITCH, Va. (AP)—The nurse eased 10-year-old Jim Shupe out of his Little League baseball suit.

"You'll have to hurry," Jim said. "We've got a game with the Braves this afternoon. . . ."

The game was still uppermost in the boy's mind—just as it had been when his mother sent him on a final errand before game time for a dozen eggs at a neighboring farm.

On the way Jim came to the railroad tracks. A diesel train was laboring by. Being 10—and in a hurry—Jim tried to hook a ride. His foot slipped from the lower rung of the engine ladder. . . .

The nurse gave him a shot to ease the pain and prepared him for surgery.

"You know," Jim said, "that old train didn't hurt me half as much as that needle did. . . . But hurry, we've got a game. . . ."

Grand Jury Summons State Sales Tax Boss

By JACK NELSON

The Fulton County grand jury subpoenaed the new state sales tax director and at least eight other witnesses Thursday in its investigation of the Daffodil Food Products sales tax case.

The manager of Daffodil claims he paid $2,520 in cash to "settle" an assessment the State Sales Tax office originally claimed was $28,000. Records show the $2,520 was never deposited to the account of the State Revenue department.

Horace Sewell, who only last month was named director of the Sales Tax Unit, is among the witnesses subpoenaed by the jury for 10 a.m. Friday.

Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb was not available for comment and his office declined to name the witnesses. However, The Constitution learned that subpoenas also went to the following present and former Sales Tax Unit personnel:

Chandler Hewell, chief regional manager of the Sales Tax Unit; H. M. Tanner, retired, who was in charge of the Atlanta office file room; Walter Herndon, auditor; W. O. Dettmering, cashier; Harold Dixon, Atlanta regional manager and Jason Weems, former assistant director of the unit.

The identities of two other sales tax employes who were subpoenaed were not learned.

The Constitution learned that a routine Monday morning meeting of sales tax officials breaking up in the office of Joe Ray, who was director of the unit, at the time Daffodil officials claim the $2,520 was delivered to the office.

The witnesses subpoenaed for

Senate Repeals Freight Tax But Retains Travel Levy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate voted Thursday to repeal federal taxes on freight transportation in a move designed to benefit consumers, farmers and businessmen to the tune of about 485 million dollars a year.

But it went along with a joint House - Senate Conference Committee in rejecting a proposal — previously approved by the Senate — to repeal the 10 per cent federal levy on airline, train and bus passenger tickets.

The legislation was adopted by voice vote.

The chamber acted in approving a compromise bill, hammered out a few hours earlier by the conference group, to continue for another year present high wartime tax rates on corporation profits, whisky, beer, cigarettes and new automobiles.

The bill was immediately rushed to the House which was expected to complete congressional action Friday. It then will go to President Eisenhower who must sign it before midnight Monday to prevent at least a temporary revenue loss.

The Conference Committee was set up after the House firmly backed up the President's stand against tax cuts now but the Senate approved a series of cuts in federal transportation levies.

The Conference Committee agreed to accept a Senate - approved proposal to repeal federal taxes of 3 per cent on freight shipments, 4 cents a ton on coal and 4.5 per cent for transporting oil by pipeline. The repeal would be effective Aug. 1.

But it turned thumbs down on tax relief for passenger travel which would have cost the Treasury another 225 million dollars a year.

Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) who led the Senate fight to wipe out both taxes, said he would try again to do away with the passenger levy in a later bill dealing with minor excise taxes. He said he had won "three quarters of a loaf."

2 Cooler Days In the High 70s Expected Here

A pleasant weekend is in prospect for Atlanta, the U.S. Weather Bureau says. It forecast partly cloudy and not so warm Friday and partly cloudy and mild Saturday. Showers appear to be over, the Bureau added.

Thursday's showers brought 1.07 inches of rain to the Chamblee area. For the area generally .16 inches of rain were recorded. Extremes expected Friday are 68 and 80; Saturday, 60 and 78. Thursday's extremes were 73 and 88.

The Malignant Heart

Murder Machine Was Rushing Upon Us with Nothing to Stop It

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

CHAPTER 27

A Crime Club mystery novel by a Constitution columnist and staff writer. Condensed by the author. Copyright 1958 by Doubleday & Company.

Crouching, I crept up under the doorway and then raised up enough to peer in. It was the paper warehouse where all the newsprint is stored. Even in the darkness I could see the giant rolls of paper towering like ghostly white columns to the ceiling. And down in there somewhere one of the little tractors they use to lift and haul the paper about was running.

Behind me on the tracks beyond the boxcar the train was coming, even at its slow, railroad-yard speed pounding the rails with a thunder that drowned out the busy little tractor inside. I crouched there, waiting, pinioned against the wall be the light, scared to move and scared not to move.

The diesel engine squealed, and for a brief instant as it thundered past its light illuminated the doorway and I saw just beyond arm's reach in the warehouse—two silly tasseled boots!

"Miss Treasure!" I whispered, and then without thinking any more I was scrambling into the warehouse on my stomach and crawling toward her.

Light from somewhere in the building, maybe the pressroom, filtered through the tall stacks of paper, making an eerie kind of visibility within the warehouse. As I reached Miss Treasure's side I saw the tractor lift bearing down on her.

"No!" I cried. And then I screamed. As loud and as hard as I could I screamed.

A white-coated figure, face lost in shadow, rode the tractor—a monster who must have been startled and momentarily thrown off its deadly course by my scream, because the tractor veered off to the side.

Seeing an advantage, I grabbed Miss Treasure under her arms and dragged her up close to a bale of wastepaper. Something was humming close by. I

Griffin Dedicates Bainbridge Port And Rips 'Wrecking Crew' Critics

By WILLIAM M. BATES

Constitution Political Editor

BAINBRIDGE — Gov. Griffin took an indirect poke at critics of his administration here Thursday as he formally dedicated Georgia's first inland port at his hometown of Bainbridge.

Despite the "static" that he said had arisen in some quarters over his decision to make funds available for the inland port, Griffin said the facility has already proven a success after a year's operation.

"I'd rather belong to the construction gang than to the wrecking crew," the governor said in an obvious reference to criticism of his administration.

Griffin said development of port facilities such as those at Bainbridge will aid industrial development of Georgia. He said the state will "extend the hand of friendship" to any new industries seeking to locate in Georgia.

"If it takes a decent blacktop road so that you can get to your property, we'll build it for you," Griffin said.

But Griffin passed up an opportunity before a friendly audience of hometown friends and political supporters to make a wide-open attack on his political foes. He said he didn't want to be "ugly" on the occasion of the port dedication.

A good-size crowd, including several state officials and legislators, turned out for the dedication ceremonies held at the state-owned docks on the Flint River just outside Bainbridge.

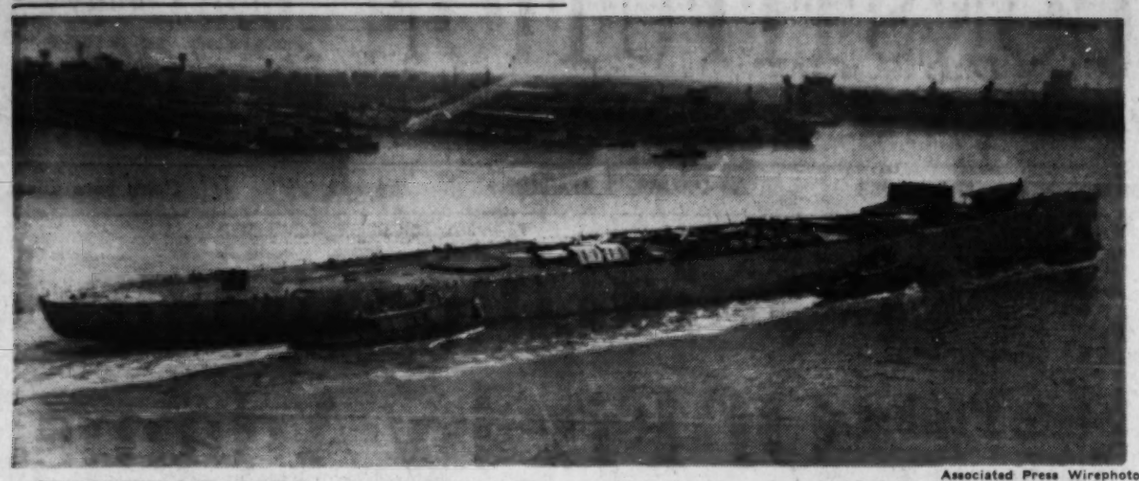

A sudden downpour broke off the activities just as Braxton Carr of Washington, D.C., president of the American Waterways Operators, Inc., got up to speak. He complimented Bainbridge on its generous water supply and said he would leave a copy of his speech to be printed in the governor's weekly newspaper, the Bainbridge Post-Searchlight.

Griffin said the Bainbridge port, constructed and operated by the State Ports Authority, is only one part of a comprehensive program for the development of river and ocean ports in Georgia.

He said dams now under construction or contemplated on the Chattahoochee River will bring river navigation to Columbus within a few years. Eventually, Griffin declared, river barge traffic will be able to go as far north as Atlanta and Gainesville.

"To achieve this last named

Americans To Be in Geneva, Says Note to Balking Soviet

By E. W. KENWORTHY
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The United States informed the Soviet Union Thursday that its technical experts would be in Geneva Tuesday, as agreed, to begin talks on measures to police a nuclear test ban.

Wednesday the Soviet government had surprised the U.S. government with a note charging in effect that the United States was entering the technical talks in bad faith.

This charge was based on the U.S. refusal to accede to the Soviet assumption that as a result of the talks "agreement will be reached on the suspension of nuclear weapons tests."

Moscow intimated that unless it received such confirmation, it would not send its experts to Geneva because "it does not wish to be a party to deceiving the nations."

Thursday Llewellyn E. Thompson, U.S. Ambassador in Moscow, delivered a letter to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. The letter said:

"With respect to the aide-memoire which you handed me yesterday concerning the meeting of experts in Geneva, I have been authorized to inform you that the United States considers the aims of the conference of experts remain as determined in the exchange of correspondence between the Soviet government and the United States government and as confirmed by the Soviet agreement of June 24 and that so far as we are concerned the conference will proceed as agreed. Experts from the United States are already en route."

Thursday afternoon President Eisenhower sent a telegram to Dr. James Brown Fisk, chairman of the U.S. delegation, as Dr. Fisk and his two colleagues, Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence and Dr. Robert F. Bacher, were preparing to board a plane for Geneva. The President said:

"I send to you, Dr. Bacher and Dr. Lawrence, best wishes as you depart for a Geneva conference designed to contribute to disarmament and peace.

"In view of the most recent expression of Soviet attitude, you leave under uncertain conditions. But I and all the American people continue to hope that the door to understanding is still open.

"You are called upon to play a significant part in a far-reaching project of deep concern to all mankind.

Landrum's House Unit Walks Out

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Five congressmen studying labor welfare fund legislation angrily went on strike Thursday against what they said were false charges by colleagues that they were dragging their feet.

The five, total membership of a special subcommittee, resigned en masse at a stormy meeting of the full Labor Committee. They refused to be pacified, insisting their motives had been "impugned."

Their critics said they were taking things "too personally."

The protest stemmed from a letter which four Democrats and four Republicans on the committee sent Chairman Graham A. Barden (D-NC).

SPEED ACTION

The signers denied questioning the subcommittee's motives but asked Barden to speed full committee action on a Senate-approved welfare fund bill. They said further subcommittee hearings were unnecessary.

The committee shouted approval of a motion by Barden urging the subcommittee to reconsider its mass resignation.

Subcommittee Chairman Ludwig Teller (D-NY) told newsmen he was "inclined not to consider." But he said he would discuss it with the other four, Reps. Lee Metcalf (D-Mont), Phil M. Landrum (D-Ga), Albert H. Bosch (R-NY) and Joe Holt (R-Calif).

Teller charged during the meeting that the letter to Barden last Tuesday was an "outrageous, unjustified and ungentlemanly attack."

SUBCOMMITTEE PRAISED

Barden praised the subcommittee for "untiring work" and said there had been "no indication" of a delay.

Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-NY), one of the letter's signers, apologized for failing to notify the subcommittee about it. But he said he was not "backtracking" on its intent—to win approval for a welfare fund bill this session.

Other signers of the letter were Reps. Edith Green (D-Ore), Peter Frelinghuysen Jr. (R-NJ), Harry Haskell Jr. (R-Del), George S. McGovern (D-SD), John J. Rhodes (R-Ariz), James Roosevelt (D-Calif) and Stewart L. Udall (D-Ariz).

Never Took Part in Fix, Judge Schoolfield Says

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Judge Raulston Schoolfield flatly denied on the witness stand Thursday ever taking part in any "fix" of a case in his court.

"I would like to say," he testified, that the accusation "is an utter falsehood. In my entire professional life neither before nor after assuming the bench did I ever participate in any fix of a case.

"I have had all my professional life an abhorrence of the word fix when used in any connection with a case. Most assuredly as far as a judge was concerned, it was pluperfectly abhorrent, when as a lawyer the word almost nauseated me when a client used it."

Schoolfield began testifying on the state's charge that he agreed to parole James Spence Galloway after receiving $1,000.

Earlier Schoolfield had testified on other cases. He said:

—He thought he was following an opinion of the State Supreme Court in reducing the first degree murder sentence of James Harrell from 30 years to 10 to 20 years.

—He changed two sentences of Matt Little set by his predecessor on the bench, to run concurrently instead of consecutively because it was a hardship case.

Schoolfield appeared to argue testily at times with his defense lawyer, Hager Odum, who questioned him.

Odum led Schoolfield one by one down the list of 20-odd charges aired earlier in the special legislative session before the House which impeached the judge and passed the case on to the Senate for his trial now in progress.

Schoolfield's only reference to the charge that $20,000 was passed to fix a case in his court came when he said he had known H. L. Boling, one of the defendants, all Boling's life.

"I had known H. L. Boling since he had worn diapers," he said, "I had known him as a rather poor kid over in the section of north Chattanooga where I was raised.

"I didn't know he was an official of the Teamsters Union until he was indicted."

He added: "I say it to his ever lasting credit, when his indictment was pending, Boling never came around me or opened his mouth to me."

No Invasion In Cambodia, Saigon Says

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—South Viet Nam denied Cambodian charges Thursday that Viet Nam "invaded" Cambodia Wednesday. A government statement said the charge was "purely imaginary."

The official government news agency said that by making the accusation the Cambodian government had "consciously or unconsciously played into the hands of the Communists."

Both the government statement and the news agency said that in fact Cambodia had committed or permitted repeated violations of Viet Nam's border in recent months.

The Vietnamese statement appeared to leave the situation at an impasse. A dispatch from Pnom Penh, capital of Cambodia, said Cambodian troops were moving toward the Vietnamese border to intercept troops from that country.

But Vietnamese officials here insisted they would find nothing but 60 civil guards stationed on Vietnamese territory about nine miles from the border.

Vanguard Pfft Leaves A Mystery

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Navy scientists worked feverishly Thursday to piece together shattered bits of evidence on the fifth Vanguard satellite launching failure in six attempts.

All they had, however, was reams of telemetry tape relayed back during the latest Vanguard's short-lived flight into space.

GOLD PLATED

The rocket and its 21½-pound gold plated satellite were somewhere in the Atlantic ocean. Vanguard fizzled early Thursday morning when the second stage vehicle failed in flight after an apparently smooth liftoff.

Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the Vanguard project, said in Washington, "We still think Vanguard is a good vehicle. . . . No one in his right mind would expect it to work right every time."

The only solace came shortly after the Vanguard failure when General Electric Co. announced the development of a new rocket engine which could launch a satellite weighing as much as 10 tons.

NEW CONCEPT

The engine, described as a radical new concept in rocketry, is an outgrowth of the Vanguard test program. GE said it will pour out between a half million and a million pounds of thrust and theoretically could carry a satellite seven times heavier than Russia's massive Sputnik III.

Trouble began, said Pippin, when his wife couldn't get a pin in their baby's diaper and started cursing.

Pippin got stuck with a 20-day suspended sentence.

30 Russians Land in Shetlands To Chase an Escaping Seaman

By THOMAS P. RONAN
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

LONDON — Thirty Soviet fishermen pursued an Estonian who fled from one of their trawlers across the bleak moors of the island of Shetland early Thursday. But he escaped.

The Estonian, Erich Teayn, was a crewman aboard the Ukrainia, one of three Soviet trawlers anchored in a bay at Walls, Shetland Island, northwest of Scotland.

He left the vessel in a small boat and rowed ashore. Not far behind were 30 Russians in two boats. There was still light although it was early morning, for in the Shetland Islands at this time of the year the nights are short.

Dashing two miles across the moor at Voe of Footabrough, Teayn reached the cottage of William Fraser, a crofter, or small farmer. Breathing heavily and speaking no English, he managed to convey to Fraser that he did not want to go back to the fleet.

He indicated the fate that he thought awaited him by drawing his finger across his throat.

For about two hours the other fishermen combed the moor. In sign language they inquired at several houses for Teayn but did not come to Fraser's cottage.

At 3 a.m. Teayn was taken to the police station at Lerwick, about 25 miles from Walls. A little later three Russians called there and asked to see him.

"This was refused," R. A. Butler, the Home Secretary, said in recounting the incident to the House of Commons Thursday afternoon. Cheers and laughter greeted his remark.

Jo Grimond, leader of the Liberals, asked if some protest over the pursuit on British soil would be made to the Soviet Union if Teayn was found to be a genuine political refugee.

Butler said the question of a protest would have to be considered after an investigation. If Teayn asked for political asylum, it would "certainly be considered," he declared.

"What happens with regard to the other 30 Russians?" asked a Labor member. "Did they have permission to land?"

"No, sir," Butler said. "They landed illegally and they have now gone away."

Asked about the incident, a spokesman at the Soviet Embassy said he had no comment.

Shetland islanders said the three trawlers were part of a fleet of about 50 vessels that had been fishing west of the Shetlands for several months. They said they often saw Soviet vessels off the coast but did not allow the men ashore.

It's Congressman's Duty To Intercede, Nixon Says

Says Their Work With U.S. Agencies Prevents 'Dictatorship by Bureaucracy'

By JOHN H. FENTON
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

PORTLAND, Me.—Vice President Nixon asserted Thursday that members of Congress had a duty to intervene with federal agencies in behalf of their constituents.

Otherwise, he said at a press conference here, "we would wind up having a dictatorship by bureaucracy."

The only rule of thumb to be applied, said Nixon, was whether the public interest would suffer through intervention.

MAINE CONVENTION

Later, in an address at Maine's biennial Republican convention, Nixon told pessimistic party members to take a lesson from former President Truman, and fight as he did when he defeated Thomas E. Dewey and was elected to a full term of 1948.

"I don't often agree with Harry Truman, and certainly he doesn't with me," Nixon said. "But I don't have much patience with those Republicans who have a hang-dog, down-in-the-mouth attitude about their chances in 1958 and 1960."

In a half-hour question period with reporters, Nixon discussed the question of gifts for public servants.

SHERMAN ADAMS

Nixon said that as the question related specifically to Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President, the decision remains solely with Eisenhower.

But, "We can be sure if anything should develop about any individual indicating that the public interest is suffering, then the President will act and that is the test—whether any individual tries to get action from government to which he is not entitled."

As vice president, said Nixon, he did not handle individual cases nor did he make any calls. His staff "simply forwards the case to a particular congressman or senator."

"And I want to say," he continued, "that every congressman and every senator intervenes every day—and he should."

A SORRY STATE

He asserted that "when the time comes that the individual can't go to his congressman or senator, we will be in a sorry state of affairs.

Men in public life, Nixon said, faced "the difficulty of avoiding public acceptance of gifts and entertainment and still rendering public service."

It was a problem that a man in public life had to deal with day by day, whether he is a congressman or the President, because he will inevitably find that because of his public office there are people who want to be his friend or want to have the privilege of giving him something.

"If the gift is given because of the office you hold, and if in your opinion there is no question of the gift being given in order to obtain some action on your part, then that is acceptable," said Nixon. "On the other hand, if there is a question of ulterior motive, then you must turn it down."

Goldfine Stood Up Ike In 1952, Probers Told

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON — Bernard Goldfine "stood up" President Eisenhower, John Fox testified Thursday.

Fox, a Boston lawyer, related to a House subcommittee that not long after President Eisenhower was elected in 1952, Sherman Adams "arranged a private conference between the President and Mr. Goldfine."

When the time came for Goldfine, New England industrialist and long-time friend of Adams, to meet the President in the Algonquin club in Boston, Goldfine could not be found.

He arrived at the club after the appointment time had passed. "Mr. Adams was enraged," Fox related, "and asked where he had been."

"I was with some very important people," Goldfine was quoted by Fox.

"Who can be more important than the President of the United States?" Fox said Adams demanded.

"They were customers," Goldfine replied, according to Fox.

Fox added, "Oh, yes, Mr. Adams was very much embarrassed," and Adams "took me to see the President to cover up for Mr. Goldfine." He said he chatted with the President about 30 minutes. Fox was then publisher of the now defunct Boston Post. James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, also was there, Fox said.

After that Fox said he thought the President "took a nap."

Did Goldfine ever get to meet the President?

"I think he did not," Fox said.

He Walks Out of Jail In a Trance

SAN BERNARDINO Calif. (AP)—"I'll hypnotize you," Jack Cox told his pal, Tom Marsh. "That way you can regress to happier days."

Happier days to Marsh meant only one thing—freedom. So, under hypnotic spell, he walked away from lightly guarded Chino State Prison.

Cox went with him. Asked why, Cox told officers who arrested them later in Long Beach: "I felt responsible. Marsh was wandering around in a trance and needed help."

Cox and Marsh told the story Thursday—just before a jury convicted burglar Marsh of escaping from prison. Cox, a convicted robber, will be arraigned on the escape charge Friday.

U.S. Takes Tough Stand On Seizure of 9 by Reds

Washington Angered by Refusal To Permit Visitors, Russia Told

By JACK RAYMOND
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The United States regards "with grave concern" the prolonged detention of nine U.S. Army men who made a forced helicopter landing in East Germany June 7.

This was made known Thursday with the publication of a stiff aide-memoire that was handed to a Soviet embassy official here Friday for transmission to his government.

The aide-memoire called on Moscow to give appropriate urgent instructions to Soviet military authorities in Germany to obtain the release of the nine men and the helicopter promptly.

The U.S. made clear in a separate statement, issued jointly by the State and Defense departments, that it is angered by the Soviet's refusal to permit visits to the men or transmit relief supplies to them.

U.S. officials in Germany have been unable to ascertain the whereabouts of the helicopter crew and passengers. Soviet officials there disclaimed any knowledge of their place of detention. It is assumed they are being treated adequately.

The statement reviewed the fruitless efforts of the United States to attain the release of eight officers and a sergeant. These included five meetings with an East German official, to whom the Soviets had referred United States authorities.

Publication of the aide-memoire and the accompanying statement was described authoritatively as a demonstration of the United States' sterner attitude toward the Soviet government in this case.

President Eisenhower was reported to have been partial at one-time toward almost any move short of formal, permanent recognition of the East German regime in order to get the Army men back.

Recognition by the United States of the Communist East German Democratic Republic apparently is what is now being sought by Moscow and the East Germans. The Russians have disclaimed any authority to assist in the matter as they have in similar cases in the past.

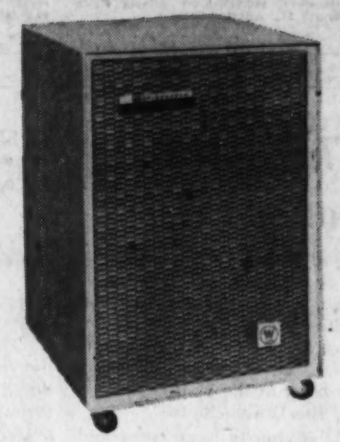

The Soviet Union has diplomatic relations with the West German Government.

Official sources indicated today, however, that in view of the behavior of the Soviets and the East Germans this government was now far less conciliatory.

War Threat Grows In Lebanon Crisis

Hardening of Russian policy and rapid reversion to Stalinism, first noted several weeks ago, became an accepted fact yesterday with Moscow's scuttling of East-West nuclear test ban talks, demonstrations before the American Embassy and the angry blast at the United Nations as the "tool of the United States."

The Soviets obviously have embarked upon a deliberate campaign to increase international tensions. Whether this is aimed at diverting world attention from Communist internal troubles and unrest in the satellite countries or whether it is forerunner of a stepped-up war of nerves has the diplomats guessing.

There is no doubt that the situation in Lebanon is quite serious. That country has been attacked directly and indirectly by the Soviet-backed United Arab Republic. Soviet arms and Soviet agitators have beeen fanning the flames.

Lebanon has appealed to the United Nations for help, expressing its case through Dr. Charles Malik as follows:

"The only sin of Lebanon in the eyes of the United Arab Republic is . . . that it is independent and follows a policy of friendship towards the Western World. We plead guilty. . . ."

In a formal request, the Lebanese government has called for a U.N. emergency force to seal off Lebanon's frontiers against further infiltration of Egyptian and Syrian "volunteers." This is what the Soviets term "interference."

The United Nations cannot submit to threats of the Soviet Union and remain an effective world force. Inaction which could result in Lebanon's fall to Nasser, thus putting the whole Middle East under Soviet control, would be a much worse disaster than Suez.

The United States, which must accept much responsibility for saving Nasser in the Suez crisis, now finds itself faced with the necessity of stopping him. The United Nations faces another major crisis with threats of Soviet counteraction building up to a Korean-type war threat or worse.

Events are moving fast and they add up to a serious danger of war. If the Soviet Union finally has decided to throw down the gauntlet in a major test of strength in the Middle East, almost anything could happen. Moscow's recent actions give little cause for optimism.

Lifting the Freight Tax Is Piecemeal Approach

Senate approval of legislation to repeal taxes on freight transportation while refusing to remove the federal bite on passenger tickets represents an unfair and unrealistic compromise.

Both were wartime measures. Like any other taxes that once get on the books, they are difficult to get off.

But now that the Senate has seen fit to grant relief on freight shipments, the same yardstick should apply to passenger travel.

In fact, the latter accounts for considerably less federal revenue than does the levy on freight and should be easier for the government to relinquish.

The loss of passengers has caused railroad after railroad to cancel services along various routes. The tax on tickets for human travel imposes a far greater threat to the future of transportation media than does the tax on freight.

As for loss of revenue to the government, repeal of both could be expected to result in more real revenue through increased use of railroads and other forms of transportation and the consequent increase in yield of corporate and income taxes.

While some excise taxes can be justified, taxes on tickets were imposed to discourage travel. They long ago outlived their excuse for being. Today they are contributing to a progressive deterioration of railroad passenger travel and hindering growth of commercial passenger traffic in general.

The House, when it considers this measure today, should be realistic enough to remove an unfair and unpopular levy which is detrimental to the whole economy.

This Church Split Up In a Unique Manner

A church in San Mateo, Calif., ran into a problem that plagues many churches in this era of expanding population. There weren't enough seats to go around on Sunday morning.

The problem was solved in an unusual way.

The original building was cut in half, the front half was moved and two sections were inserted, like leaves in a dining table.

The method is unique.

We've heard of congregations splitting in half and moving out. As far as we know San Mateo has established a "first" for a church building.

Teachers and Students Given Added Incentive

The Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, which in recent years has rendered a distinct service to education through its Teacher of the Year program, has uncorked an even better idea.

Its Student - Teacher Achievement Recognition project, which appropriately enough bears the alphabetical designation of STAR, glitters with incentive for top performance in the classroom.

The best scholars and the faculty members who have exerted the most influence on their academic achievement will be accorded similar honors and special awards. The new undertaking is quite broader than its predecessor and has the necessary ingredients to prove even more popular and effective.

Another valuable contribution to education, the Chamber's Volunteer-Teacher Scholarship Plan, is gathering steam. Already 13 Georgia Kiwanis clubs have agreed to underwrite study scholarships for prospective teachers who are to pay off their loans by practicing their profession in the state—one year of teaching for each year of study provided. Other clubs and organizations would do well to join in the movement.

The State Chamber is serving the cause of education well through its various projects. Such assistance on the part of businessmen and private groups is of utmost importance to the over-all effort toward improving the quality of Georgia schools and their products.

State Patrol Mobilizes To Make Fourth Safe

Gov. Marvin Griffin has given the Georgia State Patrol strict orders to do its part so that Georgians may have a safe Fourth of July holiday.

The governor has told the patrol to take speeders, drunk drivers and other flagrant violators straight to jail, then hurry back to the highway.

If the violator thinks he is harshly treated, let him understand the interior of a jail cell means safety for himself. What is more important it means safety for the innocent whom his continued recklessness would endanger.

The "no warning ticket" policy already is in force in Cobb County, where accidents of recent weeks have aroused an unusual safety consciousness.

Increased patrol in the county is having a noticeable effect. One arrest this week was of a trucker doing 75 miles an hour in a 45-mile zone on the four-lane.

Everyone, including the trucking industry, approves that kind of enforcement. The truck lines tell us they cannot follow each of their drivers on the highways. They depend upon county and state police for enforcement and are grateful when they get it, for trucking has a high stake in safety.

Continued strict enforcement and increasingly activated public opinion can give Georgia a safe Fourth on the highways and a better record the year around.

The governor has laid down the law, the patrol is being mobilized to carry out his orders. The rest is up to the driver.

Decatur County Mixup Is Difficult To Justify

Cheney Griffin and John Taylor are unopposed for Decatur County's two posts in the State House of Representatives.

Some time ago the county's Democratic Committee set June 28 as the deadline for qualifying and published its ruling.

Now confronted with other would-be candidates for the House the committee makes the belated discovery that the final date for qualifying as established by the state committee was last Saturday.

It seems at least passing strange that Decatur County Democratic officials, residing in the home bailiwick of the governor and his brother, should be so unfamiliar with the rules and regulations of the Georgia Democratic Party.

Surely some member of the Decatur County committee should have known what their counterparts in counties throughout Georgia knew about the statewide deadline.

Luscious Red-Ripe Georgia Watermelon Is Called Eighth Wonder of the World

Chicago, Ill.—Get a thousand people together anywhere in the world and what discord would result if asked their opinions! On feligion? On politics? On racial matters? On international affairs? Soon they would fly at each other's throats!

But ask them this question, after generous samples are devoured: "What do you think of Georgia watermelon?" And they would all shout in joy and harmony: "Delicious! Just hits the spot!"

What the world needs for peace and agreement is simply tempting, mouth-watering, bright red inside and as sweet as honey Georgia watermelon! Every time man feels like spouting angry thoughts on family, friends, neighbors, class, race, religion or nation he should quickly stuff a thick slice of this luscious fruit into his big mouth! What a perfect antidote for nastiness!

Frowns will soon disappear. The wild glint will vanish from his eyes. His fists will unclench. Miracle of miracles, a smile will break out on his homely puss.

Truly, Georgia watermelon is the eighth wonder of the world.

'Chumley' Says It Was a Rose Bush

Atlanta—Harold Martin is to be congratulated on his ability to teach judo. However, as the unfortunate Englishman who was hurled by his indomitable daughter, may I point out an inaccuracy in his article of June 19?

The bush on whose twigs I suddenly found myself dangling was not a hydrangea, but a rose. You will appreciate that this, though perhaps more romantic, added immeasurably to the pain of my predicament.

Yours rumly and still comely if somewhat numbly,

CHUMLEY.

Church Structure Thought Impressive

Atlanta—As a guest I visited a new church in Atlanta. The front of the edifice is glass from floor to beams, which was very inspiring to me. The congregation when seated looks out at the tops of the trees and two-thirds of the window shows the sky.

It's a changing picture which shows our Maker's handiwork, as though a new picture were painted there each Sunday.

I'm not a member of this church. One of our neighbors on Mt. Paran road invited us, but I enjoyed that visit very much.

Nixon's Slush Fund Recalled by Citizen

Nashville — Many have expressed surprise at the fact that President Eisenhower has not discharged or asked for the resignation of Sherman Adams.

I fail to see how anyone could be surprised since the President as a candidate swallowed Little Dick Nixon after it developed that he had been accepting fabulous sums of money on the side while acting as senator from the State of California. What "Sherm" Adams received was mere chicken change compared with what Little Dick was getting.

It all goes to prove that Ike's "hound tooth" philosophy was aimed at Democrats only. If a Democrat had done what "Sherm" has done, Ike would think he was a grand rascal, but since "Sherm" is a Republican, he has just acted imprudently.

Name Is Same, Yet Different

Homebound from beachland, we stopped in Camilla to call on Marie Baggs, my mother-in-law's first cousin on my wife's side. Cousin Marie was born in Greensboro, Ga., where her father, Ged Smith, was the Presbyterian preacher. Nineteen and just out of college, she went to Mitchell County to teach. She's been there since, still teaching and loves it.

The young schoolteacher had not been on the Camilla faculty long before she married Wade H. Baggs. They have raised a fine family.

From conversation about the family I learned about the Wadeing list.

The husband is Wade H., the son is Wade H. Jr. and the grandson is Wade H. III.

You say, "But that is not unusual."

Daughter Carolyn married Wade H. Gilbert of Greenville, Ga. Their son is Wade H. Gilbert Jr.

When the clan gathers, there are five Wades at the dinner table.

"You'd think we'd have trouble identifying the person when we say, 'Wade,'" says Cousin Marie. "Believe or not, we don't. We so inflect the word that each time everyone knows exactly which Wade we mean."

The South Carolinan assumes, of course, the name is Wade Hampton all the way. It's not, though.

The three Wades with the Baggs name are Wade Hamptons, but the Gilberts, father and son, are Wade Hardin.

GO TELL THE DOCTOR: Also in Camilla, we exchanged greetings with Mitchell County entrepreneur Willie Frank Cullens. Willie Frank told us about his parrot, a family pet for 20 years.

The parrot was critically ill last week and brought out of the deathly droop by two shots of penicillin.

"Was she talking during the illness?" I asked.

"You know it's a funny thing," said Willie F. "From the time the bird took sick on Wednesday until after that second penicillin shot, the only person she said a word to was the doctor. She told him hello and goodby."

SAFE AT HOME: In Ellaville early this week I stuck my head in at the courthouse just long enough to learn that editor-school administrator Raymond Duncan and Miss Elise Buchanan of Ellaville and Sumter County had gone over to Eufaula last Saturday and had Preacher G. Barron say the words that wed.

On the Thursday before, Raymond had this to say in his "Sunrise Paragraphs" column in the Ellaville Sun: "People who ride the highways these days shouldn't be afraid of flying or getting married."

Gouging on Rights-of-Way Must Be Kept at Minimum

Uncle Sam came hurriedly to the rescue of Georgia's highway right-of-way program. Just like the cavalry over the hill when the redskins are attacking. With Uncle Sam putting up 90 per cent of the cost, however, the state's primary worry isn't obtaining money for rights-of-way but trying to keep right-of-way costs from consuming the entire budget for major highways.

In the old days a landowner was so happy to have a road he would give the right-of-way to any government that would build one for him. Nowadays, having land in the path of a new highway may mean it can be sold for three or four times its prior value. The highway department has complained about this situation many times and even here in Hall County there was suit to reduce right-of-way cost and the county managed to cut a charge in half.

Landowners should receive a fair market price for their land when a road is going to be built upon it but they should be discouraged from seeking nine prices for it. In other states, various preventatives are used. In some, adjacent property is assessed for taxes at the value it demands for right-of-way. This tends to keep the owner's selling price down to a reasonable figure.

Doesn't this seem fair? After all, a tax assessment of $20 an acre on land that brings $1,000 an acre for right-of-way hardly reflects a willing seller-willing buyer negotiated price.

Although no special session of the General Assembly need be held now, some of its members are sure to remember and to seek a revised method in Georgia for condemning and purchasing right-of-way.

The problem they face includes as much an alternative to excessive land costs as to the highway program itself.

There must be ways to provide a fair price to the landowner and assure the rest of the public that he isn't gouging them.

The male bristle-worm courts the female bristle-worm by going through extraordinary contortions. The courtship of the fiddler crab is conducted by standing on tiptoe and brandishing a claw in the air. The golden-eye drake attracts his mate by raising a jet of water with his feet.

The most extraordinary contribution to the folklore of the subject, however, seems to us to be contributed by the Minnesotan who is trying to get his wife to come home by joining the opposition to her renomination as a United States representative. Under these circumstances we are inclined to view the wooing tactics of the swordtail, or Xiphophorus—which swims excitedly round the females, occasionally giving them a dig with its long tail—as far from odd and commendably non-political.

Maybe Horned Owl Will Yell for Kelp

The seaweed the man said he was going to send me came the other day, a big hundred-pound sack of it. It is a powdery stuff and grainy and a little lumpy, too, greenish in color and it smells like—well, it smells like morning at the seashore by an old wharf when the tide is out and all the things from out of the sea the high tide has left there are beginning to dry out in the morning sun and cast their fragrance on the air.

In short, it smells rich and strong and strange, as if it does have in it all the vitamins and the minerals the man said it had.

I took a handful of it and threw it down on my driveway where my rooster, Julius, could get at it. Then I put a little in the bird feeder along with the cracked corn and the sirup cane seed and the sunflower seed. Then I mixed a little with the dog's food and the cat's food and tried a little pinch of it myself. It tasted all right, a little salty and a little like iodine, maybe.

Well, my rooster, Julius, walked around with his head cocked on one side and his comb flopping over. Then he pecked at it once or twice and then started pecking faster and faster. And the cat and the dog sniffed at their food and then walked off looking back over their shoulders and then came back and started eating like they were starving. And a jaybird lit on the bird feeder and started eating the seaweed or kelp or Algit or whatever you want to call it.

Then the first thing I knew the jaybird took out after the cat and the cat took out after the dog and the dog took out after the rooster who took off for the woods. I guess he was after that big horned owl who lives down there and scares Julius out of his wits by making wild, weird noises deep in the night.

And I think I will write the man and tell him that his seaweed is very powerful stuff indeed.

Christian Church Is House Divided

Several days ago I received a letter from a reader of this page which concerns a problem that is on the hearts of Christian people everywhere. My correspondent asks why there are so many denominational groups in Christianity and he lists a bewildering number of denominational affiliations that are represented in his circle of close friends.

"My friends and I play together and work together," he writes, "but we go our separate ways to worship."

Jesus prayed that His followers might be one, but now after more than 19 centuries they are many. I am sure there are many reasons why we should be distressed by what appears to be our multiplicity of loyalties to Him.

Yet I am not sure that denominational affiliations are as terribly evil as some people suggest. It may well be that through many churches much more work is being accomplished, more prayers are offered and more searchings for God's will are being made. Many small churches surely offer more opportunities for more people to express their faith in more ways. I should hate to see the day when we are all crowded into churches which are so large no one feels at home and most people do not feel that their attendance and support are essential.

Sometimes we think everything in the early Christian fellowships was sweetness and light. Of course, it wasn't. Most of the problems we face in our churches today are found in those early fellowships. Any reading of St. Paul's letters reveals the great problem in human relations and human sinfulness which then existed. Some of the problems St. Paul discussed are fortunately no longer with us, but we probably have acquired problems he never dreamed of.

In First Corinthians, St. Paul speaks of the party spirit and divided loyalties which were present in the Corinthian Church. He writes:

"I appeal to you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you agree and there be no dissensions among you, but that you be united in the same mind and the same judgment. For it has been reported to me by Chloe's people that there is quarreling among you, my brethren. What I mean is that each one of you says, 'I belong to Paul,' or 'I belong to Apollos,' or 'I belong to Cephas,' or 'I belong to Christ'" (1 Cor. 1:10-12). Then Paul asks: "Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?"

Here Paul says a word which Christians today should ponder. Our denominational loyalty is all wrong if we make any claims which rise about our common allegiance to Christ. And it is wrong when we claim for our group an exclusive blessing or boast that we have a full possession of the truth—an inside track along the glory road or a special revelation.

Republicans Push The Panic Button

WASHINGTON — The Republican Party is reeling as it has not done since the Democratic peak under Franklin D. Roosevelt. Fear and defeatism, as privately expressed in Republican congressional and other quarters here, is thick. It is so extraordinary as to seem to a detached observer to be almost absurdly extreme.

The Republicans see for themselves a future far gloomier than the most partisan Democrat dares assume. Moreover, no impartial analysis makes it look quite so bad for the Republicans as they insist it is—assuming that they are able soon to pull up their socks.

The GOP is not simply putting a finger to the panic button; it is leaning on that button — arm, shoulder and torso.

Senior Republicans are speaking not simply of a heavy defeat in the congressional elections this fall; they are muttering of "disaster."

The reason is not solely the Adams case, though it has indeed hit the Republicans like a paralytic stroke. Public reaction is only their obvious worry. Equally important is worry for the effect within the GOP organization itself.

For, overly dramatic though it sounds, the Republican Party seems to be coming apart at the seams. The main reasons are two:

1. Adams' acceptance of favors from his rich businessman friend has dangerously and overnight reduced the power of the whole Eisenhower wing of the party. It has thus set off party in-fighting.

And the decline of Sherman Adams is in a real but lesser way the decline of Gen. Eisenhower—the decline, that is, of his practical influence within his party.

2. The Adams affair has had a cumulative shock effect upon Republicans generally.

In January the Republicans were fearful of the political effect of the Soviet Sputniks.

Next, it began to appear that massive farm resentment was building up. This menace then seemed to pass with the rise of agricultural income.

And then came Bernard Goldfine's great generosity to Sherman Adams.

This episode could have been far better handled by the party as a whole—had there been a party of the whole. But there never was such a party.

From the day Adams went in he has been resented by the "regular" Republicans. He has given them little job patronage, little time — and less courtesy. They are repaying him now and the more so because they think that for this campaign year the Republican ship is sinking anyhow.

But it is not only Sherman Adams who is shaken. The whole "modern" Republican apparatus has been shaken with him.

Augusta Chronicle

New York City is cracking down with a vengeance on litterbugs following a five-week educational campaign that featured the issuance of nearly 100,000 warnings to pedestrians, property owners and others.

On the first day of enforcement, nearly 900 summonses were handed out under a sanitation measure which provides a maximum fine of $25.

Many cities—Augusta in nowise excluded — are discovering that mere appeals on the score of good citizenship are not fretting the litterbugs at all.

A stiff pinch on their pocketbooks, as in New York, would seem to be the only solution.

State Sticks to Demands In Terrell School Dispute

The State School Building Authority is sticking by its insistence that the Terrell County School Board should return furniture removed from Negro schools, Chairman George P. Whitman said Thursday.

This followed an assertion by the Terrell board that it merely was shifting the equipment to places where it is needed.

Whitman and other members of the authority have stated that the question involved is not an ethical one but one involving the laws setting up the School Building Authority.

The authority has sold some $200 million worth of bonds to build new schools throughout Georgia. These schools are leased to local systems.

But until the bonds are paid off - and it will take roughly 20 years—the authority retains title to the schools and is responsible to the bondholders for the safe maintenance of both school buildings and school equipment.

The same rules that Terrell is being asked to abide by apply to every other school system in the state.

In fact, the Terrell board has a legal means by which it can effect the transfer of the equipment. If it can establish a legitimate reason for the transfer, it may apply formally to the State Board of Education.

Thus far the local board has failed to do so.

In question is furniture allotted to two Negro schools in Dawson: Lillie Cooper Elementary and Terrell Negro High School.

The equipment includes not only school but refrigerators from the cafeterias, furnishings from teachers' lounges and office desks.

According to the Terrell Board, the furniture was moved not only into white but also into other Negro schools.

But the School Building Authority maintains that no matter where the furniture was moved, and no matter what the reasons, the Terrell Board must obtain formal approval for the transfers or else return the furniture.

In the meantime, the School Building Authority has withheld some $32,000 from Terrell County which it holds in contingency and equipment funds. That is more than the value of the removed furniture.

City Board Bars Press In Decatur

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Newsmen were barred from an executive session of Decatur City Commissioners Thursday after reporters refused to sit in on the meeting but not report the commission's actions.

The meeting, hastily called Thursday afternoon by Mayor Dr. J. F. Redding, concerned Tuesday's work stoppage on construction of the city's new recreation building.

Contracts were let for the $301,010 building last October to the Preston - Chambers Construction Co. of Decatur.

The building was approximately halfway finished when the work stoppage occurred.

BOTHWELL CALLED

The commissioners said that Bothwell was called to meet before their group because they wanted advice on what steps to pursue.

Mayor Redding announced that the minutes of Thursday's meeting would be made public at another executive session set for 10:30 a.m. Friday.

The latest chapter in the running battle between newsmen and the commissioners began Thursday when Commissioner L. W. Morris met reporters at the door of the meeting room and said.

"You fellahs can't attend today's meeting. It's not open to the press."

Mrs. C. Howard Leveritt, a member of the commission, spoke up, "You can sit in on the meeting if you'll agree not to print anything about it."

REPORTERS REFUSED

The reporters refused.

Commissioner Roe Callaway said, "Let them come on in. There is nothing to hide. We've been criticized day in and day out for holding these secret executive sessions."

A reporter called for a poll of the commission.

The vote was 4-1 to keep the newsmen out. Commissioner Callaway voted to admit them.

Following the meeting, Mayor Redding, and Commissioners Morris and C. E. Morgan sparred verbally with the reporters.

MORGAN'S REMARKS

Morgan told them "You reporters don't go out of your way to accommodate us and why should we go out of our way to accommodate you."

Morris said that the commission has the right to call an executive session any time it sees fit.

"Anytime anything comes up that will hurt anybody, we'll go into an executive session, too," he said.

Both Morris and Morgan emphasized that the proceedings of Thursday's meeting could wait until Friday or the future for publication. They said that Thursday's business wasn't open to the public or press because they were afraid that "somebody might get hurt."

Earlier both men said that the session was called purely for "information purposes."

Koinonia Pastor Asks Integration Inside Churches

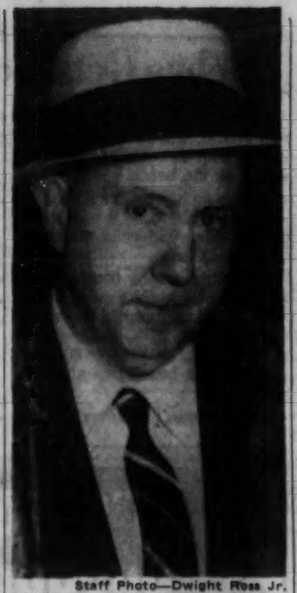

BOSTON (AP)—Pious resolutions against segregation will carry much more weight if religious groups stop discriminating within their own churches, Dr. Clarence Jordan said Thursday ngiht.

Dr. Jordan, minister of Koinonia Farm, Americus, Ga., spoke at a meeting of the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches. The council is holding its 14th biennial meeting here.

Dr. Jordan, who founded an interracial religious community at Americus in 1942, said:

"It is fitting and altogether proper that we pass resolutions giving the President clear instructions for the fulfillment of his civic and moral responsibilities, as in the Little Rock situation. But judgment must begin at the House of the Lord."

He said, "Our pronouncements against segregation in the schools will carry much weight when we have rooted out segregation in our churches."

House Kills Farm Bills For Session

visions since 1933. It would have given producers of milk, corn and grain sorghums higher price guarantees in return for subjecting themselves to tight production controls, and would also have sharply boosted the price of wheat used for cereals, bread and bakery products. In addition, it contained extensions of programs for disposing of farm surpluses abroad and for subsidizing milk for children in schools, summer camps and day-care centers.

ALL PROVISIONS

The Eisenhower administration was opposed to all provisions of the bill except the last two, which have been passed by the Senate in separate pieces of legislation. The two programs are scheduled to expire at midnight Monday unless Congress extend them.

The House vote against the omnibus bill actually came on the question of whether to approve the "rule," limiting debate, granted the bill by the House Rules Committee. Rejection of the rule came after influential House Republicans had bitterly attacked the measure and predicted it would have to be debated for "hours and hours and hours" if it were taken up for action.

PROSPEROUS CONDITION

Cooley and some of his farm-state fellow Democrats argued in vain that the legislation was needed to help keep the farm economy in a prosperous condition. One, Rep. Abernethy (D-Miss.), said that if the House refused to debate the bill, the agriculture committee "might as well as liquidated."

This brought applause and cheers from the Republicans, and Abernethy told them they were acting "like a bunch of children."

However, Republican oratory triumphed with a number of big-city Democrats from New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Massachusetts and other industrial states.

Japan Gives GI 6 Years For Slaying

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — Yokohama District Court Friday convicted U.S. Army Specialist Gregory Kupski of Detroit, Mich., and sentenced him to six years in prison for killing a Japanese girl.

The nude body of his victim, Kazue Eikawa, 25, was found in a Yokohama alley Nov. 18. She had been strangled with her brassiere and had been gagged with other underclothing.

She was the wife of U.S. Navyman Robert Leslie Wescot, who was stationed at China Lake, Calif.

WILL APPEAL

"We most certainly will appeal said Nobuo Inaki, Kupski's lawyer. He had predicted an acquittal.

Kupski, 23, stood at rigid attention while President Judge Kutsuo Matsumoto read the verdict.

"The accused killed prostitute Kazue Eikawa in a fit of anger," Matsumoto stated. At another point he said Kupski, a Catholic, snatched away a cross the girl was wearing and "choked her, beat her and took her brassiere and strangled her."

DENIED GUILT

Kupski had told the court he was innocent but the U.S. Army earlier said he had signed a written statement confessing the crime.

He was led, scowling, from the court by an armed U.S. military policeman.

Judge Matsumoto in the verdict reviewed court testimony telling of Kupski and another soldier meeting two procurers early on the morning of last Nov. 17, and being taken to a Japanese hotel where he was introduced to the Eikawa girl.

CLAIM ERROR

Inaki said he would base his appeal partly on a misreading of the verdict in which the crime was stated to have taken place last December 17 instead of Nov. 17. The court did not correct the error.

He told a reporter there is no evidence against Kupski but the confession the Army reported.

"Apparently the judge considered it voluntarily made," Inaki said. "I don't think so. I had expected an acquittal."

Testimony brought out that Kupski has a good Army record.

Housing Tour Reduced to 3 by Rain, Illness

Only three of the 17 aldermen Thursday inspected 221 housing in the Ben Hill area.

Rain and illness kept 14 from attending.

Aldermen Jack Summers, Jesse Draper and William A. Sims Jr. appeared for the survey at which Ivan Allen Jr., member of the Citizens Advisory Committee sponsoring urban renewal, was host.

Ald. L. O. Moseley sent a message that he was ill and regretted he could not be present.

Col. Malcolm Jones, director of urban renewal for the city, said the aldermen were "impressed with the units inspected." The 221 houses are built primarily to house persons displaced in urban renewal and other governmental activities.

Lost for 24 Hours After Cartersville Wreck, Florida Woman Turns Up in Tennessee

Constitution State News Service

CARTERSVILLE—The mystery of the missing motorist was solved Thursday when a woman who disappeared from a wreck scene in Bartow County turned up safe and sound at Jasper, Tenn., the state patrol said.

Mrs. Maxine Hall Woods, 42, of Tampa, Fla., disappeared Wednesday from a crash scene on U.S. Highway 41 five miles south of Cartersville, Troopers C. T. Smith and B. N. Stamey said.

The strange incident set off a 24-hour search of a wooded section of Bartow County with civilian defense units from Cartersville and Rockmart participating, along with state troopers and county officials.

The search was called off shortly before 10 p.m. Thursday when Mrs. Woods telephoned relatives in Florida from Jasper and they, in turn, notified police.

Officers said they understood that Mrs. Woods got a ride with passing motorist. They previously expressed a belief that she had wandered off into the woods along the road.

Smith and Stamey said they were called to the crash scene at 7 p.m. Wednesday and were told that a car driven by Mrs. Woods had been in collision with an auto carrier driven by Stanley E. Vance of Wayne, Mich.

Damage to the car was negligible, troopers said. They said Mrs. Woods was seated on a blanket spread out beside the road and complained of not feeling well when they asked her to walk over to the two vehicles.

Stamey said he observed Mrs. Woods arise and pick up the blanket on which she had been sitting. When he looked again, he said, she was gone.

Jet Crosses U.S. in 4 Hours

BOSTON (UPI) —A Boeing Aircraft Co. jet transport flew nonstop Thursday from Seattle, Wash. to Boston in 4 hours 16 minutes, about twice as fast as present commercial flights over the same distance.

The swept-wing jet, scheduled to go into commercial service in September, made the flight without the accelerating "jet-stream," a cross - country air current frequently picked up on record-breaking flights.

The plane took off from Seattle at 11:10 a.m. (EDT) and was clocked in here at 3:26 p.m. (EDT).

Stability for France Predicted by Consul

By MARION GAINES

The instability of the executive branch of the government in France can be attributed largely to the fact that "everyone would like to be premier," the French consul-general in New Orleans said here Thursday.

"We have a different conception of government in France from that which exists in America," declared Jacques Grellet, who assumed his consular duties two and a half months ago in New Orleans. "We like to feel that if we want to get rid of an executive, we don't have to wait four years to do so."

"However, there is a great need for more stability on the executive level in my country," Grellet said, adding he is "hopeful" that Gen. de Gaulle will be able to achieve "such stability" by proposed constitutional reforms.

Grellet took part Thursday afternoon in ceremonies investing Arthur L. Harris, president of the Mead-Atlanta Paper Co., as the new French consul in Atlanta succeeding the late Charles Loridans, who served in that post from 1928 until his death June 9, 1956.

A veteran of 27 years' service in the French diplomatic corps, Grellet served two and a half years in Calcutta prior to enjoying "a six-month holiday in Paris" and taking over his new post at New Orleans.

Settlement of the Algerian problem "does seem to be the key to success or failure" of the 26-day-old De Gaulle government, Grellet said.

"Many people seem to be under the misimpression that Gen. de Gaulle has promised Algeria full integration with France," the 51-year-old diplomat said. "I do not think he has actually gone that far yet. I think he is simply feeling his way toward the best solution."

Grellet pointed out, "There are 9,000,000 Moslems in Algeria, and to give them equal status with all Frenchmen would be to place a tremendously heavy financial burden on the citizens of France."

The costly and bloody Algerian rebellion "must be halted as the first step" on France's road back to its former position of world eminence, he said.

About 100 persons attended the investment ceremonies Thursday afternoon at the Harris home at 1130 W. Conway Dr., NW.

Harris, who is vice president of the Mead Corp. at Dayton, Ohio, and a director of its board, is also on the national executive committee of Junior Achievement.

July 4 Toll of 12 Forecast

Twelve persons will die on Georgia highways during the 78-hour Fourth of July weekend, the State Patrol predicted Thursday.

The patrol also estimated there would be 351 accidents and 117 injuries during the period.

The official count will start at 6 p.m. next Thursday and extend through midnight, Sunday, July 6.

Georgia's worst Fourth in recent years also fell on a long weekend. That was in 1955, when there were 496 wrecks, 176 injuries and 17 fatalities.

2.2 Million Collected by Chest Here

Nearly 18,000 volunteer workers raised $2,239,879 for the Community Chest last year in Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb Counties, according to a report of 1957 Chest activities released Thursday.

Last year's fund total was contributed by about 200,000 citizens, said the eight-page report written by Jack Spalding, editor of The Atlanta Journal and a longtime Community Chest worker.

The Chest Budget Committee allocated the money to 57 different agencies serving approximately 200,000 persons in the tri-county area.

NO HANDOUTS

"The money raised is not dissipated in handouts," the Spalding report said. "The Chest is not a handout outfit."

"Mostly its agencies work at the causes of human problems and try to cure them there," Spalding continued. "Chest agencies not only alleviate the ills of the area, they help ward them off."

The largest single allocation of 1957 funds, according to the report, was the $151,621 given to the Family Service Society.

Recipients of other sizable allocations included the Boy Scouts, $118,825; the Child Service Association, $118,660; Metropolitan YMCA, $84,598; Central YWCA, $81,261; Gate City Day Nurseries, $77,186; the USO, $76,952, and the Travelers Aid Society, $71,842.

OFFICERS LISTED

William C. Wardlaw Jr. served as president of last year's Chest campaign. Heading the 1958 drive will be Inman Brandon.

Other 1957 officers included Brandon, Joseph K. Heyman, A. H. Sterne Jr. and George Goodwin, vice presidents; George S. Craft, treasurer, and Virgil W. Milton, assistant treasurer.

Craft also will serve as treasurer of this year's campaign with Hughes Spalding Jr. as assistant treasurer.

Vice presidents of the Chest for 1958 are Jack G. Bradbury, William B. Stubbs, Mrs. Roff Sims and Harry Backer.

Debra Gets Her Chance to Play on Beach

Little Debra January, a leukemia victim, will fly to Miami Saturday with her mother for two weeks on the beach.

It may be her last vacation.

The trip will fulfill a wish made by the 6-year-old child when she became ill.

"Take me to the beach, mom, and let's play in the sand," bright-eyed Debbie asked. To encourage her daughter, Mrs. Francis January of 1314 Brewster St., SW, promised the beach trip when she got well.

Debbie hasn't recovered, and doctors don't have much hope. But Debbie's wish, nevertheless, will come true—thanks to Atlantans who chipped in money for the vacation.

The Clem Greene Pioneer School Club, Inc., heard about Debbie's wish. Knowing that this may be the girl's last vacation, club members became interested in making the dream a reality.

Word spread and contributions poured in from all over Atlanta to A. O. Cochran, who headed the project for the club. The Georgia and Atlanta Independent Auto Dealers Associations and the Greater Atlanta Horse Show Committee of the Shriners bought plane tickets and clothes.

Delta Airlines volunteered to sponsor the girl and mother in Miami for two weeks, taking care of hotel bills, transportation and medical expenses.

The National Biscuit Co., where Mrs. January works, gave her an additional week's vacation with pay.

Candidates Offer Color To Make Up for Issues

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

Some of the candidates for state office apparently are trying to make up in color what the campaign currently lacks in excitement and issues.

At least you get that impression from reading some of the campaign literature that is beginning to gush forth from the candidates' headquarters.

William M. Bates

You can also learn some amazing and wondrous things about the lives, backgrounds and qualifications of the office seekers from their campaign propaganda.

In a campaign paper published by Rep. Odom who is running for lieutenant governor, the candidate is described as "Georgia's young man on horseback" and a "man with a mission." It is not explained if Odom intends to campaign on horseback; but the paper says he does intend to take his mission to the people "from Rabun Gap to Tybee Light."

If some of the political terms are beginning to throw you, please refer to the guide to common expressions used by politicians published in this column on June 6.

"From Rabun Gap to Tybee Light," for example, is a "colorful means of describing the geographical expanse of Georgia from the mountains in the north to the Atlantic coast at the point where the Savannah River empties into the ocean."

ODOM BANDWAGON

Odom's paper, modestly called "The Odom Bandwagon," has this to say about the young man from Camden County:

"John Odom has stood for longer hours on the floor of the House and spoken more eloquently in the cause of the common people of Georgia than any man since the great Tom Watson. As lieutenant governor of Georgia, and the presiding officer in the State Senate, he will do no less."

It isn't explained just how he would be able to do this. Under the Constitution, the lieutenant governor is merely the presiding officer of the Senate; he does not have the right to speak from the floor.

Lee Roy Abernathy, who interrupted a career as a gospel-singing television performer and piano salesman to run for governor, is also campaigning as the folksy friend of the common man. In his opening campaign statement, Abernathy invites one and all to visit his campaign headquarters. Here's what he says you'll find:

FEEL AT HOME

"Friendly atmosphere . . . make you feel at home! We'll meet you and greet you with a smile. You won't feel out of place in Lee Roy's headquarters."

In the same statement, Lee Roy says this about himself:

"I hereby offer to you my varied experiences from the grass roots of the State of Georgia. From the fields to the factories . . . from the planting to the harvest . . . from the sorghum to the sawmill . . . I've been there! You see, I know your problems and the answers don't come out of a book!"

But it is Bruce Edwards, the young Atlanta attorney running against Comptroller General Zack D. Cravey, who seems to be setting the pace for colorful campaigning—at least in his campaign literature.

For his campaign opening, he promised to do the following:

"I will unveil the five-headed political monster, and reveal him in his true light, on the courthouse steps of Lawrenceville, Ga., cracking my 14-foot bullwhip which will echo and ring fear into the money changers and influence peddlers from the mountains to the sea.

"I am going to use this whip on any influence peddlers I catch at the Capitol during my administration. I will frail the living daylight out of these robbers of the taxpayers."

Edwards says he will put the thieves out of business "with the help of God, the people,' press, radio and television." And he plans to entertain the voter as well as enlighten him.

"My hillbilly band, the Okefenokee Travelers, will furnish music and other entertainment while we put the money changers in flight, and there will not be a dull moment in Georgia during this campaign and fight."

We can only hope that when Edwards starts swinging his 14-foot bullwhip that he'll have a lot of room or is an expert at it.

A Bulldozer Stops Short for Quints' Birth

TORONTO (AP) — Two ducks and five eggs stood off a bulldozer here until five ducklings hatched. They were abetted by a truck driver and a construction guard who kept the parent ducks fed and watered on an embankment where they nested over a prospective parking lot. All concerned, including the bulldozer and the relocated duck family, are doing well.

40 Are Trapped on Trolley As Electric Wire Falls Here

Approximately 40 passengers were trapped on a trolley momentarily Thursday when an electrical wire fell over the vehicle at Spring and Whitehall streets, SW, police said.

No one was injured.

The trolley operator, John T. Stanfield, calmed the passengers for 10 minutes until power on the line could be shut off. Passengers then were loaded on another bus.

Stanfield, a veteran of 13 years with the Atlanta Transit System, said the electricity was grounded out through the rubber tires of the vehicle. He added no one was in danger while on the machine.

AEC Completes Reactor For Atom Rocket Study

Lighter, More Powerful Device Believed 5 to 10 Years Away

By JOHN W. FINNEY
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday completion of an experimental reactor to be used in research on a nuclear-propelled rocket.

The reactor will be put through its initial ground tests late this year at the Nevada proving grounds.

The announcement marked a major step in the commission's three-year-old program to harness nuclear energy for rocket propulsion. The research has been done at the Los Alamos laboratory under the code name of Project Rover.

NOT INTENDED

There is no intention that the experimental reactor actually will be used for propelling a rocket in flight. This was indicated in the fact that the reactor is named Kiwi-A for the flightless New Zealand bird.

Through extensive ground tests, however, the reactor will show the way for future atomic power plants that could propel large rockets far into space.

On the basis of studies, scientists are convinced that nuclear power shows far more ultimate promise than conventional chemical fuels for propelling large rockets, particularly for extended flights into space.

LONG RANGE

It is conceded, however, that attainment of a nuclear-powered rocket flight is a long range objective, perhaps five to 10 years in the future.

The first nuclear-powered rocket — nicknamed "Old Pokey"— will use heat from the reactor to drive some propellant, such as hydrogen, through the rocket engine exhaust, thus furnishing thrust.

Even in the first versions, in the view of Rover scientists, the nuclear-powered rocket engine will furnish two to four times the specific impulse of conventional rocket fuels and the nuclear rocket will weigh half as much as a comparable conventional rocket.

Specific impulse, a measurement of the efficiency of a rocket fuel, represents the pounds of thrust supplied by one pound of fuel in one second.

The commission said the experimental reactor had been completely assembled—minus its nuclear components—at the commission's South Albuquerque Works by technicians of Los Alamos laboratory and ACF Industries.

Woman Wins a Stay In Fight for 46 Dogs

NEW YORK (AP)—A little gray-haired woman, who pleaded that the 46 dogs in her house are like babies to her, has won a stay against getting rid of them.

"Please, judge, have a heart," Mrs. Martha Hinrichsen said Thursday. "They're my babies. I love them. I give my full time to my animals."

Magistrate Walter J. Bayer, put off a decision. He said he would inspect the house to see whether her plea is justified.

"I don't see any reason why you should keep 46 dogs," he had said.

Mrs. Hinrichsen said the animals were as important to her as children might be. She declined the magistrate's suggestion that she sell them, but offered to give some of them away.

Neighbors complained about the dogs, kept in a five-story brownstone, formerly a boarding house.

2 Newspapers Banned For Attacking De Gaulle

Mendes-France Journal Suppressed For Running Story by Algerian Rebel

By ROBERT C. DOTY
(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

PARIS—The government of Premier de Gaulle prevented the appearance Thursday of two weekly newspapers containing articles critical of the government and deemed to endanger state security.

Seized late Wednesday on the initiative of the Army Ministry were this week's issues of L'Express, left-of-center weekly generally reflecting the views of former Premier Pierre Mendes-France, and France Observateur, a far-left but non-Communist journal.

L'Express was sequestered for having published a two-page article by Krim Belkacem, military leader of the 44-month-old Moslem nationalist rebellion in Algeria. In it, Belkacem derided as spurious the reported Moslem-French fraternization on which the De Gaulle government ostensibly bases its hopes for settlement in Algeria.

He alleged also that French forces had killed 600,000 Moslems since the rebellion began.

In the same issue, L'Express published another article alleging that a cabal of Fascist-minded paratroop colonels in Algiers were preparing new defiance of De Gaulle and, with the acquiescence of De Gaulle's delegate in Algeria, Gen. Raoul Salan, had taken over all power in Algeria.

France Observateur was seized —for the fifth time since November, 1955—for publishing a comment on the execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy in which it compared the repression, assassination, and executions in Hungary with those carried out by the French in Algeria.

This was the first action against the press by the De Gaulle government.

Cowboy with Yen for Money but Not Work Seized in $203,000 Swindle of Girl Friend

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A Nevada cowboy with a yen for high living was arrested by the FBI in Miami Thursday on a warrant charging him with swindling $203,000 from a woman he abandoned in an Arizona motel.

Raymond Lewis Headspeth, 37, Reno, Nev., was arrested at the home of a friend and held under $25,000 bond.

The arrest was revealed in Phoenix by Joseph P. McMahon, Arizona FBI agent in charge. McMahon gave these details:

Headspeth, an ex-convict, had $2,300 in his possession and agents found $184,000 in cash and a watch in a safety deposit box at Headspeth's hotel.

He was charged by the FBI in Miami with interstate transportation of stolen property taken from Mrs. Barbara Fox Doubleday, 37, a divorcee who met Headspeth in Reno.

The warrant filed in Phoenix accused him of traveling with Mrs. Doubleday from Nevada to Tucson, Ariz., in order to defraud her of $203,000.

Mrs. Doubleday, who told FBI agents she came from St. Louis, said she met Headspeth in Reno while seeking a divorce. She then cashed about $200,000 in bonds and left with Headspeth for Tucson where, McMahon said, they registered together at a Tucson motel June 20.

But their idyll was brief. McMahon said Mrs. Doubleday gave this account:

Headspeth took her money, some belongings and her car and drove off. He was last seen at the Tucson airport Saturday, casually flipping a silver dollar. Then he vanished until his arrest.

When FBI agents searched Headspeth's Miami hotel room, McMahon said, they found a prominently displayed magazine article, entitled:

"How to Make Money Without a Salary."

House Panel Slashed Aid by $482 Million, Chairman Confirms in Attack on 'Leak'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Passman (D-La) confirmed Thursday night that a House Appropriations subcommittees has cut 482½ million dollars from foreign aid funds.

Passman, head of the subcommittee, did so indirectly in saying there has been what he termed an accurate leak of information to that effect. Passman blamed "the spenders and the wasters" for the leak.

Passman said reports of the subcommittee's action were "deliberately leaked to give top-echelon people downtown more time to conduct their unprecedented pressure campaign for more money."

The entire Appropriations Committee will meet Friday to act on the subcommittee recommendations.

If sustained, the subcommittee action would mean a total cut of about 750 million dollars from the amount of money originally requested by President Eisenhower. Congress cut $266,500,000 from the original request in a separate authorization measure.

"It is to be regretted," Passman said, "that the subcommittee action leaked so quickly and so accurately. It makes it difficult for those charged with the responsibility of legislating wisely to discharge their duties in a manner to which the public is entitled.

"Within a matter of a few minutes after the subcommittee had acted, the leaks were purposely given to leaders of the House of Representatives and the top-echelon people downtown. . . ."

The subcommittee recommended $3,193,092,500 of the $3,950,092,500 requested by the President.

Cadillac Impounded for 10 Years, He Gets It (and $6,253) At Last

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Ten years ago police confiscated Walter Michalowski's $4,000 Cadillac, after accusing him of stealing it. Even after he proved he didn't steal it, the car remained impounded.

Michalowski went to court. Last week he got the car back. Thursday the State Supreme Court granted Michalowski $6,253 in depreciation and interest and directed Nassau County to pay in addition court costs totaling $7,000.

Half Million In Contracts Awaits Elvis

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pvt. Elvie Presley, the rock 'n' roll singer from Memphis, will step out of the army in 1960 and into over a half million dollars in contracts.

Col. Tom Parker of suburban Madison, his maanger, said Thursday two motion picture and one television contracts await Presley when he climbs back into civies.

The Ed Sullivan (CBS) television program has picked up an option—at $100,000—which calls for Elvis to appear on the show immediately upon discharge.

PATH OF CAR WHICH SHOT ACROSS ROAD, HITTING AND KNOCKING TRUCK OVER EMBANKMENT

Police Blamed Wreck on Low Shoulder onto Which Car Dropped; Shoulder Not Level with Pavement

Car Misses Pavement, Rams Truck, Injuring 2

Two women were injured Thursday when the car they occupied dropped off a stretch of paving onto a low shoulder on McDonough boulevard, SE, then shot across the road and struck a parked truck, police said.

They were Mrs. Kitty Chapman Foote, 65, of Athens, house mother at the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority at the University of Georgia, and her sister, Mrs. Essie Brogdon, 76, of McDonough.

Mrs. Foote was admitted to Grady Hospital with head and chest injuries, Patrolmen A. D. Trollinger and R. P. Pitts said. Mrs. Brogdon was treated at Grady for possible internal injuries and lacerations to the head and legs.

Patrolmen said Mrs. Foote was driving south in the 800 block of McDonough boulevard when a front wheel of the car dropped off the pavement at a point where the pavement is six or eight inches higher than the shoulder of the road.

Mrs. Foote attempted to pull the car back on the pavement, officers said. It shot across the road, narrowly missed a utility pole and struck a truck parked in a service station, hurling the truck over an embankment.

Residents of the area said they had filed repeated protests urging that the shoulders of the road be built up level with the pavement. They pointed out the pavement is narrow and the condition as it now exists is dangerous.

China Reds Fire 'Rebel' Officials

HONG KONG (AP)—Four Communist officials of far western China's Sinkiang Province have been fired for trying to seize the party leadership and for anti-party and rebellious activities, Peiping radio reported Thursday.

It identified one as mayor of Urumchi, capital of Sinkiang, the other three as directors of the Cultural and Civil Affairs departments and the vice director of the Trade Department.

Skeleton Found Here Is Believed Missing Boy's

A skeleton found on Habersham road near Roswell road is believed to be that of a 16-year-old Atlanta youth reported missing on May 12, police said Thursday.

Detectives J. G. Adams and M. J. Maloof said in the missing person report the youth was reported wearing clothes identical with those found on the skeleton.

The youth's father, contacted in Savannah, returned to Atlanta Thursday night to view the clothing but was unable to make a positive identification, detectives said.

The teeth will be submitted to a dentist who had done work for the youth in an effort to secure a positive identification, detectives said.

KOTLSRUHE, Germany (UPI) — The West German Supreme Court Thursday sentenced Czech secret service agent Miroslav Zarko to four years at hard labor for espionage.

Hot Races Are Shaping In DeKalb

DeKalb County's political races opened at full speed Thursday night as candidates in the September Democratic primary launched their campaigns at the Mountain View Civic Club.

One of the hottest battles shapes up between Judge Hubert Morgan of the DeKalb Civil-Criminal Court and Decatur lawyer Richard Thibadeau.

Thibadeau says that Judge Morgan, appointed to office by Gov. Griffin, "is not fulfilling his duties to DeKalb County."

Judge Morgan told the group that, "I've been taken to task before and I've met the challenge."

Other candidates appearing at the rally were J. O. (Jim) Bowen, candidate for county commissioner from District 3; E. A. (Archie) Mitchell, also a commission candidate from District 3; Charlie Parker, commissioner from District 2, seeking reelection; W. Ralph Buice, candidate for state comptroller-general, and Al Jennings and Joe McDow, candidates for the Georgia House of Representatives.

MOVIE REVIEW

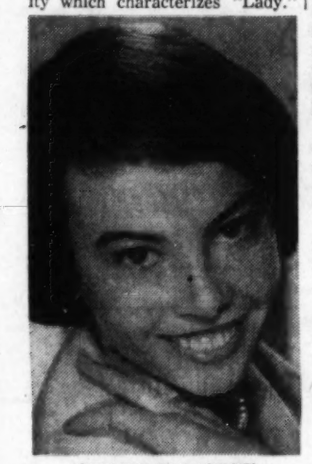

You'll Soar to Cloud Nine After Seeing Lilting 'Gigi'

By PAUL JONES

The members of the team which translated "My Fair Lady" into one of the most superb musicals Broadway has ever seen have combined their efforts in one of the most liltingly lovely musicals of the decade—a film entitled "Gigi" which now is showing at Loew's Grand.

Loew's has wisely chosen to show this picture in a special, reserved-seat engagement. This is the type attraction which deserves this type treatment. It is the nearest thing to a Broadway show on the screen that we have had in many years.

Effervescent, sophisticated, magnificently photographed "Gigi" has some of the magical quality which characterizes "Lady." It is filmed against a background of the old country charm of Paris at the turn of the century and its music is typical of the other work by the team of Alan J. Lerner and Frederick Loewe.

STARS IN 'GIGI'
Leslie Caron

I think everyone who emerged from Loew's Grand Theater after seeing this film Thursday night must have felt like he was walking on air. The performances of Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, Eva Gabor, Hermione Gingold are sheer acting magic. The sprightly spirit of their characterizations is one of the big factors in the wholly delightful screenplay's success.

I thought, at first, that Maurice Chevalier was the main cog in the play's wheel. Then Leslie Caron, as the impish little girl who grows up seemed to be the "whole show." But, I guess the music is actually the star of the show. It establishes the wonderful mood for the piece.

The story of "Gigi" was originally told by Colette in a French novel. It later was adapted for the Broadway stage in a successful play. It is a simple plot about a mischievous teen-ager who grows up and of how her romantic adventures affect the lives of some interesting people.

Actually the story is not of too much importance. It's one of those things which is a framework for the musical numbers and some delightful make-believing, a sort of modern-day fairy tale.

But, we strongly recommend it to anybody who wants to get off on "cloud nine" for the best part of two hours.

Norfolk Citizens Prepare For Fall School-Closings

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A group of Norfolk citizens has formed an educational foundation to help meet the "emergency created by the desegregation decisions and the probable closing of some or all of our public schools" in September.

Application for a charter was mailed to the state corporation commission Wednesday by five incorporators who said in a joint statement Thursday the proposed foundation "will be nonpolitical and devoted entirely to seeing that our children are educated."

"The foundation," the statement read, "will operate as nearly as possible in the same manner that the public schools now operate. The curriculum will be substantially the same; the teachers will be paid at the same rate as those in the public schools, and a superintendent will be engaged."

James G. Martin IV, an attorney who is one of the incorporators, said the foundation would operate schools on a racially segregated basis.

Other incorporators are W. I. McKendree, president of the city council of PTA's and a member of the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties; William Moultrie Guerry, an attorney; Hal J. Bonney, a history teacher at Norview High School; and Kathleen S. Griffin, past president of the city council of PTA's.

TEACHERS' LEAVE

The incorporators said the foundation would operate this way:

When a school is closed, the school board will be asked to grant its teachers leaves of absence so they can be employed by the foundation.

If the governor of Virginia finds the school can be reopened on a segregated basis, these teachers and their pupils will return. If the governor finds the school cannot be reopened on a segregated basis, he will be asked to authorize the city to issue a temporary use permit, or to lend, lease or sell the school to the foundation.

"Suits and injunctive demands are to be expected, and a capable team of public spirited attorneys will be engaged to serve without cost to the foundation," the incorporators said.

(U.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman ruled several years ago the State of Virginia could not lease Seashort State Park to private interests for racially segregated use.)

STATE GRANTS

The incorporators said a major portion of the funds necessary to finance the foundation's operations would be provided by state tuition grants made available to the parents of displaced school children. Tuition grants have been devised as a part of Virginia's program of massive resistance to racial integration of public schools.

Additional funds will be sought from business establishments, organizations and individuals, and a large contribution will be asked of the Norfolk Community Fund, "even if it means some curtailment of the charities now served," the incorporators said. "It is hard to conceive of any cause more worthy, or indeed necessary, than educating our young boys and girls," they added.

Indonesians Seize Rebels' Last Bastion

JAKARTA (UPI) — Central government troops Thursday captured Menado, the rebel capital of North Celebes and the last major stronghold of the revolutionary government proclaimed Feb. 15, the government announced officially.

It said Menado fell at 3 p.m. (2 a.m. EDT).

Army spokesman Lt. Col. Rudy Pirngadi said loyalist troops swept through the little village of Kapuragi on the outskirts of Menado at 11 a.m. and that the invasion spearhead drove on to Menado, entering the city four hours later. He said government troops were occupying the rebel capital.

The fall of Menado signified the end of organized resistance to President Sukarno's government by the "young colonels" who issued an ultimatum to the Jakarta government last Feb. 10 to resign within five days or face a revolt. They proclaimed their provisional Indonesian government in Padang, Sumatra, when Sukarno rejected the demand.

Body Found in Lake; Family Feared Dead

The discovery of a man floating face down in Allatoona Lake Thursday gave rise to fears that an entire family might have perished in a boating accident.

Cobb County Police Chief Cecil Holt said there was no identification on the body. He added that two pairs of trousers and a pair of shoes found on a bank near the body gave rise to fears that two youths also might have drowned.

Two fishermen spotted the body floating in a section of the lake west of the four-lane highway bridge a mile north of Acworth. The two, Ralph Blanchard and Glenn Morris, of Austell, floated it to the shore and spread an alarm.

The police chief said the body was in approximately 14 feet of water in an area sometimes used for swimming.

The clothing and shoes found on the bank, Holt said, would be the size for 12-year-old boys.

Police departments over the area were checked for missing persons and nothing was found. Holt said this could indicate that an entire family had been wiped out, either in a boating accident or while attempting to rescue someone who got into trouble while swimming.

Let Savior Pick Mate, Girl Advised

QUESTION: I am a Christian girl, and am considered to be reasonably attractive. But I'm disappointed in that fellows just don't go for me. I'm like any girl, and would like to date. Is it possible for a girl to be too straitlaced for even nice boys?

L. O.

ANSWER: No, not for the kind of boy you deserve. Remember that many dates are brought about by physical desire and only incidentally because of genuine appreciation of the finer qualities one may possess. As one who is dedicated to Christ, you want more than a boy who is drawn to you physically.

As a Christian, you must believe that God has a plan for you, just as He has for every life. God once said to an ancient king, "I have surnamed thee though thou hast not known Me." Isaiah 45, verse 4. Much more then, God has a plan for your life, seeing you have given it to Him.

What it means is that somewhere, there is God's choice of a young man for you, and you would never be happy with any other. Rather than to spend your energy being concerned over your problem, commit it to the Lord, and He will direct in this as in every other matter of life.

Explorer III Dying After 32,000,000 Miles

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — As the Army Explorer III scientific earth satellite, approached a fiery death reentering the atmosphere, it had traveled 32,000,000 miles since it was launched March 26.

Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, commanding general of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, said the 3-pound space pioneer had made a "remarkable contribution to scentific knowledge."

At its main scientific mission Explorer III conducted, for the first time, a comprehensive survey of total cosmic ray intensity above the earth with respect to both time and position. This was done by means of a small magnetic tape recorder which collected data during the total orbital period and transmitted it to a single point on earth.

Thursday was Explorer III's 92nd day in orbit. It was launched in a slightly eccentric orbit, which brought its path closer to the earth than had been anticipated. This shortened the lifetime of the satellite, but greatly increased the scope of its scientific investigation.

At the time of the launching the orbit extended out to beyond 1,700 miles, and came to within 117 miles of the earth. Continuous cosmic radiation data was gained in this more than 1,500-mile altitude range.

Gradually, at the rate of several hundred feet a day, the satellite swung closer to the earth. By the 90th day its perigee (closest) distance to earth was estimated at 99 miles. The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory estimates it would fall to the earth June 27. Both transmitters had ceased to function reliably in early June. They fulfilled their lifetime expectancy of about two months.

Explorer III traveled approximately 361,500 miles during its first 24 hours in orbit. The orbital period was 115.76 minutes.

Scientists predicted that on the 90th day the vehicle would travel 388,000 miles with an orbital period of 92.2 minutes, decreasing at a rate of three-fourths of a minute per day. Apogee, at 375 miles, was falling by 60 miles a day.

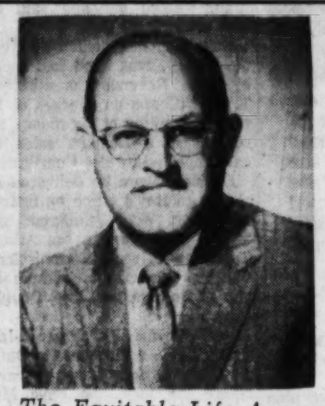

Explorer III was very similar in composition to Explorer I, which was launched on Jan. 31 and became the free world's first scientific earth satellite.

Explorer I has travelled some 52,000,000 miles since Jan. 31. Its initial perigee and apogee were 223 and 1,583 miles respectively. By today the perigee had dropped about five miles, and the Army placed the approximate lifetime of the satellite at about seven years.

Preliminary results from the scientific apparatus, plus data from visual tracking of the two satellites, indicates that:

1. Cosmic radiation at higher altitudes is considerably more intense than had been anticipated.

2. Man can control the temperature within a space vehicle to that easily acceptable for human survival.

Goldfine Bought Stock For Adams, Probe Told

helped me or any member of my family financially, while my children were in school."

3. That Goldfine had "ever bought into any venture for me" and had "never purchased for me, or participated with me in the purchase of any security or other property."

Adams asserted it was "incredible to me that any committee of the Congress would permit a completely irresponsible witness to use the committee as a forum for making such vicious statements."

Before he read the statement, Adams told newsmen that "this, gentlemen, is all I will have to say this evening."

MORE TODAY

Fox will have more to say Friday when he is scheduled to return to the witness stand.

Adams followed "very closely" the testimony of Fox, Hagerty said. "Virtually everything he has said in relation to Adams is deliberate and malicious falsehood."

President Eisenhower, Hagerty said, "knows of these falsehoods."

Fox gave his long-awaited and explosive testimony to the House Special Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight which has been investigating improper influence on federal regulatory agencies.

DENIED AID

It was before this group that Adams denied last week he had sought and got preferred treatment for his long-time friend, New England industrialist Goldfine. But he acknowledged that he had been "imprudent" in approaching federal agencies on behalf of Goldfine from whom he had accepted gifts.

Later, Roger Robb of Washington and Samuel P. Sears of Boston, lawyers for Goldfine, asserted in a statement that Goldfine would testify under oath that he had not assisted Adams financially nor purchased securities for him, and that Adams has no interest in Goldfine Mills. Goldfine is scheduled to appear before the subcommittee Tuesday.

They also said they had checked with Goldfine, Adams and Goldfine's son, Horace Maxwell Goldfine, and that they stated "emphatically" that the statements quoted by Fox on the FTC matter had never been made.

TELL OUT

Fox, who was born in the tenement district of South Boston, testified that he and Goldfine once were friends but fell out over a complex business deal.

He swore that on May 10, 1955, he and Goldfine stayed at the Sheraton-Carleton Hotel in Washington. Both were in the capital on business, he said.

He went on to say that he was invited to Goldfine's suite where he met Goldfine, Adams and Goldfine's son. He said he was invited in at the "tail end of the meeting" by Goldfine who told him, "Let's have a drink to my friend, Gov. Adams. He never lets his friends down, and he is not letting me down this time."

He said he asked the reason for the toast and Goldfine replied: "Oh, those so and so's at the Federal Trade Commission are giving one of my mills and my son and some other people a hard time, and Gov. Adams is going to take care of that for me."

WHISPERED TALKS

After this, he continued, Adams took Goldfine into the far corner of the suite "and they had a whispered but agitated conversation for a matter of a minute or two." Later, he said, he, Goldfine and Adams had dinner.

Goldfine's lawyers, Robb and Sears, confirmed that the hotel meeting took place but asserted: "It is Mr. Goldfine's recollection that this so-called meeting was simply a social occasion when Gov. Adams 'dropped by' for a short time to meet Mr. Fox. Mr. Goldfine is prepared to testify to the facts about this under oath."

They also criticized the House subcommittee for permitting Fox to "defame" Goldfine and Adams. They noted they had asked that Fox be heard in executive session but this was overruled by the subcommittee.

It was during the time of the hotel meeting that the FTC was investigating three of Goldfine's textile mills for alleged mislabeling of fabrics.

SAID FIXED

Fox also related that later in 1955 Goldfine indicated to him in a conversation in Boston that "Mr. Adams had taken care of the matter."

He also recalled meeting Adams on two occasions in the Copley-Plaza, now the Sheraton-Plaza, hotel in Boston. He said he was invited there by Goldfine. Adams has acknowledged he had accepted Goldfine's hotel hospitality on several occasions and that Goldfine had paid the bills, which amounted to about $2,000 up until his last visit on May 5-6 of this year.

Under questioning by Robert W Lishman, subcommittee counsel, Fox said that Goldfine had purchased securities for the late Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts. He knew this, he said, because he sold Goldfine the securities, common stock of the U. S. Leather Corp. He said Goldfine had purchased 2,000 shares, half for Gov. Dever and half for himself.

SOME VENTURE

On securities for Adams, he said: "I know only what Mr. Goldfine told me. He said he had bought some ventures for Mr. Adams."

Fox went on that Goldfine "did not specify how" Adams had an interest in Goldfine textile mills. He also testified that Goldfine had said he "helped Mr. Adams financially and very materially with the (Adams) children in school."

Asked whether he had known of stock purchases for public officials by Goldfine, Fox said, "Yes, he told me it was his habit to purchase securities for public officials because it was one way to help them in return" for helping him.

Griffin Dedicates Port at Bainbridge purpose only a few remaining dams would be necessary on the Chattahoochee River north of Columbus and below Atlanta which would bring navigable waters to the Lanier Dam and thence to Gainesville," Griffin declared.

"The benefits to be derived by the cities on the Chattahoochee from Gainesville to the Gulf of Mexico cannot be estimated in dollars and cents and perhaps such a dynamic proposal will be realized in the not-too-distant future," he added.

Griffin said that planning is now under way to develop Augusta into an inland port on the Savannah River and to establish a state ports facility for ocean-going vessels at Brunswick.

The governor also referred to the ports authority's latest plan to purchase the Central of Georgia Railroad's waterfront property at Savannah.

"I hope they get it," Griffin declared. "It is needed. With the proper development at Savannah, we will forge ahead."

The ports authority will meet here Friday to consider a plan to call in its present outstanding bonds and to float a new 9 million dollar bond issue to finance the purchase of the Central's property.

R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, mayor of Bainbridge and the governor's brother and aide, presided at the dedication ceremonies.

Belgians Swear In Eyskens' Cabinet

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The new Social-Christian cabinet of Prime Minister Gaston Eyskens was sworn in Thursday by King Baudouin in a brief ceremony here. Eyskens told newsmen afterward he would present his government to Parliament next Tuesday for confirmation.

Grand Jury Subpoenas Tax Men

Friday reportedly were attending the meeting.

Maurice Draluck, manager of Daffodil, said that several persons were in the sales tax director's office on March 17, 1957, when he said he handed an envelope containing the money to a secretary.

Draluck swore in an affidavit that the secretary took the money into the room, handed it to a man, walked out and said she had given it to Ray.

Ray, who has denied receiving the money, was fired last month by State Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams on charges of improper handling of tax money and records in a Douglas sales tax case reported by The Constitution.

Draluck swore he delivered the money to Ray's office on instructions from W. W. Coleman, who was a consultant in the Atlanta sales tax office. Commissioner Williams also fired Coleman for his alleged part in the Douglas case.

Draluck and his father-in-law, Irving Levy, who owns the Daffodil firm, already have appeared before the jury. So have Mrs. Anne Wright, former secretary for Joe Ray, and three secretaries presently employed in the Sales Tax Office.

Meanwhile, Fulton County's special assistant solicitor Thursday said his investigation of the state government "will be a sustained and systematic searching out of wrongdoing."

A. Paul Cadenhead said there will be no "witch hunt" in connection with his investigation.

Gov. Griffin had commented that he would welcome an investigation of state government "except those which are predicated by politics and witch hunts for political reasons."

The governor made his statement in commenting on the Fulton County Commission's appropriation of $50,000 to investigate misconduct in the state government.

further. It was quite uncomfortable."

The best ride they got was one of about 200 miles from Cairo, Ga., to Atlanta, with Tallahassee businessman Ernest E. Collins in a late-model Cadillac.

"We can squeeze into some of the smaller cars," Scrimgeour said. "The dogs lie on the floorboard. Our only baggage is a suitcase and a knapsack."

Scrimgeour, who works in a factory for the blind at Miami, and Lambert, a University of Chicago student, said the long hitchhiking trip is "a real adventure."

"But it's more than that," said Lambert. "We are trying to publicize the need for improving conditions for the blind."

They said their hitchhiking should emphasize to the public that blind persons can do most anything that can be done by a person with sight.

They said society is too prone to look upon blind persons as hopelessly handicapped persons who must be sheltered. "They want us to work in some sheltered job, like a broom factory," Scrimgeour said, "when industry could be taking better advantage of our talents."

'War of Worlds' Panics Portugal

LISBON (UPI) — H. G. Wells' play, "War of the Worlds," was cut off the air here Wednesday night when a radio adaptation caused panic at Carcavelos, a residential area 10 miles from here.

The reaction was similar to one that resulted from a radio adaptation in the United States by Orson Welles in the '30s.

The radio play said Martians had landed at Carcavelos and were pushing on toward Lisbon.

Trotter, attending a Georgia Bar Assn. meeting in Savannah Thursday, said the committee will mainly be interested in recommending legislation "strengthening the ties that are now placed around the expenditure of state funds."

It will also consider laws aimed at preventing future recurrences of scandals such as those recently brought to light in the press, Trotter said.

The most unselfish purchase a man makes

He can't wear it. Or drive it. Or display it for people to see. Probably the most unselfish purchase a man makes is life insurance.

Yet this purchase does bring something to its owner. For example, the feeling that he is truly a good provider. That he is meeting his responsibilities to those who mean the world to him.

What is this feeling worth?—Plenty, any father can tell you. He has a feeling of security that could be gained in no other way.

Yes, life insurance is an unselfish purchase. But it brings great and satisfying rewards to the purchaser just the same.

Talmadge Warns Against Alaskan Statehood

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sen. Talmadge warned Thursday that admission of Alaska to statehood would set a dangerous precedent that would destroy the geographical solidarity of the United States.

It would lead, he said, to demands for statehood from Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and even the 2,000 Pacific island "trust territories" now under U.S. protection.

"I fear, Mr. President, that we may be about to put ourselves into the dangerous and undesired position of attempting to become, instead of the United States of America, the United States of the World," he told the Senate.

"How then will we be depicted by our enemies who already are propagandizing the world with the charge that we are a nation of imperialists?", Talmadge asked.

"Before we act to make Alaska a state, we should ask ourselves these two questions:

"Where do we go from there?

"Where can we stop?"

Noting that Alaska would forever be separated from the continental United States, Talmadge pointed out that an enemy could at any time surround it without once violating our national sovereignty or territorial integrity.

"Those who cannot forsee the potential dangers and difficulties inherent in admitting a non-contiguous state," the Georgian said, "would do well to reflect upon the experience of the French in attempting to absorb the country of Algeria into metropolitan France."

Talmadge said the arguments for Alaskan statehood stem from emotion rather than logic and declared that the real issues have been obscured by "specious slogans."

Alaskans themselves are divided, he said, on the statehood issue and have had an opportunity to vote on the question of immediate statehood.

He quoted editorial opposition to immediate statehood from daily newspapers in Juneau and Anchorage and the results of a poll taken by Rep. Miller (R-Neb).

Miller recently asked 10 radio stations and five newspapers in Alaska to request Alaskans to write him their views on immediate statehood, Talmadge said.

Within three weeks the Nebraska congressman received 1,394 letters opposing statehood now and only 522 favoring it, Talmadge told the Senate.

Although the Constitution provides that Congress may vote a new state into the Union, Talmadge said the Federalist Papers and the Articles of Confederation show that the nation's forefathers really intended that no new state should be admitted without approval of three-fourths of the states.

A constitutional amendment, as proposed by Rep. James C. Davis (D-Ga), should be adopted, Talmadge said, to provide for admission to statehood by vote of the states.

"The granting of statehood, Mr. President, is an irrevocable act," he said. "The outcome of the War Between the States determined for all time that, once admitted, a state cannot leave the Union.

"Therefore, it is incumbent upon us as members of the Senate, to make sure beyond any shadow of a doubt that the admission of any new state will not be a mistake for which the nation will have to pay the consequences for all time to come."

Thurmond Blocks Debate Limit Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thursday night, as speeches went on, Sen. J. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) blocked a move by acting Democratic leader Mansfield (Mont.) to limit debate on the controversial measure to make Alaska the 49th state.

Mansfield said he was "extremely distressed" by Thurmond's objection which blocked a proposal to limit debate beginning next Monday and thus bring the bill to a vote next week.

Conferees Clear $8 Million for Augusta Reactor

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Additional expenditure of several million dollars at the Savannah River atomic energy plant near Augusta is proposed in a $193 million atomic building program approved by the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

The authorization bill as recommended by the Eisenhower administration and okayed by the House-Senate panel includes $8,000,000 to build a heavy water component test reactor at the huge Savannah River plant.

It also includes $15,000,000 for plant modifications and additions for processing of spent fuels at three atomic energy plants in the nation—the Savannah River installation, the Hanford plant in the state of Washington, and one in Idaho. No breakdown was given as to what extent the Savannah River plant will share in that $15,000,000 item.

A Quarter Of Georgians Lives Here

Almost one of every four Georgians lives in the four-county Atlanta Metropolitan area, the Metropolitan Planning Commission reported Thursday.

In 1950, it was one in five who lived here.

DeKalb County led the four county area (that includes Fulton, Cobb and Clayton) in growth during the past two years with 23,997 new citizens. Fulton was second with 17,508.

Cobb was next with 10,019, followed by Clayton with 3,462. The total number of newcomers in the metropolitan area in the past two years is 54,986. About 44 per cent of them moved into DeKalb County.

The Negro population of the four counties is now 22.5 per cent of the total, the lowest percentage recorded since 1900.

A breakdown shows there are 716,300 white persons and 207,700 Negroes in the metropolitan area. The white population increased by 36.4 per cent in the past two years while Negroes increased by 22.5 per cent.

What is known as Atlanta's Northeast section continued to show the greatest growth. The largest increases came in Brookhaven, Chamblee, Doraville, Tucker, North Druid Hills and the Medlock and Clarkston sections.

Fulton County, despite DeKalb's greater population growth, continued to show the largest increase in the number of homes built. Since 1950, dwelling units in Fulton went up by 32,148 while DeKalb increased 29,209.

Boos in the Night

All the world loves a winner, unless it happens to be the New York Yankees or Uncle Sam. A stranger visiting the Stadium might think he'd dropped in on a Dick Nixon rally in Latin America.

When Detroit was slapping the champs around a few days ago, you couldn't identify the home team with an applause meter. It was the same story a couple of nights earlier when the Yanks were entertaining their junior partners from Kansas City.

Outlar

The Bomber faithful, asked to explain the hostile attitude, shrug their shoulders and point an accusing finger at National League fans.

"Those are Giant and Dodger fans," one official member of the Yankee hierarchy said. "They're just mad with baseball in general, and they take it out on the Yankees."

Ironically, Mickey Mantle, one of the game's brightest satellites, is the prime target of the boo birds. How the Mick fares at the plate has no bearing on the reaction from the stands. A large segment of the customers gives Mickey the verbal works when he hits a home run, strikes out or tips a foul.

They even tee off on the Old Professor, which is somewhat astonishing in view of his past performance. As some original thinker among the baseball operators once remarked, winning too much is almost as bad as not winning. Unless the schedule can be rearranged to pit the Yankees against the Tigers more frequently, Mr. Stengel isn't likely to increase his popularity this summer.

Few cheers have gone out from this space for the Yankees, but it was indeed surprising to note that the most successful team of all-time is unpopular in its own home town.

—Danny Boy Raps the Old Homestead

Baseball teams often draw criticism from the most unusual sources. For example, there's the case of Danny O'Connell biting the hand that fed him for three seasons.

Danny O'Connell

Mr. O'Connell, now employed by San Francisco, has surveyed the National League scene and announced that Milwaukee doesn't have spirit, drive and incentive. Which may, or may not be true. Of more importance is the fact that they don't have O'Connell.

Each spring it was customary for baseball authors to write from Florida that the Braves would not win the pennant until the keystone combo was altered. The Braves almost made it in '56, even with O'Connell. John Quinn then dealt Danny to the Giants in a trade which made Milwaukee famous. It brought Red Schoendienst and a pennant to Sudsville.

You seldom hear major leaguers knock their own teammates, but some of the Braves put the rap on O'Connell. They had nothing against the guy personally, but batting averages of .279, .225 and .239 just didn't spell pennant. Turn about is fair play, and maybe Danny is merely hurling a few barbs at some old "friends."

—Christmas Comes Early in Slagtown

Atlanta fans are so accustomed to pennants that they are blase about the Southern race. When Mobile shoved our heroes into second place Wednesday night, the reaction was virtually nil. But our Birmingham agent reports that Messrs. Alf Van Hoose and Benny Marshall danced a jig with Eddie Glennon leading the band.

Cal Ermer

In case you are a new resident in our area, you have to check the Southern record book to understand why first place means so much to Baron backers. Cal Ermer, the present pilot, was promoted to the second grade the last time Birmingham raised a flag in 1931.

When it was mentioned here a couple of months ago that Atlanta should turn the Southern race into a rout, the Birmingham delegation started to chuckle. After all, the Barons had swept a series from Atlanta at Poncey. They didn't laugh for long. Manager Buddy Bates' men surged to the front and remained there until Wednesday.

Now the Crackers are in the midst of a peculiar slump. They look like champs at home and chumps on the road. However, there's nothing to be alarmed about. The Barons have often been out front in June, even in August and September, but they always wilt in the stretch.

Perhaps Mr. Ermer has a different breed of steed this year. For sure, he's the most talented manager Eddie Glennon has employed. But the Crackers are the Yankees of the minors, and class will tell. Birmingham is noted for optimism and second place finishes.

Tribe Fires Bragan, Hires Joe Gordon

New Manager Reports Today

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians fired Bobby Bragan as manager Thursday night and hired Joe Gordon, former Indian and New York Yankee second baseman and now an insurance salesman in Sacramento, Calif.

"We are making this change with the hope that there will be a general improvement in the club," General Manager Frank Lane said. The Indians lost to the Boston Red Sox 2-1 Thursday and are now 12 games behind the New York Yankees and tied with Baltimore for seventh in the American League.

Lane said Gordon would leave San Francisco Thursday night and arrive in Cleveland Friday.

The 43-year-old Gordon has been hired for the remainder of this season and all of next, Lane said. Gordon already has indicated, Lane added, that he will keep the present Tribe coaching staff of Mel Harder, Eddie Stanky, Red Kress and Bill Lobe.

Lane said he made the decision to fire Bragan because he felt "Bobby wasn't getting out of the club what he might have gotten despite injuries to key men."

Most important among the injuries have been arm trouble for Herb Score, the Indians' southpaw strikeout king, and an ankle fracture that has kept first baseman Vic Wertz, most valuable Indian of 1957, sidelined since spring training.

Bragan took the decision well, Lane said, and was "possibly less shocked than I was."

This is the first time since 1935 when Walter P. Johnson and Steve O'Neill shared the field chief's job that the Indians have changed managers during the season. Lane said it was no overnight decision to cut Bragan adrift and was not the result of any big thing, but a succession of little things.

"After all, if you have a sales manager and he isn't making the sales, you get rid of him and get somebody else," Lane said.

Bragan, who will be 41 in October, played in the National League with Philadelphia and Brooklyn before beginning his managerial career with Fort Worth of the Texas League in 1948. He had managed Pittsburgh to a pair of seventh-place finishes in the National League in 1956-57 when he was hired by Hank Greenberg, Lane's predecessor, to replace Kerby Farrell as Cleveland manager.

Lane said Thursday night that when he took on the general manager's job here last year, he "had no misgivings about Bragan."

'...BE SOME CHANGES MADE' 'THERE'LL BE CHANGES...'

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

MOBILE — His Crackers haven't been doing any rocking or rolling this week, so Buddy Bates is singing the blues.

And the pilot of the Atlanta club is changing his theme song from "Gold Mine In the Sky" to "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

Just what those changes might be he wasn't sure immediately after the Atlanta-Mobile Thursday night game was postponed because of wet grounds at Hartwell Field.

"When a club hits as poorly as we have during the first three games of the series here, some changes are in order," grimaced Bates, eyeing even his gin rummy hand suspiciously.

"Mike Krsnich is due to report here either tonight or tomorrow, and he may fit into our plans. Earl Mann (Cracker owner) told me over the phone from Atlanta that Mike has played at least a couple of games somewhere, and if he's in shape, I may use him at once.

"It's a cinch we can't blame our three losses in Mobile on our pitchers. We didn't give the Bears many runs either. But when a team gets only 12 singles—and no extra-base hits—in three games, as we did, something has to be done."

Bates plans to pitch Bob Giggie (1-2) and Ken MacKenzie (6-3) against Stan Kolakowski (3-3) and Don Schaeffer (7-3) in a Friday night twin bill as the teams make up the rainout.

Buddy Bates

Sammy Meeks

Starting time will be 7:30 Atlanta time.

"Since Kolakowski and Schaeffer are right-handers, I probably won't shake up the lineup as much as I will the next time we face a left-hander," mused Bates, cringing at the thought of three straight four-hitters by southpaws Jake Striker, Wally Seward, and Dick Stigman.

Crux of the Cracker trouble for the moment is a lack of hitting and a complete collapse by the "Power Department." It's that simple, although it must be noted that Mobile admittedly has the Southern Association's finest hurling corps.

Only Dick Phillips, with three hits in 11 trips and two RBI in the three games, and Bruce Barmes, with three for nine, have held up their shares of the offensive load here.

Ebba St. Claire has two for eight. Thus, ironically, that trio of left-handed swingers has produced 8 of the 12 hits off the Bears' glittering southpaws. Two of the other four safeties were spanked by lefties also, Poochie Hartsfield and Bob Montag. Montag has whiffed 6 of 10 times.

John DeMerit continues to display a fine glove in centerfield, but Milwaukee's $100,000 bonus boy has managed only one hit in 10 trips here and is in the throes of a 3-for-32 slump. That's a batting average of .094.

The "streaking" of Chuck Cottier, who came here with a 10-for-22 binge that included an extra base hit in each of his last six games, was checked unceremoniously by the Bear lefties. He's one for 10. Hartsfield is one for seven.

Sammy Meeks, who carried the Crackers on his back offensively most of the year, hasn't solved Mobile pitching for a hit in nine trips even though he is notoriously tough when facing southpaws. Buck Riddle is zero for three.

As a team the Crackers are batting an unlusty .143 in Mobile.

Bob Hartman, Charlie Gorin, Paul Cave and Jim Umbricht all pitched winning brands of ball

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hector Lopez' third home run of the game in the twelfth inning Thursday night gave the Kansas City Athletics an 8-6 victory over Washington and their first six-game winning streak since moving to Kansas City.

The victory went to veteran knuckleballer Murry Dickson, the A's fourth pitcher of the night.

Buhl Shoulder Needs Surgery, Physician Says

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Pitcher Bob Buhl of the Milwaukee Braves may require surgery to end his shoulder trouble, the team announced Thursday.

Buhl was examined by Dr. Anthony DePalma of Philadelphia, and he confirmed an earlier diagnosis of bicipital tendonitis made by physicians in Milwaukee.

The Braves said that Buhl will return to Milwaukee for further heat and injection treatments and will not throw a ball for at least three weeks.

Buhl was placed on the disabled list June 21. He will, however, continue to work out with the team to stay in shape.

Yanks Gibson, Mulloy, Patty, Fageros Win at Wimbledon

Perry, Grant, Carter Lose

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Defending champion Althea Gibson was far off form Thursday but still had more than enough to defeat Mexico's Yolande Ramirez in the Wimbledon Tennis championships.

The tall, 30-year-old New Yorker finally began clicking in the second set as she overcame the tiny, 23-year-old Mexican senorita, 9-7, 6-2, and gained the fourth round of singles.

Miss Gibson's victory was one of five scored by Americans in singles play Thursday. Four other Yanks were eliminated, including pain-wracked Janet Hopps of Seattle.

This cut Uncle Sam's fast-dwindling tennis forces to four men and four women. America's main hopes for titles here rest with the women. Only Barry MacKay, blistered racket hand and all, is rated a slight possibility to break through the Australians and Europeans in men's play.

Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif., Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla., and veterans Budge Patty and Gardnar Mulloy were the other American winners. Beaten in addition to Miss Hopps, who was seeded seventh, were Bob Perry and Gregory Grant of Los Angeles, and Nick Carter of San Francisco. The male losses were expected.

Miss Hopps and Chile's Luis Ayala were the only seeded players to lose and the third so far in the tournament. Third-seeded Dorothy Head Knode of New York was eliminated Wednesday.

Aussie Miss Upsets Hopps

Australia's high - ranking Mal Anderson and Neale Fraser, Sweden's Sven Davidson, and Denmark's Kurt Nielsen all had fairly easy victories. Top-seeded Ashley Cooper of Australia didn't play.

Miss Hopps has a slipped disc but played despite the injury. She bowed to Norma Marsh, a second-rate Australian player, 7-5, 9-7, in the second round. After the match she defaulted from doubles.

Patty, 34, eliminated Perry, 25, a fellow Californian, in a hard-fought five setter, 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4. Mulloy, 44, of Coral Gables, Fla., coasted to a 6-2, 6-4, 6-3 victory over South African John Hurry.

Two young Australians knocked out Carter and Grant in second round matches. Rod Laver beat Carter 4-6, 6-3, 12-10, 6-4. Bob Mark ousted Grant, 15-13, 0-6, 8-6, 6-2.

Miss Arnold joined Miss Gibson in the fourth round by downing Erika Vollmer of West Germany, 6-2, 8-6.

Miss Fageros defeated Italy's Silvano Lazzarino in the second round, 6-1, 7-5. The golden girl from Miami attracted the fans and the photographers by wearing the gold panties which had been tabooed by Wimbledon officials. She camouflaged them by wearing white lace panties over them.

Taking advantage of a sunny day which drew 25,300 spectators to Wimbledon's plush green acres, officials ran off all the second round and some third round singles matches in an effort to make up for lost time.

Rain and soggy courts in the last two days put the tournament behind schedule. Officials hope to clean up the third round Friday.

BECK'S ALMOST SURE HE'S RETIRED AS PRO

Ray Beck

Rugged Ray Beck, the former Georgia Tech and New York Giant football star, is "99 per cent sure I won't go back to the pro game this fall."

Contacted at the Atlanta office of the Cedartown - Atlanta Freight Lines, which he co-owns with brother Billy, Beck laughed when a reporter relayed Giant Coach Jim Lee Howell's message that "I'll get down on my hands and knees and crawl to Georgia if Ray only will come back this fall."

"That's mighty nice of Jim Lee. He's a heckuva' fine fellow. But I just can't get away from my business any more," Beck said.

"Should I rejoin the Giants, it would mean being away from my business from the latter part of July until December. And I just can't be away that long."

Beck, an All-American at Tech, starred for four years with the Giants. He announced his retirement in 1957, but was lured back for another season by New York.

Siebern's HR Throttles Donovan and Chisox, 4-3

Ex-Cracker Belted After Holding Leaders to One Hit in Six Innings

CHICAGO (AP) — Norm Siebern's solo homer in the seventh proved the victory margin in a 4-3 New York Yankee triumph over the Chicago White Sox Thursday before a crowd of 31,535, including 18,214 paid.

Norm Siebern

The Ladies' Day throng saw the first-place Yankees held by Dick Donovan to one hit until a four-hit spurt in the sixth produced three runs, two on a sharp single by Bill Skowron.

Neither Donovan nor Yank starter Johnny Kucks, who notched his sixth victory against three defeats, finished. Donovan was followed by Gerry Staley and Kucks, who left in a threatening Sox seventh, by Bobby Shantz and Art Ditmar.

Williams and Gernert Clout Cleveland, 2-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ted Williams' ninth-inning home run and Dick Gernert's game-tying homer in the seventh gave the Boston Red Sox a 2-1 decision Thursday over Cleveland. It was a pitchers' duel between winner Ike Delock and the Tribe's Cal McLish.

Williams led off the ninth with his ninth home run high into the upper right field stands.

Delock gave up 5 hits and struck out 12 and McLish yielded 6 hits and fanned 9.

Cleveland scored its run in the fourth inning on a single by Vic Power off Delock's glove and a double by Rocky Colavito.

Queen City Attracts 225 To Gainesville

Two-Day Meet Opens Friday; Spartanburg, Vestavia Enter

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

GAINESVILLE—The names are familiar . . . Jo Ann Martin, Nancy Chapman, Larry Chapman, Bill Davis. Only the format for the Queen City Invitational Swim extravaganza has changed.

For this largest of all Queen Cities, Gainesville expects around 225 entries and at least 14 teams competing for the eight Georgia AAU championship trophies. And they'll do it in two days, instead of the one day that served all in the previous seven years.

This time out, they'll dole out silverware for these divisions: midget boys and girls 10 and under, junior boys and girls 11-12, intermediate boys and girls 13-14, and junior men and women unlimited.

Two out-of-state teams are fore-Atlanta will send many contrast as large competitors. From Birmingham, Ala., comes the Vestavia Club. And from Spartanburg, S.C., the Spartanburg County Aquatic Assn. tingents. Included are the Avondale Swim Club, Cherokee Town and Country Club, Ansley Golf Club and the Emory Aquatic Club.

Opening the whole show, of course, will be the coaches' scratch meeting. That's down for a 9 a.m. shuffle Friday, and from there they'll hurry into the low-board diving at 10:45.

Half of the 52 events will be contested Friday. Trials for the medley relays, freestyles, etc., are on the agenda at 1 p.m., with finals at 7 p.m. Then Saturday, they return at 9 a.m. for more trials and again at 3 p.m. for more finals.

In between, the people of Gainesville will provide entertainment. A barbecue ends all the festivities at 5:30 Saturday, and a dance spices up the middle part of the program Friday night at 9.

These are names you'll hear more of: Midget boys, Lee Bradford of Avondale Swim Club; Jimmy Hawkins of the Atlanta Boys Club and Hugh Loomis of Ansley, and for the gals, Sherrill Phillips of Ansley, Betty Beck of Emory and Karen Hammond of Spartanburg.

Tommy Adams of Vestavia, Kenny Hobbs of Spartanburg and Stu Veal of Freddy's (Lanoue Club are threats in the junior boys; ditto for Rose Bradford of Avondale in the intermediate girls and Ricky Lanoue of Freddy's Club in the intermediate boys.

Junior women of promise are Jo Ann Martin and Mary Rosebush of the Cherokee Town and Country Club, Bunny Bergin of Avondale, Diane Jones of Ansley; and junior men of note are Bill Hargrett of Avondale, Rusty Redding of Spartanburg and Larry Chapman of Emory.

Clayton Deavers, head of the Parks and Recreation Board here, along with Emory's Ed Smyke and Tom McDonough are top members of the Invitational's steering committee.

Bragan Out, Gordon In As Tribe Boss

players at third base. But the Indians couldn't seem to find the key to unlock the door to a lineup that could win more than four games in a row and stay above the .500 mark.

Bragan was not at the news conference and could not be reached immediately.

Lane said he hoped Gordon, as a "more mature" type of manager could "bring order out of chaos."

'Gonna Be Rough For Awhile:' Gordon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "I guess it's gonna' be rough on me for a while back there," commented Joe Gordon Thursday night after he was named manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Gordon returns to manage the team for which he played second base before retiring in 1950. He will be handling a few of his former teammates—Bob Avila, Larry Doby, Mickey Vernon and Bob Lemon.

"I'm pretty much familiar with the club," he said, "and I think it's a pretty good team. They've been having a little pitching trouble."

He said his family will remain in Sacramento this summer.

Wright Leads Suggs By a Stroke in Open

DETROIT (AP)—Lanky Mickey Wright grabbed a one-stroke lead in the first round of the U. S. Women's Open Golf Tournament Thursday at Forest Lake Country Club.

The long - hitting blonde from Chula Vista, Calif, battled strong winds and rugged competition and finished the first day with a 74, one over par at the hilly layout.

Miss Wright, winner of the recent Ladies' PGA Championship but seldom an outstanding player in the Open, had a stroke advantage over a pair of former Open titlists, Betty Jameson of San Antonio and Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., and uncrowned champion Jackie Pung.

It was Mrs. Pung who apparently had won the 1957 Open only to lose it on a scoring technicality. Betsy Rawls, of Spartanburg, S.C., who was declared the winner after the Hawaiian housewife was disqualified, had a 79 Thursday.

Always strong off the tee, the 23-year-old Miss Wright capitalized on a good putting game for her 39-35—74. Three times on the front nine she had oneputt greens to make par, and coming home canned 8, 20 and 40-footers for birdies.

One weak tee-shot and a stray shot into a sand trap brought on her only bogies on the back nine.

Miss Jameson, winner of the 1947 Open, needed only 10 putts on the front nine at the 6,240-yard course that plays to par 37-36—73 for the ladies.

"But the real secret lies in three key shots I made with a brand-new wedge," she said. "This is the first time I have used it but it certainly helped me today."

Miss Suggs, two-time Open winner and runner - up another time, came back strong for her 75. She took 40 strokes going out but put together a birdie and 8 straight pars on the back side.

The 72-hole tournament offers $7,200 in prize money with $1,800 going to the winner.

After Friday's second round, the field of 54—including 25 amateurs—will be trimmed to the low 40. The trimmed down field must play 36 holes to decide the title on Saturday.

Mickey Wright 39-35—74; Jackie Pung 39-36—75; Betty Jameson 35-40—75; Louise Suggs 40-35—75; Alice Bauer 39-37—76; Mariene Bauer Hagge 39-37—76; Vonnie Colby 39-38—77; Joyce Ziske 43-35—78; Patty Berg 41-37—78; Jo Ann Prentice 40-38—78.

Betsy Rawls 42-37—79; Bev. Hansen 41-38—79; Bonnie Randolph 40-39—79; Fay Crocker 41-38—79; Mary Lena Faulk 43-36—79; Betty Dodd 40-40—80; a-Berrie Long 42-39—81; Wiffi Smith 45-36—81; a-Anne Quast 42-40—82; Gloria Fecht 43-39—82; Peggy Kirk Bell 41-41—82; Murle MacKenzie 42-40—82.

Cards Surge Ahead On Pirate Gifts, 6-2

Buc Boo-Boos Help St. Louis Post Sixth Straight Triumph

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The surging St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of three Pittsburgh errors Thursday and grabbed their sixth straight triumph with a 6-2 verdict over the Pirates. It was the Pirates' sixth straight loss.

An error by Bob Skinner in the seventh paved the way for three Cardinal runs and two miscues by Bill Mazeroski helped produce two more runs in the ninth. The Cards scored the other run in the eighth on a pinch triple by Irv Noren and a sacrifice fly by Don Blasingame.

Skinner's error put Stan Musial on second. Musial scored on a triple by Ken Boyer. Consecutive singles by Gene Green, Curt Flood and Hobie Landrith scored the other runs in the seventh.

Vernon Law, who lost his fifth game, deserved a better fate. He retired the first 10 batters before Jo Cunningham doubled off the right field wall in the fourth.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Orlando Cepeda's 15th homer of the season, a three-run blast in the eighth inning, provided the big punch in a four run San Francisco Giant uprising that sank Cincinnati's Redlegs Thursday night 5-1. Johnny Antonelli went all the way, doling out seven hits for the victory.

AMA OFFICIAL BLASTS LITTLE LEAGUE PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An official of the American Medical Assn. Thursday strongly criticized highly organized sports for children such as little league baseball.

Dr. Fred V. Hein told the annual meeting of the AMA here that, for one thing, such activities "shut out" girls and the not-so-physically-gifted boys.

The lavishing of facilities, equipment, time and attention on the physically gifted, according to Hein, "helps to perpetuate physical unfitness among the rest of the children."

The expert from the AMA Bureau of Health Education, Chicago, nixed bowl games, all-star events and "other activities that tend to force on children patterns of sports designed for college and professional athletes."

What is needed, he said, is a program specially tailored to the needs of "all boys and girls."

Also black-listed by Hein were night games, events far away from home, and commercial promotions which, he said, "seek to exploit youth for selfish purposes."

In another report, a Detroit high school tennis coach said all children start out as "poor sports" and that it is up to parents and coaches, by example, to help them mature.

She criticized the example set by mothers who pout at bridge, fathers who burn after a missed putt, and coaches who curse, boo, or otherwise show ill temper.

Royer, Ware and Adams Ousted from NCAA Meet

SEC Champion Tommy Aaron Beaten By Houston's Bobby Pratt, 5 and 3

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Four Georgians were eliminated today from the National Collegiate Golf tournament at the Taconic course at Williams College.

Two of them, Hugh Royer of Columbus, playing for the University of Georgia, and Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, playing for the University of Florida, made it through the first round of play.

Royer defeated Gene Cardi of Ohio State, 3 and 2 while Aaron downed Gene Francis of Purdue, 4 and 3.

But in the second round Royer fell to Donald (Ab) Justice of Oklahoma State, 3 and 1. Bobby Pratt of Houston defeated Aaron, 5 and 3.

Davis Adams of Macon and Cobby Ware of Augusta fell from the running during the first round. Ron Roger of Indiana defeated Adams, 5 and 4, while Jim Hiskey of Houston defeated Ware 2-up.

Phil Rodgers of University of Houston, a top favorite, moved into the third round but not without a scare. After beating David Lawrence of Arizona State, 3 and 2, Phil had to come from behind to nip Maryland's Deane Beman 1-up with a birdie on the 18th hole.

Besides Rodgers and Pratt, Jack Cupit and Frank Wharton of the Cougars also made the round of 16. Cupit's victims were Charlie Velpone, Boston College, and Larry Snyder of Ohio State. Wharton trimmed Charles Vandlik, Ohio U., and Dick Whetzle, the Southern Intercollegiate champion from North Texas State, 3 and 2.

Al Gieberger, Southern Cal's Pacific Coast Conference champion; John Konsek, Purdue, the Big Ten titlist, and SMU's Jerry Pittman, second low amateur in the U.S. Open and SWC champ, were other favorites still in the running.

20 Cars Ready For Dixie 100 Race Tonight

Twenty cars from five states are expected Friday night for the MARC-sponsored Dixie 100 Sportsman feature at the Peach Bowl.

There'll be six events on the card which begins at 8:30. This includes three heat races, trophy dash, consolation race and the 100-lap feature.

Some of the drivers are Eddie McDonald of Phenix City, Ala.; Harvey Jones of Tallahassee, Fla.; Kapron Sosebee of Anderson, S.C., and Harold Fryor of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Heading the Georgia entry list are Atlantans Roscoe Thompson and T. C. Hunt, Griffin's A. C. Hendrix and Roswell's Woody Coleman.

An added attraction will be a 15-lap race with all Negro drivers.

Carlos Ortiz Meets Busso

NEW YORK (AP)—Carlos Ortiz, a flashy Puerto Rico-born lightweight who was reared in New York, risks his record as an unbeaten contender Friday night in a 10-round match with Johnny Russo, another New Yorker.

Both young fighters are on the way up with impressive records to make their claims for consideration after Joe Brown defends his title against Kenny Lane in Houston next month.

Fight fans will remember both from recent outings on the same television (NBC, 9 p.m., EST) program that will carry this bout from Madison Square Garden.

By a verbal agreement the boys must come in at 138½ pounds or less Ortiz' manager insisted because Busso normally weighs 140 or 141 Ortiz' normal weight is 135 pounds.

Palmer's 66 Leads Pros

EAST NORWICH, N.Y. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, winner of $26,260.83 on the pro tour, took a big step toward adding another $9,000 to his total when he shot a record 66 in the first round of the $50,000 Long Island Open tournament Thursday.

Deadlocked in second place with 68s were veteran E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, playing out of St. Louis, and unsung George Bernardin.

Leading 20 scorers: Arnold Palmer, 34-32—66; George Bernardin, 35-33—68; E. J. Drysdale Cools Braves

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Don Drysdale socked his first homer of the year and tamed the Braves on eight hits Thursday night as the last place Los Angeles Dodgers took a 4-1 victory that trimmed Milwaukee's hold on first place in the National League to a game and a half.

Rain delayed the start of the game an hour and 27 minutes, but once the Dodgers got to bat they scored a run in each of the first three innings to hand the world champion Braves their second straight defeat.

Milwaukee's lead was sliced a full game when St. Louis and San Francisco both posted victories.

The Braves never seriously threatened Drysdale who hit the fourth homer of his career over the left field fence in the seventh. The Dodger right-hander had able support at the plate from Charlie Neal who collected his 11th homer over the left center field fence a few innings earlier.

The victory was the fourth against eight losses for Drysdale who now has a 5-1 lifetime record over the Braves. It was only his second full game of the year as he fanned three and walked two.

The Dodgers collected eight hits off Milwaukee starter Lew Burdette and Gene Conley who finished up. Burdette is now 5-6.

YANK SMITH SAYS 'THANKS'--AFTER HIS BAT SAID 'SMACK'

By PAUL HEMPHILL

The Little League regulation that prohibits any pitchers working more than six innings in one game gained a friend AND an enemy this week in the DeKalb Memorial League.

Paul Hemphill

The "friend" would be the Yankees' Allen Smith, who came on in relief in the overtime seventh and picked up a 3-2 decision over the Indians, though hurling only one inning.

And the "enemy" is Jimmy Jefferson, who came on for the Indians via the same rule in the seventh . . . but lost.

Winner Smith made the most of the short time he appeared in the game.

Taking over for Kirk Ivey with the score knotted at 2-2, he did what he was supposed to do by holding the Indians at bay in the top half.

In the Yank portion of the inning, though, he went farther than directed.

Allen Smith, the pitcher who got into the game only when the starter for his team had become ineligible to continue, drove in the winning run with a sharp single.

. . . And began to give thanks for a Little League technicality.

SANDY SPRINGS — Business Men, third in first-half race but tied for lead now, clobbered Lions, 17-5, with a 19-hit attack. Lookouts' Oravetz Trips Travelers, 2-1

Single in Fourteenth Frame Unlocks Tight Pitching Duel

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Ernie Oravetz slashed a single to left field to score Bob Allison from third in the bottom of the 12th inning and give Chattanooga a 2-1 victory over Little Rock Thursday night.

Oravetz' blow, through a tightly drawn infield, broke up a pitching duel between the Lookouts' Ted Wills and Bob Hahn of the Travelers. Both are left-handers.

Bothe hurlers went all the way, with each allowing seven hits. Wills, evening his season record at 7-7, fanned eight; Hahn, losing his third against two victories, struck out eleven.

Chattanooga scored in the first on Johnny Schaive's double, and infield out and Harmon Killebrew's sharp single.

Little Rock tied it up in the second on Pete Castiglione's single, Rac Slider's double, and Hahn's sacrifice fly.

The teams then battled through nine scoreless innings until the 12th,

Pros Swell Field In Cedartown Play

Todd's 68 Tops Qualifiers; Weaver Enters Meet as Pro

By BERT PRATHER

When pro Emory Lee and fellow officials of Cedartown American Legion Golf Club decided to throw the club's annual Invitation open to area pros, they hit the jackpot.

Eighty-four players have qualified so far, and barring a Johnstown Flood, the field is almost sure to run beyond the limit of 128 before nightfall Friday. Friday is final qualifying day.

Joe Todd of Marietta is still leading early qualifiers with a 68. His brother W. L. Todd is next with 71, followed by Leon Culberson, Rome, and Bill Warren of Carrollton with 72.

Dallas Weaver, former Cedartown resident now living in Rome, has announced he'll be playing as a professional in this tournament. Dallas, who once took a short fling at professional golf and then was reinstated as an amateur, is now pro at Callier Springs Golf Club, Rome. He qualified for the tournament with a 73, but all pros are automatically placed in championship flight along with 16 low amateurs.

Lee revealed that Paul Crownover, the Chattanooga collegian who captured the Dalton Invitation last month, will be a starter in the 54-hole stroke play event.

Leading professionals who'll compete in both Friday's pro-am and Saturday and Sunday's tournament proper are, Hugh Moore Jr., Macon; Jim Stamps of Dalton, winner of both the Coosa and Callier Opens at Rome recently; Dick Cline, Lanett, Ala.; Tommy Johnson, Canton; Joe Campbell, Knoxville, Tenn.; Frank Sitz, Rome; Paul Bumann, Ft. Benning; Dick Chassee and E. B. Judge, Atlanta; Tiny Seay, Cleveland, Tenn., and Chuck Burns of Canton.

Ewing Pomeroy of Atlanta's Ansley Golf Club, will go for the pro-am dough only. A purse of $450 will be split between the winning professionals in the Open.

Tournament qualifiers will play one round Saturday and two Sunday.

during part-time chores here. Umbricht, who has fanned 15 batters in his last 11 innings on the mound, relieved in all three battles of Mobile. Yet all he got for his trouble was one defeat.

"When Meeks isn't hitting, we don't get any runs. That's been the story all year," groaned a gloomy Bates. "We can't expect Sammy to 'streak' all the time and knock in all the runs.

"A team that hopes to win a pennant needs more than one RBI man."

The Malignant Heart

Nothing Could Stop the Onrushing Death Machine

searched the gloom and then I saw: The red eye of the waste-paper baling machine!

The Thing on the tractor had been about to lift Miss Treasure into the bailing machine where with one flick of a switch a monstrous weight would have come down on her and she would have been crushed and then efficiently wrapped and wired into a bundle of wastepaper!

I shuddered and drew Miss Treasure farther back into the shadows.

The tractor was still running. Somewhere out there . . . Then I saw! The lift was coming toward us, a roll of paper I knew weighed nearly a ton lifted high, poised to drop.

I couldn't scream, I couldn't move. Hanging over Miss Treasure's limp little body, I simply watched, knowing it would crush us both in a matter of seconds.

But mercifully, because the fingers were awkward and unsure on the controls, the giant claw that held the roll of newsprint dropped it . . . before it reached us! It fell with a force that shook the building and then it rolled harmlessly away.

I knew there would be another try—maybe a successful one. I had not to be there. Half dragging, half lifting Miss Treasure, I started for the doorway. Ahead of us in the darkness I heard the tractor engine, heard the faint squeak as the lift climbed upward, and saw another roll of newsprint lifted in the air.

I stumbled over something and Miss Treasure moaned. I stopped. Suppose she were badly hurt, her back broken or her skull fractured, and I was dragging her around this way? I peered anxiously at the weird little bundle and lost the second's advantage I had.

The tractor was bearing down on us. We were right in its path with nothing to stop it.

I closed my eyes and screamed and then darkness engulfed me.

The sound of a siren must have brought me around. I've never been able to hear one without wanting to get up and go, whether it was a police car, a fire truck, or an ambulance. The Grady ambulance was pulling up outside when I came to on the floor of the paper storehouse—and Benjamin Franklin Mulcay had a surprising kind of hold on me. I mean he wasn't shaking me or hitting me or anything like that but was sitting on the floor beside me with an arm around me in a kind of . . . well, gentle fashion.

It seemed exceedingly odd, and I leaned against him, thinking about it for a moment, while everything came back into focus. The lights were on and a crowd of pressmen and truck drivers and even a sprinkling of police had gathered about me and something else—the little motor that had held death poised in its iron claw over my head.

Now the claw was empty—and so was the driver's seat.

In a dreamy kind of lassitude I began to wonder what had happened to the driver when I heard Miss Treasure O'Toole's voice, light and piping as a child's. And as insistent.

"I won't move a step without her! She made the Supreme Sacrifice for me and I'm not stirring from this place without her!"

It was curious, I was thinking, somebody had tried to kill Miss Treasure and now she was talking about the Supreme Sacrifice. Who had made it, I wondered.

"She didn't make it . . . not quite, Miss Treasure," Mulcay said. "She's coming around."

It was no illusion. He was near to me, his arm supporting me, and his big Irish face was peering into mine.

Except for a kind of breathlessness I felt fine, astonishingly fine. I smiled smugly.

"I fainted," I said, inexplicably pleased with myself for managing such a feminine gesture. "That's what I did—fainted."

"Are you sure that's all?" Mulcay asked.

"All?" I cried, outraged. "Isn't that enough?"

"Well!" said Mulcay, letting me go. "I thought you were hurt. The ambulance is here. You want to ride to the hospital with Miss Treasure and let them check you over?"

"Katy!" called Miss Treasure peremptorily. "Oh, my dear child." Then she started crying.

I scrambled to my feet. "Don't cry, Miss Treasure, I'm coming with you."

I turned to Mulcay.

"Where did you come from? And where did that . . . thing go?"

"I came straight here from Newnan, as soon as I talked to the Adams girl. I trailed you through the building, but when I got outside I would have lost you except for your screams. What a pair of lungs!"

"And you got here just in time to save us from that roll of paper," I began admiringly.

"I didn't; everybody did," Mulcay corrected me. "People were pouring in from all directions. Somebody from the pressroom switched on the lights. That's what saved you. The lights blinded and confused her."

Mulcay was walking me toward the stretcher where they had Miss Treasure when somewhere back under the viaduct a car started. I saw him lift his head and then he dropped my arm and leaped out the door and was gone into the night. Two uniformed men pounded after him.

"Got away . . . the killer got away!" somebody said hoarsely.

—Medical Article Quote.

Men will find out, one of these days . . . that women thrive on words of praise . . . for these are more than food and drink . . . and help a lot more than we think.

As you, perhaps, are well aware . . . not many of them get their share . . . and this must puzzle them when they . . . recall the happy wedding day . . . and all the nice things that were said . . . to them by Mister Newlywed.

She may not be as lovely now . . . as when they took the solemn vow . . . there is no doubt that she has changed . . . but, happily, the Lord arranged . . . the situation in a way . . . so, when her hair was turning gray . . . his head looked like a billiard ball . . . or pumpkin, in the early fall.

He has a handsome head of skin . . . round shoulders and a double chin . . . and pouches underneath his eyes . . . and who is he to criticize . . . a woman who was young and trim . . . and wasted all those years with him . . . and merits many words of praise . . . for the endurance she displays.

Adequate Staff Is Called Top School Poblem

Fulton County School Supt. Paul D. West says in a national school magazine article that adequate staffing of schools is "foremost" among problems that face superintendents as soon as school terms end.

West, writing in "The Nation's Schools," declares that "no sooner has the school term closed than the superintendent and his staff must accelerate" preparations for the new school term.

Referring to the staffing problem, West said that the present turnover in personnel makes staffing "an important and time-consuming activity."

The official said that during the summer vacation period school superintendents also face the "many details of rehabilitation of school plants." This problem is accentuated by construction of new plants, he added.

New school construction, West pointed out, is "in progress the greater part of the time in all school systems of any size."

'Same Old Frame' Wins Blue Ribbon at Iris Show

By YOLANDE GWIN

Mrs. J. J. Maher Jr. brought home a beat-up old metal frame from a white elephant sale at St. John the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church.

Her husband took one look at it, shrugged his shoulders, and said, "YOU bought THAT?"

When Mrs. Maher brought home a blue ribbon for her flower arrangement at the recent iris show, her husband beamed at her, and said in a proud tone, "You won THAT?"

Then Mrs. Maher told him the story. The old picture frame, which had once been used for a daguerrotype, was cast aside by its owner for the church sale. Mrs. Maher, with an eye toward beauty, bought it, applied some do-it-yourself tricks and used it as a container for her French arrangement to represent the Hapeville Garden Club. It won the blue ribbon.

A NATURAL

It was somewhat of a "natural" for Mrs. Maher to win with a French theme. The former Mary Baker, she is the daughter of a French mother and attended school in France.

Her mother was Agnes Les Couet and lived in St. Nazaire in Brittany. Her father, Leonard P. Baker, served with the quartermaster corps during World War I in France. Among the French girls working in the office was Agnes Les Couet. When the war ended they married and came later to Mr. Baker's home here.

Their daughter, Mary, attended Ecole de Jeune Filles at St. Nazaire for two years. She was there when World War II broke out and made the return home under blackout restrictions on the high seas. She was married on Feb. 22, 1941, to J. J. Maher Jr. They have three children, Peggy, Johnny and Steve.

At her home at 3050 Springdale Rd. in Hapeville, Mrs. Maher grows azaleas, camellias and also likes "lots and lots of grass."

FINGERS CROSSED

"When I made the arrangement for the iris show, I kept my fingers crossed," said Mrs. Maher. "I had to use a lot of flower clay, and frankly I was worried. You can imagine what a thrill I had when I won the blue ribbon. My mother loves iris and uses them in many of her French bouquets. She feels like I do—that flowers are beautiful. Whether they are in perfect arrangement form or not, they look pretty."

She prefers simple line arrangements in her home, so that fresh flowers may be replaced daily.

And how did she begin all this flower arranging?

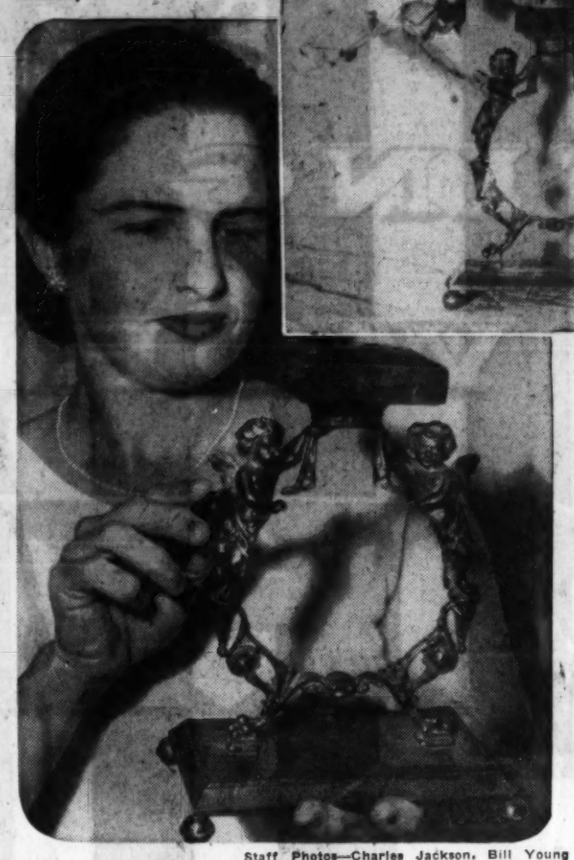

"I was garden center chairman for my club and had to do a lot of reading and learning about arrangements," she said. "But I suppose what made me really take it all personally was that I was, and still am, a golf widow."

Mrs. Maher's French arrangement is not the first to bring her horticultural recognition. Once before in an iris show, she won a blue ribbon as well as a tri-color award from the Garden Club of Georgia for her French entry.

Another time she used two brass vases to make an arrangement for the daffodil show and won the blue ribbon. She captured another blue in the dahlia show, and a second-place award in the rose show. At the hemerocallis show last week she used the flowers combined with apples for a centerpiece for a breakfast table and won a blue ribbon.

Ribbons are certainly nice to have, but the silver tea service she won in a national flower arrangement contest gave her her biggest thrill.

Her design was a French garden in the fleur-de-lis pattern. The fleur-de-lis is the national flower of France. So, Mrs. Maher was doing what comes naturally.

Chemise Invades Tennis Courts

Now the chemise fashion has turned up on the tennis courts, of all places! Yet I don't know why this should astonish me as basically all tennis dresses must be loosely enough fitted to move with the motion of the wearer.

Chemise tennis dresses have already been bought by championship players in London and I'm sure it will have very quick acceptance here too. Most of them are cut so that they may be worn belted in front. Some have low, loose, hip belts and short, pleated, flounce skirts.

Plan Meals For Easy Dieting

By IDA JEAN KAIN

The easiest way to reduce and control weight is to get a system of meal planning that fits your day-in and day-out calorie requirements and at the same time provides the nutrients needed to keep you in a fine state of body repair.

Plan each of the three meals around foods which stick-to-the-ribs and keep you from feeling hungry between meals. Protein foods have a high satiety value. Have an egg or two at breakfast; cottage cheese, yellow cheese or fish at lunch, and lean meat or chicken for dinner.

DON'T EAT SKIN

On the calorie score, 5 ounces (cooked weight) of lean-and-marbled meat count 350 calories. Bear in mind, these calories do not include the fat rim of the meat of any separable fat. If you choose broiled or baked chicken, count 4 ounces at 225 calories. Do not eat the skin. Non-fat fish, such as fillet of sole or flounder or ocean perch, is lower in calories than meat or chicken. When butter is needed in cooking fish, allow a teaspoon for a pound and stretch it with lemon juice.

Vegetables are protective foods, so take your choice. A good plan is to choose only one starchy vegetable such as a potato or a medium ear of corn or a half cup of lima beans or rice. A modest serving of a starchy vegetable averages 100 calories. Choose another vegetable, preferably a green or yellow, and count the calories at 25 to 40 for a liberal serving. Limit butter to a half teaspoon for flavoring the vegetables.

ADD VARIETY

Fruits add variety, flavor and protection. Since a citrus fruit is a daily essential, allow 50 calories for a small glass of fruit juice, and allocate 150 calories for two other fruits.

Milk is needed, a pint daily. In order to save calories, choose skim milk, buttermilk or non-fat dry milk powder. If skim milk seems too thin, enrich it by stirring in a tablespoon of dry skim milk powder. The calorie count is 170 for a pint of skim milk, plus 28 calories for one level tablespoon of dry skim milk powder.

What about bread? Thinly sliced bread counts about 50 calories per slice. This can be lightly buttered with a half pat, and the total count is 75 calories. If you choose a high starchy vegetable, limit the bread to two thin slices daily. Or you may prefer cereal at breakfast in place of toast.

Sew Summer Time Into Dress for Self

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

Now that you have the camp trunks packed and the youngsters distributed to their counselor mothers for the summer, what are you doing with your new freedom?

If you're like most mothers you probably are finding it somewhat disquieting to be out of your routine of running a taxi service, supervising home work and generally running your tongue out to keep up with the younger generation.

Put this freedom with the fact that most of your own organizations have suspended activity for the summer and you really do feel like a fish out of water.

But don't let it throw you. It's just the normal summer slowdown and, once you're accustomed to a little spare time, you'll find you can make it very profitable.

Now's your chance to get out the sewing box and whip up something for yourself for a change.

A BREEZE

For the trained seamstress, the new patterns are a breeze for creating couturier-like fashions. In fact, many couturier designers are also making patterns because sewing at home has become such an important part of fashion.

If you're planning a vacation, you may want to sew a smart traveling wardrobe of some of the new easy-to-care-for fabrics. Dacron is an excellent traveler and always looks fresh and fashionable.

Made up into an air-cooled sheath teamed with a brief bolero, it makes a fashion that's as good as a passport for taking you anywhere and everywhere.

Because "half-sizers" have problems of their own, it's especially pleasing to them to know that there is a pattern for this outfit that comes in their sizes 14½ to 24½. The pattern is specially proportioned to fit and flatter the shorter, fuller figure.

It's an Anne Adams printed pattern and she recommends a dacron and cotton fabric—solid color for the dress, striped for the jacket.

SUGGESTIONS

If you are an inexperienced seamstress, here are a few suggestions to help you achieve success from the beginning: While you may have a type of fabric in mind—or even a particular color or print design—your first step is to choose the pattern.

For a minimum of alteration and fitting, determine your figure type and the correct pattern size for you. Take both high chest and bust measurements into consideration when buying your pattern. Never buy patterns by dress size, as patterns are marked a size smaller than ready-to-wear items.

The pattern mentioned is printed pattern 4606. To order, send 35 cents in coins—add 5 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing—to Anne Adams, care of The Atlanta Constitution, Pattern Department, P. O. Box 13, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. Print plainly your name, address with zone, size and pattern number.

Juliette Low Camp Pool Opening Set

The dream of an Atlanta man will become a reality on Sunday, June 29, when the Runnels Memorial swimming pool is dedicated at Girl Scout Camp Juliette Low in Cloudland.

Since the founding of the camp, the only one in the nation to bear the name of the founder of the Girl Scouts, there have been no proper swimming facilities. It was the wish of the late Mr. Runnels that the camp have an up-to-date pool.

The camp committee and the board of trustees, the honorary trustees and the camp personnel all have cooperated in the overall work and plans for the pool. Morgan McNeel, Raymond Nelson and Mrs. T. C. Branson, all of Marietta, form the trustee board for the camp.

Mrs. Branson also heads the camp committee. Working with her have been Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Collins of Atlanta; Mrs. Sigmond Tumlin, Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Bidwell, Mr. and Mrs. William Hall and Mrs. Leroy Howe, of Marietta; C. R. Cleckler of Menlo and J. R. Jackson of Summerville. Miss Grace Chapin is camp director; Joe Specht is business manager and Robert F. Roeser is auditor.

Little Katherine Atkins Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Powell Jr., and granddaughter of Mr. Runnels, will unveil the plaque at the pool. The Rev. Eugene T. Wilson, pastor of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian Church, where Mr. Runnels was a member, will read the dedicatory service. Mrs. Powell is the former Miss Katherine Runnels, and with Mr. Powell and their daughter came to Atlanta last week from their home in New Orleans for Sunday's event.

He Dislikes Dyed Hair On Girls

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

A teen-age girl I know has a cute figure and, with a bit of poise, could be very attractive. But recently she started bleaching her hair. Why can't these girls realize what they do to themselves when they bleach their hair?

I think they take on a hard look. Some people may say they like it but I'm sure they say so rather than to tell the truth. I wish some other fellows would send in their opinions about bleached hair. What is your opinion, Mrs. Ricker?

I dislike bleached or dyed hair very much. It is an obvious artificiality and often, as you say, makes a girl look "hard." Constant bleaching gives the hair a strawlike appearance and makes it difficult to manage.

I, too, would like to know how the average boy feels about girls bleaching their hair.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 16 years old and the girl I am writing about is 15. I have taken her out a few times and I like her very much. Recently she told me she has been going steady with another boy for seven months and she had a quarrel with him. That is why she dated me.

She said she liked me nearly as much as this other boy but wants to continue going with him. What I want to know is, should I try to forget her? It won't be easy. Or, should I phone her every so often just to see what's going on? Do you think there is a chance for me?

Since this girl told you frankly how she feels about the other boy it would be a mitsake to make a nuisance of yourself by calling or trying to see her very often. However, she has broken up with him once and, at 15, it is doubtful she will go with him permanently.

Of course, I can't say whether or not you have a chance but I do think it would be all right to call her occasionally. Don't wear your heart on your sleeve and keep the conversation light, but subtly let her know you are available if, and when, she stops going steady. In the meantime date other girls and make the most of your teen years. Good luck!

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am 18 and desperately in love with a man of 38 who is married and has six children. He feels the same way about me and has offered to apply for a divorce. I do not wish to be involved in a divorce but we can see no other way out for us unless he leaves his wife and we live in sin.

I met him while I was baby sitting at his home and have been seeing him every night for the past two months. What shall we do? We are desperately in need of advice and feel that we cannot live without each other.

I doubt if you will heed my advice because you are old enough to know that becoming involved with a married man is utter folly. You should have stopped seeing him the minute you realized he held an attraction for you. You say you can't live without each other. I would like to know how you can live with yourself; knowing you are to blame for upsetting the lives of eight people, six of them children?

My advice to you, or any other girl who finds herself liking a married man, is to do everything possible to avoid seeing him again. You are playing a losing game, believe me!

A Happy Chunk!!

Heaven knows Atlanta couldn't have been such a dazzling place when Muv first saw the light of day in Pearson, Ga., 65 years ago but they must have fed her the notion that it was, along with her mother's milk. Because she fed the notion to me as long as I can remember.

Before I ever clapped eyes on the place, in my mind it was one of the legendary cities of the world—fully as glamorous as old Vienna of song and story, Paris-in-the-spring or Naples-by-moonlight.

It's a picture that may slip askew occasionally but never completely dissolves in my mind because, to tell you the truth, Atlanta works reasonably hard at being such a place.

There's the Sunday afternoon pop concert, for instance.

Muv loves to go to "the Pops." For her it is the old-fashioned Sunday afternoon band concert at the park, the Metropolitan Opera and Marcus & Fanchon vaudeville rolled into one.

Last Sunday we emerged from the Fox Theater still a little damp-eyed from hearing the sweet-voiced Negro soprano, Thelma Johnson, director of the Wheat Street Baptist choir, sing Gershwin's haunting "Summertime."

I was trying my soprano on "Summertime an' the livin' is eee-see . . . the fish are bitin' an' the cotton is high" but Muv was very quiet.

"Did you like it?" I asked when I could stop reveling in the sound of my own voice.

"I was just thinking about how nice it is," Muv mused, "for a city to give people such a lovely place to go on Sunday afternoons. All that music and . . . free!"

"That's our town," I said smugly and Muv nodded, both of us content that consideration for the pleasure of its citizens is a quality exclusive to Atlanta.

Maybe other cities have Sunday afternoon concerts like the Pops, I don't know. But I doubt if any citizens enjoy them more than the three or four thousand who come to the Fox at 2 p.m. every Sunday in June to hear Albert Coleman lead the orchestra and assorted singers through programs which range from opera to "The Street Where You Live." People of all ages and from all economic brackets come. WSB's Bob Van Camp, who has emceed the Pops for eight years, is well accustomed to having his announcements drowned out by a baby crying somewhere in the auditorium. Feet pat and occasionally a hummer joins in on a favorite tune.

The Pops haven't changed a whole lot since the day 13 years ago when we went over to the mayor's office in the City Hall to take a picture of a contract signing between city officials, conductor Coleman and Fox officials, who cut out their first Sunday matinee to contribute the use of the theater. The orchestra is made up of pretty much the same people—about a third members of the Atlanta Symphony, some teachers, some insurance salesmen, some members of various night spot dance bands. A number of local musicians have got a start at the Pops.

There is one really new wrinkle this year in the appearance of church choral groups—the Boys' Choir, the choir from Christ the King last Sunday, and Grace Methodist Church's 100-voice choir next Sunday. It's a nice Sabbath touch but that's not the whole reason for it.

"I visited a few churches," Albert Coleman told me, "and I was impressed with the wonderful music we have which is heard only by members of each particular church. I think it a shame that such good singers are not heard by all Atlanta. This way . . ."

This way ALL Atlanta doesn't hear them but those of us who do constitute a happy and appreciative chunk of the city's population.

DIAPER RASH
Tests show it also prevented diaper rash in 95% of cases

When bacteria breed on diaper-wet skin, they cause the formation of irritating ammonia, make skin sore, raw. Painful diaper rash can follow. Then germs such as dangerous staphylococci can get into the blood, cause infection! Distressing, itching eczema may result, too.
Doctors know that cornstarch, not being irritatingly alkaline like talcum, is superior for soothing baby's tender skin; and excels in keeping skin dry and fresh.
Only Mexsana—of all leading powders—contains an exclusively starch base—plus hexachlorophene and other ingredients to destroy germs and promote healing.
Mexsana's best for adults' irritating rashes, too. Save most on larger sizes.
Be sure to use Mexsana after every diaper change. It'll help keep baby's skin free of so many skin irritations.

As I See It

Here's a Preview Of Fall TV Shows

By PAUL JONES

The television industry is following in the footsteps of the fashion trade—it's bringing out its new fall styles in the middle of the summer.

Jones

I have noticed that all three of the major networks haven't had too much to say about the summer line-up. And it's just as well that they haven't.

So far the hot weather shows have not been so hot. With more and more of the regular shows leaving, it shouldn't be long before interest in TV hits a new, all-time low.

But, while interest on the part of the networks in their summer line-ups has been nil, there has been little lack of interest in the fall and winter programing.

In fact, I have received from George Ettinger, CBS-TV press director, a complete line-up of the night programing for the winter.

Since there's little new to report about the current events, I thought you'd be interested in seeing how the Columbia line-up will look.

The Sunday array will be strengthened with Bachelor Father alternating with Jack Benny. Ed Sullivan, G. E. Theater, Alfred Hitchcock, $64,000 Question and What's My line follow in that order.

Monday will see some big changes. Rawhide starts at 7:30 p.m., followed by Father Knows Best. Danny Thomas, Ann Sothern and Desilu will be offered in a solid array of entertainment.

GARRY MOORE will be one of the big stars on Tuesday night. He will top-off a lineup which includes Name That Tune, Keep Talking, To Tell the Truth and Red Skelton.

Wednesday will have Invisible Man, World of the Giants, Godfrey Talent Scouts, Millionaire, I've Got a Secret, Steel Hour (Circle Theater alternating.)

December Bride leads off Thursday, followed by Derringer, Zane Grey and Playhouse 90. Friday offers the new version of Hit Parade, Trackdown, Jackie Gleason in his new show, Phil Silvers, Playhouse, Lineup and Person to Person.

Saturday's shows will be much the same as now. Perry Mason is followed by The Texan, Oh Susanna, Have Gun, etc., and Gunsmoke.

IF YOU'VE BEEN wondering why the TV cowboys don't ride off into the sunsest leaving the heroines standing in the dusty roads, I think I have the answer.

The average heroine of the new TV Westerns stacks up this way: 36-24-35. That's about par for the glamorous cuties of Hollywood.

Most of the girls who appear in such shows as Cheyenne, Gunsmoke, Have Gun, Will Travel and Wagon Train have enough oomph that the crinolines, buttons and bows don't matter anyway.

Besides, the modern cowboys have found that it's no fun kissing a horse—unless maybe his name is Tim Tam.

Diane Brewster and Gloria Talbot, whose pictures are printed herewith, are currently the toast of the old West.

I'M GLAD TO SEE that Bert Parks is returning to the airwaves. Bert is one of Attlanta's best boosters. Whenever he's on the air, he mentions this city and always gives his home town a hand. Bert, you know, started his career as an announcer and singer on WGST many years ago. He will head up the new Bid 'N' Buy, quiz show which has all the earmarks of being a good one. It starts Tuesday night in place of the $64,000 Question.

CAROL LE GAY GARVIN, 14, is the president of the new Tommy Sands Fan Club here. Tommy buzzed Carol on the phone the other day to tell her about his TV appearance on Studio One, and he asked her to spread the word about his upcoming movie, "Mardi Gras," in which he appears with Pat Boone. He called on Friday, the 13th. Who said that was an unlucky day?

MRS. WALTER H. NEBLETT, of Decatur, writes: "Not that it's important, but several statements have left the impression that Elfrida Nardroff has had only male opponents.

"A lady from California tied several times wth her and I believe one of the few errors Miss Nardroff has made was during this period. Miss Nardroff is the most brilliant person I have ever listened to. She is a remarkable person. It is nice to know that one other female made at least two appearances with her."

(Ed. Note: As I recall, I said almost all of her opponents have been male.)

Seek 'Just Return' on Crops, Vandiver Urges Farmers

TIFTON (AP)—Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver Thursday urged Georgia farmers to organize as never before and fight for a just return on their crops.

In a speech prepared for the annual Tomato Festival Vandiver said present policies of the federal government had cost the nation's farmers billions of dollars.

Despite this, he said, the administration asked further cuts in parity prices and acreage allotments. He said he was gratified that the request was rejected by Congress.

Vandiver said Tift County, the center of the tomato plant industry, is climbing steadily to the top in the production of tomatoes. About 90 per cent of the canned tomato products of the United States and Canada have been made from tomatoes produced on plants grown in South Georgia.

The reduction in acreage alotted tobacco, cotton and peanuts, has given tomatoes an increasingly important place in farm economy in the state. Vandiver said it may not be long before the tomato is one of the leading cash crops of the section.

Vandiver, a candidate for governor, repeated promises to maintain the county unit system of voting and segregation.

TV To Get 'Hero' Play Before N.Y.

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK — The Columbia Broadcasting System will televise Pierre Boulle's "Face of a Hero" next season before the story will make its debut as a Broadway stage play.

Robert L. Joseph is adapting the French author's suspense novel for both stage and television. He also will produce the Broadway version. John Houseman will produce the TV program on Playhouse 90.

The network plans to present the drama in November. It probably will not open on Broadway before the end of the year. Boulle is also author of "The Bridge On the River Kwai," which was made into the hit motion picture.

Syrians Accuse Israelis of Attack

DAMASCUS, U.A.R., (UPI) — An official spokesman charged here Thursday that Israeli patrols staged an attack on the Syrian border Wednesday in a case of "armed aggression" against the United Arab Republic. The spokesman said the attack resulted in the wounding of three Arabs. He charged that the alleged Israeli action "came with the help of Lebanese authorities and at the direction of certain foreign quarters."

Ga. Sheriff To Make Jimmy Dean Deputy

DUBLIN — Laurens County Sheriff Carlus Gay is making Jimmy Dean, TV star and singer, a deputy sheriff.

The sheriff, along with the Rev. Jimmy Waters, of Macon, went to Washington Friday where they were the guests of Sen. Talmadge. The sheriff is scheduled to appear on Dean's TV show Saturday, at which time he will pin the badge.

Dean's recognition comes as a result of a telethon he conducted in Macon recently in behalf of the cerebral palsy fund.

How Vital Is Pay In a Satisfying Job?

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Are unions and management ignoring some more fundamental needs of most of the nation's wage earners in their periodic dickering over wages and fringe benefits?

Their negotiations usually give the impression that pay is the most important issue to the workers.

True, money IS highly important.

But the possibility that it is overrated in the minds of management and union officials is indicated in a just-completed survey of job satisfaction factors by students at Georgia State College of Business Administration.

Jim Montgomery

Dr. Michael Mescon, whose industrial sociology and wage-salary administration classes carried out the project, is uncovering similar evidence in additional research studies.

Their results emphasize the apparently often overlooked premise that work, which still preoccupies man during most of his waking hours, is far more than economic activity.

And Mescon suggests that too little attention is focused on the workers' psychological and social needs.

What are these needs?

Nearly a third (313) of the 956 individuals surveyed listed interesting work as the most important factor in job satisfaction.

This implies, in reverse english, that dull, boring, uninteresting jobs will agitate more employe dissatisfaction than wage rates as such.

Mescon asserts here that management, in striving for greater efficiency and productivity through automation, has generally failed to consider the resulting adverse effects on employes.

Due to advancing technology, he says, the average production worker's role in turning out the finished product is becoming smaller and smaller—leaving him with little sense of craftsmanship or feeling of accomplishment at the end of a day's work.

He adds that the average worker can hardly rejoice over the long-range benefits of an advancing technology that poses "immediate and real threats to his economic security and—since work helps determine status in our highly status-conscious culture—to his family's social position in the community."

Next to interesting work, the survey indicated, opportunity for advancement ranked as the most important factor in job satisfaction (210 put it in first place), followed by job security (190 firsts) and then financial compensation (at the top for 152 of the 956 questioned).

Such items as fringe benefits, recognition by management, working conditions, recognition by coworkers, working hours, company prestige, social and recreational facilities, communications, etc., ranked far behind the top four.

In a related study Mescon is compiling on an Atlanta area manufacturing company, "money does not even appear in the top five" factors cited by employes as job satisfaction needs—yet management had assumed the workers considered it their number one need, and the union made wages the big issue in negotiating a new contract.

He says this illustrates the "tremendous gap between what the workers actually want and what management thinks they want."

Also, "while management often does a poor job in understanding the nature of worker needs, the union is not exactly clairvoyant" either—with such ineptness in this particular case costing the union members prestige and respect.

Mescon believes these and other studies provide "strong evidence that management should be as scientific in its approach to understanding worker needs as it is in its approach to the more technical dilemmas of industry."

Management (both corporate and union) would do well to accept this timely challenge—to recognize the urgency of understanding and satisfying the deep-seated psychological job needs of the human resources it employs.

Rule-of-thumb assumptions that apparently misguide many well-intentioned administrators are cancerous anachronisms in this age of scientifically stimulated material progress.

Food Chain To Use Charge Accounts

NEW YORK (AP) — Safeway Stores, Inc., the nation's second largest supermarket chain, is going into the charge account business—but this break with supermarket tradition will be on a very small scale.

The huge chain has opened a store on New York's Park Avenue that will cater to the plush neighborhood's charge account trade. Customers phone in their orders and have the groceries delivered. They'll be billed at the end of the month.

Safeway's 2,000 other stores are strictly cash and carry.

Fairbanks, Penn-Texas To Make Up?

NEW YORK (AP)—Penn-Texas Corp., multi-million-dollar holding company put together by financier Leopold D. Silberstein, and Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Chicago heavy machinery firm, may bury the hatchet.

This was indicated Thursday by Robert H. Morse Jr., president of Fairbanks, Morse, and Alfons Landa, who just succeeded Silberstein as president of Penn-Texas.

The two companies have been feuding ever since Silberstein tried to gain control of Fairbanks, Morse two-and-a-half years ago.

Landa said he expects to meet Morse in due time to talk over the problems created by Penn-Texas' ownership of 49.4 per cent of the outstanding Fairbanks, Morse common stock.

In Chicago Morse said he won't be able to tell whether the talks will be productive until he knows what Landa has in mind.

Landa said he had never thought about trying to arrange a merger of the two companies, but still hadn't decided whether Penn-Texas should keep its Fairbanks, Morse stock or sell it.

Penn-Texas accumulated the Fairbanks, Morse stock during a campaign by Silberstein to add the Chicago company to his string of acquisitions. In the bitter controversy that followed, Morse supported Landa's successful effort to topple Silberstein from the Penn-Texas throne via a stockholder proxy fight—the same weapon Siberstein had used against the Fairbanks, Morse management.

Auto Price Tags Voted By House

Requires Dealers To Display Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House Thursday passed and sent to President Eisenhower a bill to require automobile manufacturers and dealers to display the suggested retail price of new cars.

With only a few minutes of debate, the House completed congressional action on the measure intended to stop price packing and misleading advertising of new car costs.

OPTIONAL COST

The bill would also require posting the cost of optional equipment and freight charges.

Price packing is the practice of padding the normal profit markup on cars for the purpose of later reducing the price to buyers through inflated trade-in allowances or discounts.

The House Commerce Committee reported that "unscrupulous marketing practices . . . have created chaos and confusion" in the automobile business and "confusion, doubt and suspicion" in the public mind.

WINDOW LABEL

Under terms of the bill new cars must bear on their windshield a label with the following information:

Make, model and serial number, final assembly point, name and location of the dealer, method by which the car was transported from assembly plant to dealer and the total retail price suggested by the manufacturer.

City Is 4th In Building Increase

Atlanta racked up the nation's fourth greatest percentage increase over a year ago in building permit dollar volume during the first five months of 1958.

The city's 74.4 per cent gain (to $48,600,000) was bested only in Portland, Ore.; Albuquerque, N.M.; El Paso, Tex., and Greensboro, N.C., according to Dun & Bradstreet. The national average increase for 217 cities was 4.8 per cent.

Gains 28 Businesses

Georgia gained 28 more new businesses in May than it did during April. Moreover, during the first five months of 1958 compared to the like period last year, there were 6 fewer failures. The 205 new businesses gained during May compared with 211 a year ago.

In 'Strong Position'

Georgia's business economy was in a "strong position" at the end of 1958's first quarter despite "some sags" from last year's "extremely high levels in a few lines of activity," according to the Commerce department's quarterly survey.

Gaining over last year were bank deposits and debits, construction, output of electric energy and chickens, imports and airline passenger traffic. Off were retail trade, employment, rail and air cargo shipments and rail passenger revenues.

Furniture Dealers See Better Year Than '57

By BOB WILLIMON

Georgia's retail furniture dealers, talking as if they have all but closed the books on the recession, apparently expect their 1958 sales to top those of last year.

That's the impression gained in spot-check interviews with Georgia merchants attending the Atlanta Merchandise Mart's fourth semi-annual showing this week.

The interviews turned up only occasional wary comments regarding future economic prospects, and all of these pertained to the state's hard-hit textile industry.

"Our sales are running 8 to 24 per cent ahead of last year," said Ernest F. Bentley, a partner in Augusta's Bentley Bros. and a director and past president of the Georgia Retail Furniture Dealers Assn. He added:

"I think (furniture) sales in the Augusta area this year will be greater than in '57."

SALES AHEAD OF 1957

"Our over-all sales so far this year are slightly under the corresponding period in 1957. We're having a heck of a big month though now, and if the increase continues, our last-half sales could equal those of 1957."

A. B. Gibson, a partner in Columbus' Gibson Home Furnishings, reported his sales for the first six months of 1958 as running "some 20 to 30 per cent" ahead of the like period last year. The outlook for the remainder of 1958 he termed "even better."

"I think the majority of Columbus' furniture stores will top their last year's sales," Gibson added.

TEXTILES SHAKY

The textile industry—which lost an additional 300 employees in Georgia during May to continue a prolonged downtrend—appeared to cause the most concern among the furniture men when they were asked if any "dark spots" prevailed in their local economies.

"We're watching textiles," said Bentley. "Our trade area includes the big textile counties of Richmond and

WASHINGTON (AP)—A photograph of a Soviet submarine, cruising on the surface somewhere "in the North Atlantic" was made available Thursday by the Defense Department in answer to a request for a picture of one of Russia's 500-boat underseas fleet.

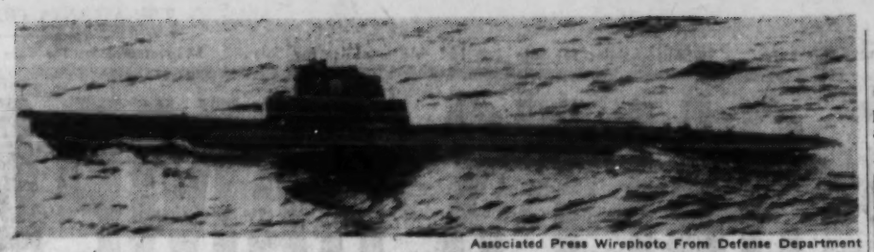

The cryptic caption gave no details as to where in the North Atlantic or when the picture was made. However, it was indicated the photograph may have been snapped some time ago.

Is one of the long range 10,000-20,000 mile) type of the Russian force. There are an unofficially estimated total of about 120 long-range boats in the Red submarine fleet.

Probably displaces between 1,500 and 2,000 tons, about the size of some of the larger U.S. conventional submarines.

Presumably is standard-powered, with diesel or some other form of internal combustion engine combined with battery electric power for underwater operation. The Defense Department declined any information about the circumstances under which the photograph was made. The shot appears to have been snapped from a low-flying airplane or helicopter.

$121,000 in the Red, Grady Will Borrow

Grady Memorial Hospital is already $121,000 in the red in operating expenditures for 1958, it was revealed Thursday at a meeting of the Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority.

Authority Chairman Hughes Spalding pointed out that the deficit would have been some $65,000 greater if certain supplies had not been "stockpiled" at the end of 1957 and if the number of nurses authorized for the hospital had been hired.

The figures were announced by Frank Wilson, hospital administrator and secretary-treasurer of the Authority. The Authority passed a resolution authorizing the borrowing of money from Atlanta banks to help finance operation of the hospital for the balance of the year.

The borrowing plan was first introduced several months ago when the Authority asked the Fulton and DeKalb County commissions for an increase in tax levies for hospital operation. The commissioners recommended at that time that the extra money needed be borrowed for this year so that an adequate and accurate budget could be worked out before the tax increase was made.

The Authority also authorized a $100 per month pension for Mrs. Jennie Jenkins, who has worked for the hospital for 35 years. Mrs. Jenkins is 70. She is mother of Chief Herbert Jenkins of Atlanta's police department.

The Authority also authorized the deposit of $10,000 of the Board of Trustees Fund in the Citizens Trust Company, Auburn avenue bank. In other actions, several bank accounts were changed to make easier the financial operations of the Authority.

The members authorized expenditure of $38,000 in remodeling the old isolation building into quarters for graduate nurses and other female employes of the hospital. The remodeling of the first hospital building, built in 1891, was also authorized. This building, too, will be used for remale employes' quarters.

President Spalding reported that a new contract was being drawn up to be presented to Fulton and DeKalb counties concerning the anticipated tax increase for next year.

2 Youths Face Arraignment on Girls' Charges

Two men are scheduled for arraignment at 7:30 a.m. Friday in Municipal Court on charges of raping two 15-year-old girls.

Detectives W. B. Blackwell and J. F. Inman identified the two as Jimmy Taylor, 18, of a Kimberly road, SW, address, and Louis Comstock, 20, of a Childers drive, SW, address.

The girls told police that four youths, one of whom they knew, approached them in Oakland City Park and offered to drive them to a dance. Instead, they were quoted, they were driven to a wooded area along Campbellton road and assaulted.

Detectives said Taylor and Comstock voluntarily came to police headquarters when they found that officers were searching for them. Both denied the charges. Blackwell and Inman said the second two occupants of the car were not charged with participating in the rapes.

A FOAMY TEXTURED DESSERT FOR THE SUMMER PATIO OR GARDEN PARTY IS A COOL AND REFRESHING RASPBERRY CHIFFON PIE
Soft Pink Suggests a Light-Weight Treat that Is Full of the Fresh Fruit Flavor; Serve Coffee and Mixed Nuts as a Side Dish

Take the Summer Party Outside

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Constitution Food Editor

A light pink color suggests the coolness of a garden party, or at least a patio party. And, since everyone wants to be out in the air as much as possible these days, that is certainly the place to have summer night parties.

When summertime comes around, it seems as though everyone had rather be invited instead of inviting. But, when it is your turn to have the bridge club or to fulfill obligations, take the party outside if it is in the cool of the day. And, along with the fresh air, serve a fresh raspberry chiffon pie.

When one of the purposes of the party is to keep cool, be sure the refreshments are in line with the scheme. The raspberry pie will be one that will shine on the patio or in the garden. And it's low in calories, too.

The secret of the foamy texture is achieved by folding the raspberries and dry milk into a gelatin mixture which has been allowed to set slightly. This is turned into a baked pie shell or into a favorite crumb crust and chilled in the refrigerator until firm. When ready to serve, garnish it with whole berries and whipped cream.

RASPBERRY CHIFFON PIE

1 cup boiling water and juice from berries
⅛ cup sugar
Speck of salt
2 tblsps. lemon juice
½ cup cold water and juice from berries
½ cup ice water
⅓ cup dry milk
1 pkg. frozen raspberries, thawed and drained, or 1½ cups fresh raspberries plus 3 T. sugar
1 9-in. baked pie shell

If frozen, thaw rapberries in strainer over bowl, reserve juice. Dissolve raspberry gelatin in boiling water. When thoroughly dissolved add sugar and salt. Stir until dissolved. Add cold juice and lemon juice and allow to chill until of a jelly-like consistency. When ready, place ice water into a small bowl of mixer, add dry milk and beat until stiff. Remove to a smaller bowl. Beat partially set gelatin until thick and fluffy. Fold in drained berries and whipped milk. Turn into baked pie shell and chill until firm. Decorate with whipped cream and fresh berries.

RASPBERRY JAM

3 cups berries 6 to 7 cups sugar

Pick over, wash, drain, crush and measure berries. Add one cup water. Boil until berries are soft. Press through sieve or food mill. Add sugar. Boil to, or almost to, jellying point, depending upon whether a firm or soft jam is wanted. Pour, boiling hot, into hot jar and seal at once.

NOTE: Jams may be made without pressing through sieve to remove seed.

Blackberries, blueberries, boysenberries, dewberries, gooseberries, loganberries and youngberries may be used in this same recipe.

CANNED RASPBERRIES

Make light or medium syrup. Wash and drain berries. Pour about ½ cup hot syrup into hot jars. Fill jars with berries. Shake jar to pack berries closely without crushing. Add more hot syrup, if needed, to cover berries. Process 20 minutes in boiling water bath.

SYRUPS FOR CANNING

TYPE OF SYRUP	SUGAR TO 1 QUART WATER	YIELD OF SYRUP
LIGHT	2 cups	5 cups
MEDIUM	3 cups	5½ cups
HEAVY	4¾ cups	6½ cups

Measure sugar and liquid (either water or fruit juice) into a sauce pan. Cook until sugar dissolves. Keep syrup hot until needed, but do not let it boil down. 1 to 1½ cups of syrup is needed for each quart of fruit.

For medium syrup with corn syrup use 1½ cups sugar to one quart of water, or 1 cup light corn syrup to 3 cups liquid.

For medium syrup with honey use 1 cup sugar, 1 cup honey to 4 cups liquid.

The boiling water bath method should be used for processing fruits, tomatoes and other acid foods, because boiling water supplies enough heat, without overcooking, to destroy the bacteria, enzymes, molds and yeasts which cause spoilage in acid foods.

A boiling water bath canner is a boiler or kettle with a cover and a rack or metal basket to keep jars from touching the bottom. The canner should be deep enough for water to cover the top of jars without boiling over.

ROYAL RUBY TARTS

1 lb. Fresh raspberries ½ cup whipped cream
1 pkg. Danish dessert

Prepare pastry according to the manufacturer's directions. Make into 9 tart shells and bake. (For shape your own tart shells, see directions below.)

Drain raspberries well. Prepare Danish dessert according to the directions on the package. Fold in berries and spoon into maked tart shells. Chill in refrigerator until set (3-4 hours). Garnish each tart with a border of whipped cream and top with slivered almonds.

TART SHELLS

Shape Your Own Tart Shells. Using the lid of a 1-lb. coffee can as a pattern, cut 9 circles out of heavy duty aluminum foil. Divide dough in thirds and roll thin. Place 3 circles on dough and cut out. Place foil side down, prick dough with fork and form tarts by bringing the edge of the foil up to form a square or triangle cup. Pinch corners together and bake at 450 degrees. These foil forms can be reused.

These flat pastry circles can be made in quantity, stacked, freezer wrapped and stored in the freezer for three months. To use from freezer, remove the required number from freezer pack, keep covered, allow to thaw seven to 10 minutes. Form and bake.

When the berries are at their peak, that is the time to experiment with them and make a conserve or a marmalade that you haven't made before. Here is a cherry and raspberry conserve that will taste mighty good during the cold winter months.

CHERRY-RASPBERRY CONSERVE

3 cups pitted cherries 3 cups raspberry pulp
4 to 5 cups sugar

Wash and drain fruit. Pit and measure cherries. Simmer until tender. While cherries are cooking, press raspberries through sieve or food mill. Measure. Add berry pulp and sugar to cherries. Cook slowly until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly until thick. Pour, boiling hot, into hot jars; seal at once.

RASPBERRY CURRANT MARMALADE

3 cups raspberries 4 cups currants
9 cups sugar

Wash drain red or black fruit before measuring. Stem and crush currants. Cook slowly until juice flows freely. Add raspberries. Heat to boiling. Add sugar. Boil to jelling point. Pour, boiling hot, into hot jars. Seal at once.

Summer Supper Partners Are Colorful and Tasty

A SKILLET FULL OF EGG CROQUETTES
A Salad of Broccoli With Vinegar and Oil Dressing

Egg cutlets, fried golden brown in an electric skillet, and a salad of broccoli or asparagus spears make colorful and satisfying summer supper partners.

The egg cutlets are made with hard-cooked eggs and condensed cream of celery soup. Using soup in cutlets or croquettes is a trick to learn, if you haven't already. In this recipe, the soup is blended with a little flour and mustard before the eggs are added. When the mixture is chilled three or four hours (overnight, if you prefer), it can easily be shaped into cutlets. A coating of cracker crumbs helps hold the shape of the cutlets while they fry and provides a crisp, crunchy contrast for the eggs.

EGG CUTLETS

1 can (10½ ozs.) condensed cream of celery soup, undiluted
½ cup flour
1 tblsp. prepared mustard
½ tsp. salt
Dash pepper
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 tblsps. chopped pimiento
¾ cup cracker crumbs
2 to 4 tblsps. cooking oil

Blend soup, flour, mustard, salt and pepper in saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is bubbly and thickened. Stir in eggs and pimientos; chill 3-4 hours. Drop about ⅓-cup mixture into crumbs; shape into cutlet (3"x2"x1"), coating all sides with crumbs. Repeat with remaining mixture. Fry in oil over medium heat until golden brown on both sides. Serve with cream sauce. Garnish with parsley. Makes four servings (2 cutlets per serving).

EGG CROQUETTES

1 can (10½ ozs.) condensed beef noodle soup, undiluted
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tblsp. butter or margarine
4 tsps. flour
4 hard-cooked eggs, minced
¾ cup sifted bread crumbs
1 egg, beaten
2 tblsps. milk

Drain soup, retaining liquid. In saucepan, saute' green pepper and onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour, then soup liquid. Cook stirring constantly, until very thick. Add soup solids and eggs. Chill in refrigerator for several hours or overnight. Shape into 8 croquettes, using approximately ¼-cup mixture for each croquette. Roll in bread crumbs, then in egg and milk mixture. Roll again in bread crumbs. Deep fat fry in oil (390 degrees) until golden brown. Serve with white sauce; garnish with parsley. Makes 8 croquettes.

With the croquettes, broccoli salad is the perfect partner. Bright green spears are arranged on the salad plate, garnished with anchovy fillets and orange-red pimiento strips. A French dressing, seasoned with parsley, onion and celery seed, is passed at the table.

ASPARAGUS VINAIGRETTE SALAD

Approximately 10 ozs. asparagus spears, cooked, drained
½ cup cooking oil
2 tblsps. vinegar
½ tsp. finely grated onion
¼ tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
Thinly sliced onion rings
Slices of hard-cooked egg

Arrange asparagus in shallow dish. Combine oil with vinegar, onion, sugar and salt. Pour over asparagus. Chill at least one hour, spooning liquid over asparagus 2 or 3 times. Arrange lettuce leaves on salad plates. Place 3 or 4 asparagus spears on each plate. Slip onion rings around asparagus spears. Garnish with hard-cooked egg slices. Makes 4-6 servings.

BROCCOLI SALAD

16 ozs. broccoli spears
1 pimiento, cut into strips
1 can (2 ozs.) flat anchovy fillets
2 tblsps. vinegar
½ cup cooking oil
½ tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. sugar
1 tsp. minced parsley
1 tsp. minced onion
½ tsp. celery seed

Cook broccoli according to directions on package; drain; chill. On individual lettuce-lined salad plates, arrange broccoli. Arrange anchovies and pimiento over broccoli. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients. Serve with salad. Makes 4-6 servings.

Another vegetable salad that provides a delightful flavor and color foil for the golden egg croquettes is asparagus vinaigrette. The ingredients for asparagus vinaigrette, like those of the croquettes, can be assembled ahead of serving time. The spears are marinated for at least an hour in a mixture of oil and vinegar, seasoned with grated onion, sugar and salt.

Go-Alongs For Fish Dishes

Home economists suggest the thoughtful use of garnishes and accessories with fish dinners. Tart, tantalizing and crisp textures are more compatible than soft or sweet foods. Fresh cucumber in salads and sauces, and crisp relishes are always refreshing. Generous wedges (not thin slices) of lemon, watercress, pungent Italian parsley, green pepper, sweet red pepper, beet pickles and crisp cauliflower and cucumber pickles are attractive accompaniments. Chilled white and rose wines are also nice with fish dinners.

Leftover Meatloaf Dressed Up to Serve

A good way to use leftover meat loaf is to cut it into small squares and layer it with leftover spaghetti and tomato sauce in a baking dish; sprinkle with grated cheese and heat in the oven.

EARLY SUMMER MONTHS ARE BRIDAL PARTY MONTHS

Bridal Shower for Month of June

BRIDAL SHOWER MENU

Pressed Veal Loaf
Sour Cream-Horseradish Dressing
Potato Chips
Asparagus Tips
Pickled Vegetables
Baking Powder Biscuits
Raspberry Preserves
Angel Food Cake
Coffee Tea

The early summer months are romantic months, brides are busy with last-minute wedding plans and friends of the bride are busy arranging last-minute parties.

The spur-of-the-moment or last-minute showers in honor of this soon-to-be-Mrs. are probably the most fun.

If it's your pleasure, entertain a bride-to-be this month. However, don't make the last-minute preparations for this party too time-consuming. As hostess, you can make your job an easy or as difficult as you wish.

Hostesses have a way of competing with each other on the quality and distinction of their parties. Make this particular shower a standout and do it with ease and comfort.

Serve a Pressed Veal Loaf as your main attraction . . . hearty, chuck full of meat, spiced with an array of different flavors and dainty painted with specks of color, this is an all-time winner.

It can be made a day in advance . . . this can take the cares and woes out of last-minute worries. Attractive accompaniments for this veal mold are potato chips, asparagus spears, pickled vegetables, biscuits and a light and airy angel food cake.

Sometimes homemakers are not too familiar with the use of veal in salads. Veal is so delicately flavored that it combines readily with most any ingredient used in salads.

PRESSED VEAL LOAF

4 to 5-lb. veal shoulder
2 bay leaves
1 medium onion, sliced
1 stalk celery, cut in 1-inch pieces
8 cups water
1 green pepper
3 hard-cooked eggs
1 tblsp. gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2½ cups hot veal broth
2 bouillon cubes
3 tblsps. finely chopped onion
¼ tsp. pepper
1½ tsps. salt
2 tsps. celery seed
2 tblsps. lemon juice
1 cup coarse cracker crumbs

Place veal, bay leaves, sliced onion and celery in cooking pan. Add water, cover tightly and simmer 2 to 2½ hours or until veal is tender. Remove bones from veal and coarsely chop meat. (This should yield about 4 to 4½ cups.) Strain veal liquid, reserving 2½ cups. Cut 3 green pepper rings ⅛ inch thick, remove seeds and white part and arrange in the bottom of a 5x9-inch loaf pan. Remove remaining seeds and chop green pepper. Cut 3 center slices from eggs ⅛ inch thick and arrange in the center of the green pepper rings. Coarsely chop remaining egg. Dissolve gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Add hot veal broth and bouillon cubes to gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Measure ¼ cup veal-gelatin mixture and pour over green pepper rings and egg slices. Chill until firm. Mix remaining gelatin mixture with chopped veal, chopped green pepper, chopped egg, chopped onion, pepper, salt, celery seed, lemon juice and cracker crumbs. Cool. Pour over congealed gelatin layers. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve with sour cream-horseradish dressing, if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

SOUR CREAM-HORSERADISH DRESSING

2 cups sour cream
¼ cup prepared horseradish
2 tsps. lemon juice

Combine all ingredients. Makes 2¼ cups.

Barbecued Hamburger Krispy

"Watch the cents, and the dollars will take care of themselves." So goes an old, old saying, no less true today than the day it was coined. There's something about the annual summing up of income that leaves even the best of budgeteers wondering where all the money goes.

In this matter of meal planning, principles and prices sometimes meet head-on. It takes real ingenuity to achieve good nutrition and good eating on budgets that tend to be inflexible. Just about the most effective device for stretching a dollar without slighting food requirements, is to make liberal use of the foods that are basically inexpensive, yet basically nutritious.

To begin at the beginning, consider the breakfast question. The price of a good basic breakfast (fruit, ready-to-eat cereal, milk, bread and a beverage) is only about one-sixteenth of the average daily food budget. Its contribution in food values is about one of the daily requirements for adults. High value, low price, a good breakfast every morning is truly thrift in practice.

Remember, too, that a buy is no bargain unless it's something your family likes.

Add half of this sauce to the ground beef mixture; mix well. Shape meat mixture into six balls and place in three-inch muffin cups. Top meat balls with remaining sauce. Hot and Husky From the Coals Is Sweet Corn

Serve it hot and husky straight from the coals. Sweet corn to be roasted is tender if soaked in salted, cold water for 30 minutes to an hour. Drain. Place unhusked ears on grill over hot coals. Turn every 5 minutes. Roast about 15 minutes or until husks are brown. By this time the corn will be tender and hot.

To serve: Peel husks down, but no off, butter and salt. Eat banana fashion. Perfect with grilled minute steaks eaten between hot hamburger buns warmed at the side of the grill.

Use Kitchen Tongs

Kitchen tongs are handy tools to use for turning broiled steaks and chops to prevent escape of meat juices.

A Party Shrimp Aspic

Cool as a cucumber is this spring aspic recipe. Adorned with thin slices of the cucumber, it's a pretty dish to behold, to serve and to eat. With a cup of dry white wine as one of the ingredients, the molded aspic makes an attractive buffet luncheon or supper dish, to serve six.

Although a light food, it's satisfying, filled to the brim with cooked shrimp and diced vegetables. If you don't have the wine on hand, use a fourth cup of lemon juice added to three-fourths cup of water, and use three bouillon cubes instead of two.

PARTY SHRIMP ASPIC

2 tblsps. gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 cup dry white wine
2 cups cooked shrimp
½ cup diced cucumber
¼ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced black olives

Soak the bouillon cubes and gelatin in cold water until soft. Add the boiling water and stir till gelatin is dissolved. Then add the wine. Chop shrimp, reserving about 6 whole shrimp. Arrange the whole shrimp in a flowerlike design in the bottom of a mold and cover with a layer of the gelatin. Chill until set. Meanwhile, cood remaining gelatin until thick but not set. Stir in the cucumber, celery, olives and chopped shrimp. Spoon the mixture into the mold. Chill until set. Unmold on lettuce leaves, garnish with thin slices of cucumber, and serve with a dressing of mayonnaise thinned with a little white wine. Makes 6 servings.

A Tip on Meat Balls

You can use cracker meal in meat balls, if you like, instead of bread crumbs.

CELESTIAL DELIGHTS WITH CRISP PANCAKES
Rich and Very Gooey, Just Like All the Best Desserts

Crisp, Rich Pancakes Raved-About Dessert

Desserts folks rave about are usually very rich and very gooey. Celestial delights fill both descriptions and are well worth the effort involved in the preparation. Rich peppermint ice cream is wrapped in thin crisp cocoa pancakes. If a freezer is available, the realistic hostess prepares the ice cream filled crepes in advance and keeps them in the freezer 'til party time.

Just before serving, the celestial delights may be placed on individual dessert plates. Or use a silver platter or pretty glass plate if the dessert is to be served buffet style. Top each delight with a cloud of sweetened whipped cream and a bright cherry for the accent. Each guest may spoon chocolate sauce over all to suit her taste and her calorie allowance.

The perfection of milady's technique in making the crisp pancakes behooves her to serve celestial delights more than once. It will seem to be a completely new dessert by using a variety of fillings and toppings. Chocolate ice cream and chocolate sauce make a triple chocolate delight. A Southern touch is added with pecan praline ice cream and butterscotch sauce. Or, please peanut butter lovers with vanilla ice cream and a peanut butter sauce.

CRISP RICH PANCAKES
6 tblsps. sifted cake flour
2 tblsps. sugar
1 tblsp. cocoa
½ tsp. salt
2 eggs
2 tsps. vanilla
½ cup milk
Butter

Sift together in a bowl flour, sugar, cocoa, and salt. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla. Gradually add milk. Beat thoroughly. The batter should be the consistency of thick cream. Chill the batter for an hour or so.

Generously butter a 6-inch shallow skillet. Pour in about 3 tablespoons batter. Tip the pan so the batter will completely cover the bottom of the skillet. These pancakes are very thin. When lightly browned, turn to brown the other side. To keep pancakes warm, stack on a heated plate and place in a warm oven.

Spoon very firm peppermint ice cream horizontally across the center of each warm pancake. Quickly fold pancake over ice cream. Slip into a freezer or serve immediately with whipped cream, chocolate sauce, and a red cherry. Makes 7 or 8 servings.

Do Not Cut Ribs To Be Grilled Over the Coals

If spareribs are to be grilled over the coals, do not cut the ribs into sections. Rather, weave a skewer through the whole cut of pork. Rotate over hot coals—a slow fire—for about 1½ hours, or until tender and brown. Baste with barbecue sauce during cooking. To know if meat is done, cut a slit near the bone or in the center of the piece. No redness should remain. Good eating with the ribs are chunky servings of buttered French bread. Be sure to wrap it in heavy foil and warm on the grill.

Gay Frosted Fruit Mold

Here's a salad gay and colorful as a spring garden. Frosted fruit mold combines canned fruit cocktail with strawberries and banana slices in lemon-flavored gelatin. Serve it with a fluffy cream cheese topping.

FROSTED FRUIT MOLD
¾ cup syrup from canned fruit cocktail
1 pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
3 tblsps. fresh lemon juice
1 cup ginger ale
1½ cups drained canned fruit cocktail
1 banana
1 cup halved strawberries (or any fresh berries)
Salad greens
1 (3-oz.) package cream cheese
3 tblsps. milk

Heat syrup from fruit cocktail to boiling and dissolve gelatin in it. Blend in lemon juice. Cool thoroughly. Stir in ginger-ale. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in fruit cocktail, sliced banana and berries. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Soften cheese with a fork and blend in milk, whipping until fluffy. Top each salad with a spoonful of cheese. Makes 7 (6-ounce) molds.

Cumin in Curry Dish

You may wish to add powdered cumin to a curry dish or chil con carne. Curry powder always includes some cumin.

A Stuffing for Special Buffet Eggs

Special stuffed buffet eggs: mix crabmeat, finely chopped celery and green pepper and seasoning with mayonnaise and mashed egg yolk to fill egg white halves.

These easy goodies can be made up any time of day, whenever the inspiration moves you. They take just moments to make and can be kept on hand just like cookies.

Whether this light repast is served afternoons or evenings, to your family or guests, pour tall, cold, refreshing glasses of milk to make it better.

Make a good hostess reputation for yourself by having these luscious goodies on hand for any and all occasions.

Puffy Omelets And Sassy Sauce

Everyone loves puffy omelets. Omelet Santa Cruz is especially delicious because it's topped with a lively tomato sauce containing meaty ripe olive wedges.

OMELET SANTA CRUZ

- 6 eggs
- 1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
- ¼ cup milk
- ¾ tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. black pepper
- 1 tblsp. thinly sliced green onion
- 1 tblsp. butter or margarine

SAUCE

Cook onion briefly in butter in large skillet over moderate heat. Fold stiffly beaten egg whites into egg yolk mixture and turn into pan over onion. Cook over moderate heat 3 or 4 minutes. Set in slow oven (300 degrees) for 15 minutes longer, or until top springs back when touched lightly. Cut omelet into wedges and serve with sauce.

Sauce: Cut olives in wedges. Stir chili powder into tomato sauce and simmer together. Blend in olives and heat well. Makes 6 servings.

BANANA LOAF

- 2 cups sifted flour

- ½ tsp. baking soda
- ¾ tsp. salt
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- ¾ cup (2 medium size) mashed bananas
- 3 tblsps. milk

- ½ cup coarsely broken walnuts

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg thoroughly. Stir in bananas, then milk mixed with vinegar. Turn into greased loaf pan (8½ by 4½ by 3 inches); bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven one hour or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Turn out on cake rack to cool. May be sliced thick and served shortly after baking; or store in tightly covered container overnight and serve sliced thin with butter.

Color Accents With Baby Beets

A color accent for early spring meals, these baby beets are an attractive hors d'oeuvres, too. Drain a No. 2 can of beets. Add ½ cup of the juice to ½ cup sharp vinegar. Heat the vinegar mixture with 2 cloves of glarlic, 2 tblesps. sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 peppercorns, and 1 onion sliced over a high flame for about five minutes. Pour the hot, spicy juice over the beets and store in a light covered jar in the refrigerator until ready to use. Serve the beet pickles icy cold.

An Easy Hot Fudge Sauce

Shiny and dark, this sauce makes an exotic dessert when served over coffee, chocolate or vanilla ice cream. Mix 1 package of chocolate bits with ¼ cup corn syrup and ¼ cup milk. Let this mixture cook over a very low gas flame while you are eating dinner. When you are ready for dessert, the chocolate will be melted and then the sauce is ready. This may be served over pudding, meringues or cake as well as ice cream.

Keep the Picnic Varied

As every mother knows, keeping picnics varied, appetizing and nutritious calls for ideas galore. And she also knows that as far as the youngsters are concerned, it's the sweet treat idea that makes the lunch a hit!

This recipe for apple bran cake is a good choice for such a treat. Made with grated raw apple, whole bran cereal and spices, the cake is topped with a cinnamon-sweet crumbly mixture that is spread on for the last five-minute baking period—so the cake is already frosted when it comes from the oven.

Ideal for picnics, this cake is firm textured and cuts well. And because of its nice moistness, it will retain its freshness a bit longer than most cakes.

APPLE BRAN CAKE

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup whole bran cereal
1 cup coarsely grated raw apple
1½ cups sifted flour
¼ tsp. soda
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
½ cup cold coffee brew
1 tsp. vanilla

Blend shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in cereal and apple. Sift together dry ingredients; stir into mixture alternately with coffee brew and vanilla. Spread in greased 8x8-inch pan and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) about 30 minutes. Remove from oven, spread with cinnamon topping and return to oven to finish baking, about 5 minutes. Makes 9 squares.

ONION PIN WHEEL BISCUITS WITH STEAK
Two Go-Alongs that Perch the Man on Top of the World

Don't Need Gypsy To Tell Taste Of Onion Pinwheel Biscuits

A seance with a gypsy fortune teller is not necessary to know Dad's exact menu wishes.

The choice for a day's meal would seem quite evident to most homemakers . . . heading the menu would probably be a steak.

The meat retailers in your community will probably have many types of steak on display . . . porterhouse, T-bone, sirloin, club, etc. However, let's choose the so-called "piece de resistance" of all steaks in this category . . . the juicy, tender, and boneless top loin steaks. These steaks are usually cut and shown as individual servings. Have them cut about 1 to 1½-inches thick. Actually these steaks are recognized as the larger of the two muscles found in the porterhouse or T-bone steak.

The top loin steaks are sometimes known by other names such as the New York cut sirloins or the Kansas City steaks. You also hear them called strip loin steaks.

The rest of the menu is colorful and tempting due to the carefully plotting and planning of Mrs. Homemaker. All rigged out for this particular dinner are broiled tomato slices topped with mushroom caps. (These can be broiled the last few minutes while the steaks are cooking.) Additional escorts include baked potatoes, baby lima beans, coleslaw, onion pin wheel biscuits and chocolate sundaes.

To broil, simply set the regulator of the range for broiling. Place steaks on broiler rack. Insert pan and rack so the top surface of 1-inch steaks are 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Thicker steaks are placed farther from the heat. When one side is browned, turn and continue broiling on second side. Steaks cut 1 inch thick require 18 to 20 minutes for rare and 20 to 25 minutes for medium-done.

Men go for the onion pin wheel biscuits. Made with lard and sporting an onion and poppy seed filling . . . they're a hit every time you serve 'em. See for yourself.

ONION PIN WHEEL BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 tsps. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt
3 tblsps. butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup lard
2 tblsps. grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup milk
1 tblsp. poppy seeds

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cook onion in butter or margarine until tender. Cut lard into sifted ingredients until mixture has a fine even crumb. Stir in Parmesan cheese. Add milk. Turn onto a lightly floured surface and knead gently for ½ minute. Roll into a rectangle 12x12 inches. Spread with onion-butter mixture. Then sprinkle with poppy seeds. Roll as for a jelly roll. Cut into 12 slices 1 inch thick. Bake on a cookie sheet in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes. 12 biscuits.

Lazy Livin' In Summer For Mrs.

Summer leisure calls for lazy livin', and many's the Mrs. who'd like to exit the kitchen from June through September. A lucky lass can succeed in this pursuit through several meals, but comes the time a large crowd must be entertained, and it's back to the kitchen, but good!

Perhaps a bridal dinner is called for or a garden party, or a family reunion. No matter the occasion, when entertaining a large crowd becomes inevitable, the clever housewife plans her menus as simple and as far in advance as possible.

You might come up with a barbecue in the yard to keep you out of the kitchen, but you'll still have to reckon with dessert. If you're planning an elegant dessert and still want a comparatively free afternoon to prepare the main course of the dinner, make your dessert first. Try delectable lemon pies; bake them bright and early in the morning and store them in the refrigerator during the day.

DELECTABLE LEMON PIES

Cream four pounds of cream cheese with 3½ cups of granulated sugar. Add 15 eggs and 1 cup of bottled lemon juice. (No squeezing of lemons necessary with this timesaver.) Now, pour your mixture into four baked pie shells. You might use graham cracker crusts for additional ease. Top with cinnamon and bake for 20 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Your four 9" lazy lemon pies will easily serve 20 people or more.

Now tackle the rest of your dinner. Chill fresh fruit slices, soaked in lemon juice to prevent discoloration of the fruit. Later add a grenadine sauce, top with mint sprigs, and serve in individual paper cups. During the afternoon, prepare your relishes and vegetables and meat for barbecuing. Plan to eliminate potatoes in favor of fresh loaves of French bread, spread with garlic butter in advance of the party.

Questions Answered

Mrs. E. writes: You advised discarding old medicines. Does this apply to aspirin also?

REPLY: Aspirin deteriorates slowly and should be discarded when it tends to crumble.

M. S. writes: How can Roy Campanella live with a broken neck?

REPLY: Roy's extremities are paralyzed but his vital organs (heart, lungs, and kidneys) continue to function.

H. T. writes: How long is the intestine?

REPLY: The large intestine is about five feet; the small, about 20 feet.

N. F. writes: Can athlete's foot be caught in a public bathtub?

REPLY: Yes, but it is not a common means of transmission.

H. J. writes: Is bursitis of the shoulder caused by too much calcium or too little calcium?

REPLY: Neither. Injury and infection are the most common causes. Calcium is the by-product of the irritation; it is deposited in the affected area as part of the healing process. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on bursitis.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 diam.	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	1 heart	1 spade	2 no trp.
Pass	3 no trp.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Jack of spades.

Major suit trump support should rarely be concealed from partner. When a choice is presented between bidding a second suit and supporting partner's major suit take-out, the latter should in a vast majority of cases be preferred, though the holding is but three to an honor.

Four card trump support should hardly ever be kept a secret and failure to raise with five of partner's suit is virtually unheard of. However, even such a drastic procedure may at times become indicated as witness a bid made today by South in a hand taken from tournament competition.

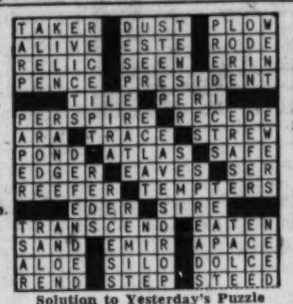

West managed to eke out an opening bid of one diamond and East holding only one jack decided not to keep the bidding alive. South naturally doubled and North's response of one heart was strictly routine.

East now took the liberty of "backing in" with one spade. This was somewhat risky but on the other hand partner could not take him seriously because he had not kept the opening diamond bid alive.

It is at this point that South made the bid worthy of our attention, two no trump, in preference to supporting hearts. It was quite evident that if hearts were supported the king of diamonds would be led through the opening. In point of fact at most tables North became declarer at a contract of four hearts. With a diamond opening, the defense cashed ace-queen of diamonds and a ruff, with the ace of hearts still to score.

At no trump there was no way to prevent South from taking nine tricks for an excellent score.

This Country Store Was Quite a Place

Bark Chicken, Old Chicken, Silk Chicken, Sally Sleepy, and Tobacco Jack were all good customers of James Dorris' store near Crabapple, back in 1835. The customers named were Cherokee Indians, and the store was sort of community center in those days.

Joe Mansell, investigator for the Fulton solicitor general's office, has some of the records of the store. James Dorris, or Uncle Jimmy, as he was known, was Mansell's great-great-grandfather. Dorris was born in 1801 and died in 1877.

The store was located four miles north of Roswell on Crabapple road. It was then in Cherokee County. The site was later in Milton County and now is in Fulton County.

The day book Mansell has tells many stories. One day's entries for Tobacco Jack run like this: "One gill whisky, 6 and one-quarter cents. One pint whisky, 12 and one-half cents. One quart whisky (by order), 25 cents." Old Tobacco Jack had to send somebody after the quart.

Long Sweetnin', Two-Bits

Molasses sold for 25 cents a quart, too. So the sweetnin' and the spice were the same price. Silk handkerchiefs, which the Indians liked to wear turban style around their heads, were priced at 75 cents each, one of the store's higher-priced items.

One item in the day book reads: "Rec'd. of Rev. Bartley Thompson, 18 gallons whisky." The next page shows that the Rev. Thompson either bought or sold 17 coonskins for $2.25. Maybe he took them in trade for the whisky.

Items list many sales of powder, lead for shot, and flints, showing how many of the folks who traded at the store made their livings in those wild days.

Center of Justice

The store was also the center of justice in those days. Right along with the items listing the sale of "domestick . . . asefetidy . . . sides of leather" was this entry under the name of Stephens Philip: "To warrent, 31 and one-quarter cents; to subpoena for four witnesses at 15 and one-half cents, 62 cents; to drawing a jury and making out venire, 62 and one-half cents."

By 1837 the price of whisky had gone up to 37 and a half cents a quart, but that didn't stop a man listed as "Cinolly, A Cherokee Indian" from pitching a party on the Fourth of July. Cinolly started off by buying a gill of whisky, then a pint, then a quart of "ditto" (as Dorris listed it), then three shoats at 25 cents each, then more whisky, then a coffee-pot (the whisky was in barrels and Cinolly bought the pot to carry his whisky in, because he later returned it for credit), then more whisky, then a tin bucket, also later returned, and finally, for some reason, three yards of red flannel.

Potpourri

Carl T. Stallon, field liason representative here for the Army's Chemical Corps, reports that the Chemical Corps will celebrate its 40th anniversary Saturday. The corps was activated on June 28, 1918, to carry out the gas warfare mission of World War I.

J. C. Mixon, president and general manager of the Atlanta & West Point Railroad, is sending out to friends some beautiful photographs of Old 290, the steam locomotive the A. & W. P. gave to the City of Atlanta as a railroad memorial.

Will Colbert, 62, of 1435 Murray, St., SE, who says he has "raised a lot of gardens" has got one going now, but he has a plant like one he never had before. He says he has an Irish potato vine which has three tomatoes growing on it. Sort of a vegetable soup plant.

Strong Whisky

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Charles J. Day, an arrested moonshiner, told federal agents his homemade whisky was 140 proof. "It wasn't too good," he conceded, "but it certainly was strong."
